

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

As early as the year 1845, the compiler of this volume commenced the collection of dates and facts respecting his ancestor, Thomas Noble of Westfield, Massachusetts. His investigations at that time were confined to his own direct line. In the year 1851, with the purpose of tracing the genealogy and history of the Noble family more fully, he began the careful examination of family, church, town, county, and state records, and opened a wide correspondence with all persons by the name of Noble, whose post-office address he could obtain. Material accumulated rapidly upon his hands, and his manuscript was so nearly completed that in December, 1859, he issued proposals to publish the work, should a sufficient number of subscribers be obtained to pay the printer's bills. Such encouragement not being given, the manuscript was carefully laid away until the fall of 1875.

Unwilling that the facts which he had so carefully collected, many of them from aged persons long since deceased, should be lost, he then resolved to make one more effort to obtain subscriptions enough to pay the expense of printing. Accordingly, circulars were widely sent through the country, asking for subscriptions, and soliciting additional facts and dates necessary to bring the work down to the present time. Answers to his circulars came in slowly, but in December, 1877, the number of subscribers was such that he ventured to send his manuscript to the press. In his circular, he promised his subscribers an octavo volume of from four hundred to five hundred pages, and based the expense of printing on a book of that size. Much to his surprise, the material has so increased that a book of eight hundred and seventy pages is now presented to the family. While asking nothing for his great expenditure of time and money in obtaining and publishing the information here embodied, he trusts that the family will see the justice of providing, by the purchase of the book, that the unlooked-for expense of printing so large a volume, shall not fall upon him alone.

The dates and facts here given were mostly collected by the compiler. So far as his knowledge extends, no one before him had ever attempted to trace either of the Noble families early in the country, except the late Curtis Noble of Unadilla, N. Y., who confined himself to his own direct line of descent from John Noble of New Milford, Conn., the eldest son of Thomas Noble of Westfield, Mass. From all the family histories which he has consulted, he doubts whether he has obtained the records of more than twenty Noble families, and many of the dates in these have required verification. Those who have had experience in such matters will understand the difficulties attendant upon a work of this kind. Of course it has been impracticable to consult personally the individual members of a family as wide-spread as this. It has been, therefore, necessary to ask them to send him their records by mail. The names and dates thus obtained have not always been distinctly written, and in some instances both dates and names have been differently given in the same letter or in subsequent letters. Again, the dates given on church and town records and on tombstones, are frequently found to differ from each other, and from those which appear in the family Bible. In such cases the compiler has endeavored by correspondence to reconcile conflicting dates, and where this has been impossible, has published the different dates. With all the care which he has used, he is aware that errors may have occurred which have thus far escaped his notice, and will be thankful to any reader who will correct even the slightest of them. The compiler regrets that many of the family to whom he has applied for information which they could readily have furnished, have either wholly neglected to answer his often-repeated inquiries, or have forgotten their promises to send him the desired facts and dates. Their own imperfect records remain in evidence of their silence and neglect. But let no one despair of finding what he may wish without consulting the Addenda and Errata, pages 776 and 806, which are mainly made up of facts recently obtained.

The family whose history is here recorded, though it has furnished some men distinguished as scientists and in the learned professions, and others who have represented their states and districts in both houses of congress, and filled gubernatorial chairs, has been for the most part composed of mechanics and farmers, who have well been said to constitute "the bone and sinew of the republic."

The descendants of Thomas Noble have been very numerous. This work, which is far from being complete, records the names of about eight thousand of his descendants, a large number when it is considered that he could not have been born until after the settlement of Massachusetts, and was therefore of a generation later than the first American ancestor of most of those families whose genealogies have been printed. It is a fact worthy of notice in this connection, that while our New England families usually disappear from a particular locality, in one hundred years, the voters' list of Westfield, Massachusetts, at the end of two hundred years from the settlement of the town, shows a larger number of persons by the name of Noble, all descendants of Thomas, than of any name except that of Smith, whose origin may be traced to perhaps a dozen different ancestors of different nationalities.

In the New World, the Nobles have been conspicuous on account of their enterprise as pioneer settlers. The same spirit which led Thomas Noble, senior, to brave the dangers of the ocean and the wilderness, inspired his eldest son to become the first white settler in the rich valley of the Housatonic at New Milford, Connecticut, and a younger son to become the first settler higher up the same beautiful river at Sheffield, Massachusetts. At later periods we find the descendants of this man among the early settlers of Vermont, northern, central, and western New York, western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, and passing westward across the Mississippi through Kansas, Minnesota, Utah, and Montana, until their feet have touched the shores of Oregon, and the golden sands of California.

At all periods of our country's history, the Nobles have been noted also for their patriotism. When danger has threatened, they have been among the first to take up arms to resist foreign invasion and suppress domestic treason. Although the record is far from being complete, this volume gives the names of seventeen who took part in the French and Indian wars, fifty-one in the war of the American revolution, thirteen in the war of 1812, and eighty who fought and bled in our late Civil conflict.

The arrangement of this book is one which commends itself by its simplicity. The descendants of each of the six sons of Thomas Noble are separately traced by generations. The same number is given to each individual whether found at the left hand or carried forward to the centre of a page. From the number at the side one must look forward to the number in the centre of a page for a full account of a person, as in the former case only the date of birth, and name of husband and wife are given. Suppose for example that one desires to trace the line of descent of Nathan Noble, centre number 109, whose family appears near the top of page 61. Look back to page 45, where side-number 109 is found. It is there shown that Nathan, born Feb. 20, 1761, was the son of Nathan, central number 30. By referring to side-number 30, on page 36, it appears that Nathan was the son of John, No. 13. On looking farther at No. 13 on page 35, it is seen that John was the eldest son of John Noble, No. 2, who according to entry on page 27, was the son of Thomas Noble, the early settler of Westfield. In a similar manner a name is traced forward from generation to generation.

In some of the early dates, a difference may be discovered which can only be explained by the fact, that prior to the introduction of new style in the place of old style in 1752, the year commenced with the 25th of March, and the practice of double dating thus: 1676-7, or 167 $\frac{1}{2}$, between January 1st and March 25th, was common. In such cases the compiler has called the year 1677, rather than 1676, which so far as the year is concerned changes old style into new style. He has not added to dates, the ten days between 1582 and 1699, inclusive, nor the eleven days after 1699, necessary fully to reduce the dates to new style.

He regrets that so few persons have responded to the invitation to furnish portraits of themselves and their immediate relatives, for this work. A photo-engraving of the house still standing in Westfield, Massachusetts, built about 1725 by Thomas Noble, (No. 1355) a grandson of the first settler, will give the reader a correct idea of the better class of New England farm-houses near the commencement of the eighteenth century.

To a large number of persons, some of Noble name and descent, and some of different origin, the compiler returns his warmest thanks for their continued favors in supplying information. Of those who have been most liberal in their aid, among the deceased, he mentions the names of Rev. Samuel B. Noble of Pontiac, Michigan, and Ezra Noble, Esq., of New Milford, Connecticut, and among the living, those of Hon. David Noble of Johnsbury, New York, Mr. John Noble of West Suffield, and Mr. Russell B. Noble of New Milford, both in the state of Connecticut, Dr. William M. Beach of London, Ohio, and Mrs. Martin Tinker of Westfield, Massachusetts.

The compiler not without regret draws his labors to a close, thankful that he has been able to gather from the crumbling records of the past and leave in an enduring form for the benefit of succeeding generations, so much respecting the genealogy and history of families, whose ancestors were honest, enterprising, God-fearing men, with virtues worthy the imitation of their descendants.

INTRODUCTION.

NOBLES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Surnames, says Camden, "were first taken up in England a little before the Norman Conquest, under King Edward the Confessor" (i. e., 1060); but adds, "they were never fully established among the common people till the time of Edward II" (i. e., 1307-77).

The name of Noble is one of great antiquity in Great Britain. Lower, in his "Surnames," refers its origin "either to the physical structure, or to the rank of the primitive bearer."

In the rolls and records of the court held before the king's justices, at the close of the reign of King Richard I (1199), appear the names of Roger Nobil and Robert Nobil.

William Nobil was, in 1207, a citizen of Winton.

Galfridus le Noble was, in 1270, a resident of the county of Northumberland.

Roger le Noble was, in 1277, of the manor of Hathfend and county of Hertford.

Gilbert le Noble was, in 1278, manucaptor of Andreas de Soukeville of the county of Sussex, distrained to receive knight-hood.

William le Noble was, in 1302, summoned from the county of Wilts to perform military service in person against the Scots, and to muster at Berwick-upon-Tweed on the 24th of June, the nativity of St. John the Baptist.

Thomas le Noble was, in 1302, manucaptor of Robert le Palmere, burgess returned for Bedwynd.

John le Noble was, in 1311, manucaptor of Thomas le Tyglere, burgess returned for Farnham.

Hugh le Noble was, in 1313, one of the sheriff's summoners in the county of Northampton.

William le Noble was, in 1313, manucaptor of Ralph de Chastillon, knight of the shire returned for Oxford.

Ralph de Noble was instituted, March 5, 1313, as vicar of the church at Whaddon with Nash, Cottelsdon hundred, county of Buckingham, and died prior to July 10, 1349.

William le Noble was, in 1314, Burgess returned for parliament at York on Monday, Sept. 9th, the morrow of the nativity of the Virgin.

Thomas le Noble was, in 1320, one of the bailiffs of the liberty of Wallingford.

Ralph Noble was, in 1321, manucaptor of John Gregory, Burgess returned for Lyme.

Richard Noble was, in 1327, manucaptor of John le Flemmyng, Burgess returned for Southampton.

William Noble married, in or before 1392, Matilda, daughter of John Blome.

Maud Noble, wife of William Noble, died in 1409, seized of lands in Kingsay, Ashendon hundred, Buckingham, which she is presumed to have inherited from her father, John Blome of Great Kimball, who died in 1397, and by an inquisition held at her death, John Hampden was found to be her next heir.

In a convocation held in Salisbury, in March, 1417, before the mayor and several members of the council, and John Harleson, ulnator of Wilts, John Corscombe was accused by John Noble, deputy ulnator of Salisbury, of having in his possession twenty-one striped cloths sealed with a counterfeit seal, both of the king and the city.

Stephen Noble was instituted, September 13, 1421, as rector of the parish of Therfield, hundred of Odsey, county of Hertford.

Nicholas Noble was, in 1476 and 1477, mayor of Salisbury.

John Noble was, March 20, 1556, priest of Salisbury, as appears by the following vote: "But forasmuch as the priest's gown was not according to the account thereof, made of four broad yards, it is therefore agreed that the said priest, called Sir John Noble, shall have of the chamberlain, for the lack of the said gown, 6s. 8d. out of the sum due to the mayor."

In the thirty-first year of Queen Elizabeth (1589), Thomas Noble was plaintiff, and Richard Greenfield defendant, the premises and matters in dispute being a house and garden in Lancaster, in the county of Lancashire.

The same year, Thomas Noble, perhaps the same person, in right of Alice Helm, was plaintiff, and Henry Blessdale, Robert Lowde, and Thomas Page, defendants, the premises and matters in dispute being messuage and lands in Jackling Grene in Bollani Forest and Clederow Castle in the county of Lancashire.

In the calendars of the proceedings in Chancery, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth (1558-1603), is found the name of Emma Trustowe as plaintiff and Thomas Noble defendant. The object of the suit was to protect a lease of two tenements or cottages in Hollywell street, in the parish of Saint Leonard Shoreditch in Middlesex, demised by the prioress of the house or monastery of St. John the Baptist of Hallywell, to Morrys Knyvet, afterwards assigned to the plaintiff's late husband, Goldeston.

Thomas Noble, who had been vicar of All Saints church in Hertford, hundred of Hertford, and county of Hertford, died probably about 1631, as John Archer, upon his death, was installed his successor, May 8, 1631.

Richard Noble was, in 1673, a contributor of books to the Free school in Gildford, county of Surrey.

Thomas Noble of Hertford, county of Hertford, by will dated Aug. 14, 14 Charles II (1674), gave his messuage at Bailly Hall Stile, in the parish of All Saints, Hertford, to John Downa, gentleman, for life; then to William Mills, Robert Lawson, and Joseph Browne, and their heirs in trust, out of the rents to repair the same yearly, then to pay the residue of the rents to the poor of the parish of All Saints, for the time being, the trustees to consist of four persons, the mayor of Hertford to be one.

Mark Noble was, in 1690, master of the Free school in Buckingham, county of Buckingham, founded by Dame Isabel Denton, in the year 1540.

On the floor of the nave of East Barnet church, hundred of Cashio, county of Hertford, are to be found monuments to the memory of Francis Noble, Esquire, who died July 8, 1789, a. 86, and of Betty his wife, who died September 7, 1787, a. 62.

In Great Amwell church, hundred of Hertford, and county of Hertford, is a monument to the memory of David Noble, Esq., who d. May 6, 1807, a. 59.

In Scotland, the name of Noble is found at an early period.

Thomas Nobill, with two knights, in 1364, acted as the escort of certain Scottish priests who visited England for the purpose of pursuing their studies. The following year, Thomas Nobill, perhaps the same person with the above, together with four knights, acted as escort for certain Scots, on their travels into foreign lands.

Alexander Noble was, in 1627, heir of Alexander Noble, a merchant and burgess of Edinburgh.

Thomas Noble was, in 1632, heir of John Noble, merchant and burgess of Edinburgh.

James Noble, merchant, was, in 1640, son of Archibald Noble of Edinburgh.

Adam Noble was, in 1642, a merchant of Edinburgh.

William Noble of Kipperminchoch, was, in 1676, heir of Maj. George Noble of the same town, and in 1697 probably had a son named Humphrey Noble.

COLLEGE GRADUATES.

The general catalogue of the University of Oxford, gives the names of the following graduates by the name of Noble, with the year of their graduation:

NOBLES IN OTHER PARTS OF EUROPE.

The name of Noble is also found in France, Italy, and Holland.

Eustache de Noble, one of the most indefatigable writers of his time, was born in Troyes in 1643, and died in 1711.

Leopoldo Nobili, an Italian botanist, was born in 1784, and died in 1834.

Roberto Nobili, a celebrated Italian Jesuit and missionary, and nephew of Cardinal Bellarmino, was born in Monte-Pulciano in 1577, and died in 1656. He resided for many years in Southern India, where he converted great numbers to Ohristianity. He wrote several religious treatises in different Indian dialects.

Constantin Nobel, or Noble, a Dutch navigator, was born abt. 1616, obtained a high rank in the service of the Dutch East India Company, and died after 1674. In company with Van Hoorn, he went, in 1665, on a mission to Peking.

No relationship has as yet been discovered between any of the Nobles mentioned in the preceding pages and those who emigrated to America. It cannot, however, be doubted but that such relationship existed, and their names, with such incidents as could be gleaned respecting their history, have been here introduced, in the hope that future investigations will show some of them to have been the ancestors of those who had the courage to follow the star of empire to this western continent.

THOMAS NOBLE

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

FIRST GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

THOMAS NOBLE was the emigrant ancestor of the largest family in the United States, bearing the name of Noble. He was born as early as 1632, probably in some part of England, and died in Westfield, Mass., Jan. 20, 1704, s. at least 72 yrs. His exact origin and early history are involved in obscurity, the place of his birth, the names of his parents, and the year in which he came to this country, being alike unknown. He was, without doubt, here in 1653, and was the man mentioned by Drake, (History of Boston, p. 331,) as admitted, on the 5th of January of that year, an inhabitant of Boston. The same year, he removed to Springfield, Mass., and opened an account at the store of John Pynchon. Though not one of the founders, he may be considered as one of the early settlers of that ancient town, the first settlement having been made in 1636, only seventeen years before. A few years after removing to Springfield, he visited England, as appears from an account-book of Mr. Pynchon. On the 1st of September, 1657, he was indebted to Pynchon to the amount of £32 3s. 6d., in which account is this item: "To what I pd. for yo^r passage to and fro. Engld., and for yo^r charges (beside what I give you) as in my pocket booke, £16 00. 00."

In 1664, in connection with several of his townsmen, he had liberty granted him to erect a saw-mill, on the west side of the Connecticut, as appears from the following vote:

"Decemb^r y^e 8th, 1664. There is Graunted liberty unto Samuel Marshfield, Thomas Noble, Thomas Miller and Elizur Holyoke upon their desires, for y^e setting up of a saw Mill on a brook below Ensigne Cooper's farme over Agawam River; also there is graunted them about Forty acres of land where they shall chuse it, neere the place where the Mill shall stand, not p^rjudicing any of y^e Inhabitants Propriety, or the high way: Also there is graunted them thirty acres of Meddow within 2 or 3 mile of y^e place where they shall fynd it most convenient for their use, beginning at one end of their Meddow and soe proceeding till 80 acres be made up. These grants are on condition that they cause a saw mill to be sett up in the place above mentioned & sett to work in Sawing by the first day of Aprill w^{ch} shal be in y^e yeere 1666. And in case that the said Undertakers, when they have sett up such work, shall see cause to desert the work, wth in three yeeres from the said tyme, they shall yield up the place and lands hereby graunted, into the hands of y^e Town, or such in the town as shall carry on y^e work, provided these und'takers be paid w^t charges they shall be at about the Work. Also, they are not restrayned of the liberty of the Comons, for all sorts of tymber for their use for Sawing or otherwise."

At a meeting of the selectmen of Springfield, Jan. 1, 1665 (i. e. 1666), it is recorded, "This day according to Towne order we considered about (making Rates &c) takeing a list of y^e estate of y^e Plantation. And for Prizing y^e Living Stock of y^e Towne we choose Tho. Noble & James Warriner."

Mr. Noble, though a man of activity and industry, seems to have early fallen into a habit (which it is to be hoped that his descendants will carefully avoid) of living "beyond his means," and as a natural result, soon found himself in debt. To secure the sums due to Henry Smith and John Pynchon, he was obliged, in 1667, to make over to Pynchon his house in Springfield, and all his lands, except a grant towards Windsor. In the hope of improving his condition, and providing for the wants of a large and growing family, he was therefore ready to join those who were beginning a settlement at Westfield. The precise time of his removal to that place is not known. The lands there granted to him, July, 1666, on condition that he settled upon them before the last of May, 1667, having been forfeited by non-settlement, the grant was renewed, Jan. 9, 1668, and the time of settlement extended to Nov. 10, 1668. At all events, he was there as early as Jan. 21, 1669, for at a meeting at Warronoco, (Westfield,) at that date, it was "Voted, That Ja. Cornish, Geo. Phelps, Thomas Dewey and Thomas Noble shall go to Springfield the first Tuesday in February next, at a Towne meeting, to propound to the Towne for the settlement of our place and affayres, in particular to determine where the lyne shall run betwixt Springfield and us, and to appoynt persons to lay out the bounds granted us by the hono^{ed} Gen^l Court, and to allow us to be a Township by o^rselves and signify the same to the hono^{ed} Gen^l Court."

In his historical sketch of Westfield, Rev. Dr. Emerson Davis states, that Mr. Noble's residence in Westfield was about two and a half miles east of the present centre of the town, on the farm where his son, Dea. Thomas Noble, afterwards resided, and which remained in the family until after the death, in 1791, of his great-grandson, Lieut. Stephen Noble, when it passed into the possession of Ambrose Day. There, he doubtless lived in peace and quiet, until the commencement of "King Philip's" war, in 1675. In this war, says Rev. Dr. Davis,

"Mr. Noble was much exposed. One night during family prayers, Gray Lock* (an old Indian), stepped up and pulled the string and let the door swing open, and as soon as all was quiet, he would pull the string again. Mr. Noble was persuaded by his friends to move into town. Gray Lock said he had several opportunities of killing most of his children at a shot, but did not want scalps as much as captives."

Having been chosen constable of Westfield, the records of the Hampshire county court show, that on the 7th April, 1674, he "was sworne to discharge y^e s^d office," which in those days was one of honor and trust. He took the oath of allegiance to his Majesty, Jan. 23, 1678; joined Westfield church, Feb. 20, 1681; was made a freeman, Oct. 12, 1681, and at the Hampshire county court, Sept. 26, 1682, took the freeman's oath.

The Hampshire county records show that about this time he suffered the penalty of the law for travelling on Fast day:

"At a County Corte held at Northampton, March 27th, 1683. Thomas Noble of Westfield being p^resented by the Grand jury for Travelling on a day of Humiliation, publicly appointed by the Gen^l Corte, which he owned, pleading his necessity for Coming home, and yet this Co^r^m Considering said offense, being a growing evil amongst us, many Persons too much disregarding such extraordinary Dutys, & Seasons, have adjudged sd. Noble to pay as a fine to the County treasurer five shillings."

In 1684, his name is with the most influential of his townsmen, upon the jury of inquest on the body of Eliezer Weller† of West-

*If this was the chieftain of the Waranokes, Rev. Dr. Davis is obviously in error in calling him "an old Indian." King Philip's war terminated in July, 1676. Temple and Sheldon, in their History of Northfield, state, that Gray Lock, the chief of the Waranokes, so called from the color of his hair, was the most prominent chief in Father Ralle's war, which raged fifty years later, 1723-26. They say: "He was now well advanced in age, but retained all the daring, and tact, and energy of his youth. In 1728, he was living on the shore of Missiquoi bay, at the northerly end of Lake Champlain." The only way of reconciling the statement of Rev. Dr. Davis with that of Temple and Sheldon, is by supposing, that in 1675, he was prematurely gray, and was at that time really young, although from the color of his hair, appearing to be an old man.

† Eliezer Weller was doubtless s. of Richard and Ann (Wilson) Weller, and b. in Windsor, Conn., Nov. 20, 1650.

The town of Westfield, on the 6th of Sept., 1685, granted to him, in connection with Isaac Phelps, Nathaniel Weller, and David Ashley, liberty to erect a saw-mill "on the brook, on the northeast side of the river;" and at the same date, together with George Sexton, he was chosen "to join with the Selectmen to prize buildings." At a town meeting held Sept. 22, 1691, he was appointed with Lieut. Phelps and John Sacket, "to attend the Court upon the town account with respect to the difference between our town and Suffield, and do what they can in the towne' behalf settling our bounds between us and Suffield."

"At a town meeting, Mch. 4, 1694, . . . there was Granted unto Tho. Noble, Sen^r, upon the plaine knowne by the name of fower miles plaine, the contents of halfe a mile Square, that is to say the Liberty of the Pines one this pice of Land for Roysume, w^{ch} is to continue for three years ensuing the date herea^r."

The records of Westfield show, that on the 2d of March, 1696, he was chosen county surveyor.

Agriculture, necessarily the main pursuit of every one in the early history of a country, was his principal employment, although while at Springfield, during the winter, he worked a portion of the time as a tailor.

At Westfield, he was so much prospered in his labors, as not only to bring up a large family of children well, but also to leave them at his death a respectable estate.

A copy of the will of Thomas Noble, executed almost seven years before, and proved about seven months after his death, recorded in the office of the Hampshire Probate court [Vol. III, pp. 119-20], together with the inventory, is given below :

"The last will and testament of Thomas Noble of Westfield, in y^e County of Hampshire, in y^e Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, being weak in body, but of perfect understanding.

"Impr, I commend my soul into the hands of Christ my blessed Lord and Saviour, and my body to a christian burial, in full faith of a blessed resurrection, through the rich grace of God in Christ my Saviour.

"Item, I give unto my son Thomas, that parcel of land lying in the farm purchased from Mr. Jn^r. Pyncheon, from the gate beyond the house entring into the field bounded by the plowing land, the way to Springfield, John Noble's land and the drain all along to the swamp.

"Item, to my son Matthew, a tract of land in the same farm, lying by a ditch eastly, and bounded at both ends by the river.

"Item, I give unto my sons Mark and Luke, my little meadow, lying against the orchard of Noah Cooke, and that homelot that I have bought, and they have rais d frames upon.

"Item, I give the lot that the town gave me on the top of the hill agt my house on the same farm, to all my six sons for a pasture.

"Item, to my son James, a parcel of land and house upon it, on that farm that is fenced in, being six or seven acres more or less.

"Item, I bequeath the rest of this my farm lying bounded upon James northly, Thomas on the east, Matthew on the southly, y^e river on the westly sides, to all my sons, i. e., to my sons John, Thomas, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and James, equally to be divided amongst them by my brother James Warriner, and John Hitchcock of Springfield, and by Capt. Isaac Phelps of Westfield.

"Item, I give to my son James, all my land in the plain, on this side the hundred acres, and the lot by the way to Pochastuck.

"Item, I give to my son John, the rest of my lot in y^e fort meadow.

"Item, I give unto my beloved wife, Hannah Noble, an acre of land reserved out of my son John's homelot; also half my dwelling house, that is to say, that end next the street, and halfe the land and orchard and barn we dwell on, and the other halfe of the house lot and barn to my son James, as also the thirds of all that I here will to my sons, and after her decease, I give my son James the whole of the house, houselot, and barn, and the acre reserved out of my son John's homelot.

"Item, I give unto my four daughters, Hannah, Elizabeth, Mary, and Rebecca, £30 apiece, to be paid them by my sons (viz.), Thomas, Matthew, Mark, Luke, and James, to Mary and to Rebecca about half a year after their marriage, and a cow apiece at their marriage. And in case any of my children should dye, not leaving any issue behind them, then my will is that the legacies that I here give them, be equally divided among the surviving, and also, I order these my sons to find my wife fewel wood, and two load of hay every year, so long as she shall remain widdow.

"Item, I give unto my wife also a cow and an heifer, also all my household goods, which household goods I would have her at her pleasure dispose of to my two youngest daughters.

"Item, my team (one yolk of oxen excepted), I give unto my three youngest sons, Mark, Luke, and James. And for the well and faithful execution of this my last will, I ordain and make my beloved wife Hannah Noble and my son Thomas Noble joynt executors, to defray all my lawfull debts, and for that end leave one yolk of working cattle, a yolk of fatt oxen, and the money in the Bay due to me, and all other dues, the which, when my debts are defrayd, the remainder I would have to go to pay my daughter's portions. But in case the same should be too little to clear my due debts, that then they are to raise what is sufficient out of the legacies I have here given to my children, to do the same. In witness whereof I set to my hand and seal this eleventh day of May, An^o Dom., 1697.

THOMAS NOBLE and a [SEAL]."

"Signed & sealed in the presence off

EDWARD TAYLOR,
VICTORY SIKES,
JAMES WARRINER."

In Springfield, Sept: 5th, 1704.

Mr. Edward Taylor and Victory Sikes, two of the witnesses to this instrument, appeared before the Judge of Probates in Hampshire, viz., Samuel Partridge, Esq., and made oath that they saw Thomas Noble, deceased, sign and seal the s^d instrument, as his last will and testament, and that he was of a sound mind and memory, when he did it, according to there judgment, and that they with James Warriner signd as witnesses to the same, in the testaturs' presence. Which s^d will (the executors therein named having accepted s^d trust), was by the s^d judge approved and allowed of.

"April 8th 1704. A division of a certain tract of land among the six sons of the deceased Thomas Noble of Westfield, who dyed the 21st of Janury 1704, the land lyes about the middle of the farm, that the deceased Thomas Noble bought of Mr. Pynchon, the quantity is about sixty-seven acres. It lyes by the river southeast, and norwest by a ditch which parts James Noble's pasture land from this dividing line, the northeast end buts upon the old cartway that goes through or that went through the s^d farm to Springfield, the southeast end buts on the old ditch or the land of Matthew Noble. It is divided in two divisions. The first division begins two foot to the norwest side of the first rowe of apple trees.

The first lot in that division was laid out for Thomas, which was 12 rod broad.

The 2 for James, four rods and 7 foots, 4 broad.

The 3 for Matthew, twelve rod, 12 broad.

The 4 for Luke, nineteen rod, 19 broad.

The 5 for John, fourteen rod, 14 broad.

The 6 for Mark, that is all from John's lot to the river south, east and noreast to a small brook of water that runs between John's land, and the dividing land. The second division runs from the upper rowe of apple trees to the ditch norwest.

The first lot was laid for Thomas, and it is three rod broad.

2. John was four, 8 rod and almost halfe.

3. Mark six, 6 rod.

4. James eighteen, 18 rod.

5. Matthew thirteen, 18 rod or fourteen.

We who are the sons of the deceased Thomas Noble, do all of us agree to take up satisfied with the above division, (with good liking,) of Isaac Phelps, James Warriner, John Hitchcock, who are the distributors.

SECOND GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN NOBLE, SON OF THOMAS.

JOHN NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in Springfield, Mass., March 6, 1662, and d. in New Milford, Conn., Aug. 17, 1714, æ. 52. He removed in childhood with his father to Westfield. In her will, executed at Deerfield, Mass., Feb. 25, 1692, and proved on the 29th of the succeeding March, Mary, widow of Richard Goodman, formerly of Hadley, names her son-in-law, John Noble, her executor, and declares: "My will is, that my son Noble shall possess, improve, & enjoy my house, Barn & all my Lands in Hadley, till y^e term of his foure years be fully accomplished & Completed." It is probable that he was at that time a resident of Hadley, and an occupant of the above-named house. Certain it is, that he was of Hadley, November, 1694, and at that date purchased of John Pynchon, skins to the value of nearly £6. Possibly he was then a furrier, though it may be that he bought these skins to sell again, for in 1702 he is styled "trader." On the 12th of February, 1695, he was still at Hadley, and then, for £10, bought of Stephen Lee of Westfield, five and three-quarter acres of land in Westfield. He returned to Westfield as early as March 2, 1696, at which date he was chosen constable, and on the 20th April, 1702, is called "trader," and on the 1st September, 1703, "innholder," and continued, doubtless, to make that the place of his residence until 1707. In the last-named year, as is supposed, he was the pioneer settler of New Milford, Conn.

Col. Robert Treat, and other inhabitants of Milford, Conn., having purchased, for £60 in money, and £30 in goods, "a certain tract of land, formerly called Weantenuck, now New Milford," of the Indians, the same was confirmed to them by the General Court, Oct. 22, 1703. On the 22d June, 1706, John Noble, then of Westfield, purchased land at New Milford, Conn., of John Woodruffe of Milford, an original proprietor.

Rev. Stanley Griswold, pastor of the Congregational church at New Milford, in a century sermon preached January, 1801, full extracts from which are entered on the town records, has the following in relation to John Noble:

"The first white settler, who came to this town, was John Noble from Westfield, Mass., who came here in the year 1707. He brought with him at first one of his daughters, then about eight years old. He first built a hut under what is called Fort Hill, but afterwards moved, and pitched here in the centre of the town. His house here was for some time the last house on this side of Albany, and General Nicholson once lodged in it, during the reign of Queen Anne. It deserves to be mentioned to the credit of the natives, that Mr. Noble once left his little daughter, then eight years old, with them for the space of three or four weeks, while he was necessarily absent from the town, and on his return found she had been well treated and taken exceedingly good care of. Another daughter of his, the late Mrs. Margaret Hine, who died here in the 93d year of her age, was then three years old, and the fact was fresh in her memory, as she had heard it while young, though she herself was not then brought hither."

No one who has seen New Milford in the summer, will call in question the good taste of Mr. Noble, in selecting that town as his future home, for in the whole valley of the Housatonic, no place, surpassing it in the beauty of its natural scenery, can be found.

"At a meeting of y^e Proprietors of New Milford, held at Milford, Dec^r y^e 27th 1710. Voted, That there be a Committee chosen for ordering y^e settlement of New Milford, and dividing y^e lands according to y^e several limitations, here after agreed upon by y^e Proprietors. Committee chosen are Maj^r Sam^l Eells, Capt. Joseph Treat, Lieut. Joseph Peck, Serg^t Sam^l Clark, Jonathan-Law, Jn^o Nobles, Jn^o Bostick, Serg^t Zachariah Baldwin.

Voted, that any five shall be a sufficient number or Quorum for doing any matter proper for y^e Committee to do.

Voted, That y^e Committee consider how many families may be accommodated, in and ab^t y^e place where y^e Town platt is already pitched, with a sufficiency of land, taking care that they do not exceed their Proportion of y^e whole tract of land and fall short of it according to their best Judgment, and when those accommodations are filled or taken up with Inhabitants, to pitch upon some other convenient place and there lay out another number of accommodations as y^e adjacent land will admitt of, taking y^e same care as before specifd and so to proceed as there shall be occasion, untill y^e whole is laid out leaving suitable Comons, Highways, &c."

On the 10th January, 1710, several years previous to the organization of the church in New Milford, Mr. Noble joined the First Congregational church in Woodbury, Conn. Shortly after this date, the inhabitants of New Milford, though few in numbers, feeling their need of religious privileges, petitioned the General Court of Connecticut for liberty to lay a tax upon all their lands, for the support of the gospel. A copy of the original petition, preserved in the Secretary's office, is here inserted:

"To the honorable gen^l Court or Assembly now sitting in New Haven :

The Inhabitants of New Milford, being twelve families and about 70 souls, having since y^e time of our first settlement, which is about three years, been without y^e advantages of y^e ministrey of y^e gospell and of themselves as able to giue necessary Encouragement there unto, humbly apply themselves to your honours for relief therein, and for that End your humble petitioners put into a Capacity to Levy y^e same, or that your honours would contrive som other way for y^e helth of our souls, as In your wisdoms shall be thought meet, and your humble petitioners shall ever pray for your honors' prosperity.

"Upon the petition of the Inhabitants of New Milford, this Assembly do order that a tax of seven shillings each pr. annum, for the space of four years, shall be laid upon the proprietors of Lands within s^d town (viz.,) so much on whole share, and proportionable upon lesser shares, or rights there, and the s^d inhabitants have hereby liberty to choose a collector to gather the s^d Rates or taxes, always provided the Money gathered as above s^d, shall be employed for promoting the Ministry in s^d Town."

"New Milford, May 29th, 1712. Pursuant to y^e Act or agreement of y^e Proprietors of New Milford December 27th, 1710, authorizing a Committee for ordering y^e settlement of New Milford afores^d and dividing y^e lands. The Committee whose names are hereunto subscribed, did meet and take a view of y^e lands, and situation of y^e same.

Whereupon they have considered and ordered as followeth: That in y^e first forty acre Division, the Liberty of Choice shall be first to those who have already settled or built here in such order as they agree or otherwayes, as they came here first to settle here, but with this Limitation that they shall not make y^e pitch further Southward than an East and West line across y^e fishing falls nor farther Northward than an East and West line half a mile above y^e mouth of Aspatuck river, excepting only Mr. John Nobles, who has already improved land att Rockey river, who has Liberty to take his pitch in that place.

Ordered that twenty acres on a square be left on Aspatuck hill to sett a Meetinghouse on, &c.

passed in the Lower House.

Test,

R. BUSHNELL, Clerk."

New Milford became a town, Oct. 9, 1712, by act of the legislature. Its growth, however, was slow. Permission was granted to gather a church in May, 1715, the church was organized Nov. 21, 1716, and a meeting-house commenced in the spring of 1719. In May, 1719, the number of families in the town was twenty-three. In October, 1727, the inhabitants asked the General Court for their county rate, to aid their school, and help finish the meeting-house, and their request was granted for two years. They again asked, May, 1730, for their country rate, to be used in finishing their meeting-house, and the Legislature granted their petition.

But in midsummer of 1714, before the plans which he had so fondly cherished had been carried out, even before the establishment of a church, John Noble, the enterprising founder of this new town, was, in the full strength of manhood, suddenly removed by death.

The proceedings in the settlement of his estate, from the New Haven probate records, are as follows:

"At a Court of Probates held at Newhaven Nov^r 2d, 1714.

"Administration of the estate of John Noble, late of New Milford, dec^d, is granted unto Stephen Noble, son of y^e dec^d, on his bond and surety. [Vol. 4, p. 299.]

JOHN NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Feb. 15, 1685, and d. in New Milford, Conn., in the summer of 1773, æ. 88.

He joined the Cong. church at New Milford, Aug., 1720. He was captain of the train-band in the same town in 1732. In 1743, he was a signer of a memorial to the General Assembly, for liberty to establish a church in the south part of New Milford and the adjacent towns of Danbury and Newtown, the memorialists all living from four to seven miles from church. He built the house next south of Gallows Hill, about six or seven miles below the centre of New Milford, on the road to Danbury, and there lived and died. His remains sleep in the old burying ground, nearly opposite his house. By his will, dated April 2, 1759, and proved Sept. 7, 1773, he gives his property to his wife Sarah; son Thomas; the heirs of son John deceased; son Nathan; the heirs of his dau. Sarah deceased; daughters Rachel, Mercy, and Hannah. To Rachel in addition to the eighth part of his estate, he gives his "Negro man Robbin," after the decease of his wife.

Capt. STEPHEN NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Aug. 15, 1686, and d. in New Milford, Conn., Dec. 10, 1755, æ. 69. By trade, he was a blacksmith. He was of Westfield, Apr. 16, 1709, and at that date, bought of Abigail Morgan of Enfield, Conn., besides 170 acres in the 2d division, bounded south by Scantic River, "all her Messuage and Tenement in the Township of Enfield," consisting of "a house, barn, and homestead, containing twelve acres in the town plot," "bounded northerly by the land of Jonathan Bush, Senr, and south by Capt. Isaac Meacham, easterly upon the town street, or highway, & westerly upon the great river." On the 2d Nov., 1713, being then of Enfield, he sold his homestead to Isaac Kibbe of Enfield. He probably removed to New Milford, as early as Jan. 24, 1714, for the records of that town show, that at that date twenty acres of land for a half right of upland were measured for Stephen Noble.

Stephen Noble was a man of great influence in the town of New Milford, and held almost every office of honor and trust in the gift of its citizens.

"At a town Meeting held November 29, 1714, there was chosen Samuel Bronson and Stephen Noble to make up accounts for the collector and see that the money be brought in so that it may be disposed of in order to the maintenance of the ministry amongst us."

"At a town meeting held Oct. 22d, 1716, Stephen Noble was appointed to represent the town in such matter as shall be needfull at the time of the ordination of Mr. Daniel Boardman."

"At a town meeting held Dec. 14, 1716, it was agreed that John Weller and Stephen Noble should have ten shillings for beating the Drum upon publick meetings & other necessary times the year insuing."

Dec. 16, 1717, "Att the same meeting there was chosen John Bostwick, Senr, Zachariah Ferriss, William Gaylord, Stephen Noble, John Bostwick, Jr, for a committy to agree with Mr. Bordman for his salery."

"March 17, 1717, at a town meeting held in New Milford, Stephen Noble and Daniel Griswold were chosen a committy to proportion and set out to every man his part of the fence which was formerly agreed upon to be made for Mr. Boardman about his homelot."

"Mar. 15, 1721, at a town meeting, it was voted in the affirmative that in taking up of land or a forty acre pitch, that we will draw a lot for a choice an in this manner proceed, at the same meeting there was chosen for a committy to draw lot for the choice are Stephen Noble, Zachariah Ferriss and William Gaylord."

"At a meeting held Sept. 28, 1723, Capt. Stephen Noble was chosen to agree with Doct. Warner to mannag our petition at the Genarall Court in October next."

Stephen Noble was, for fifteen years, a selectman of New Milford, viz., in 1714; 1716-21; 1724; 1727-28; 1730; 1735; 1738; 1741-42.

Prior to the year 1744, there was in New Milford but one military company, and of this Stephen Noble was, at its organization between 1715 and 1720, chosen captain, and continued in office for twenty years.

Although New Milford became a town, in 1712, thirteen years elapsed before any deputies were sent thence to the legislature of Connecticut. John Bostwick and Stephen Noble were chosen for the October session of 1725, being the first representatives of the town. Capt. Noble held this office of trust for sixteen later sessions, viz., May 1726; Mch. 1727; Sept. 1727; Oct. 1727; May 1732; Oct. 1732; May 1733; Oct. 1733; May 1734; Oct. 1734; May 1735; May 1737; Oct. 1737; May 1738; Oct. 1738; May 1739.

From the Colonial records of Conn., [Vol. vii. 60.] the following vote, relating to Stephen Noble, is extracted :

"At a Gen^l Assembly holden at New Haven, on the 18th day of October, 1726.

Upon the intelligence of the Indian enemy coming toward our frontiers: Resolved by this Assembly, That twenty effective men be forthwith raised in the town of Milford, with a sergeant, and march forthwith to New Milford, to be under the command of Capt. Stephen Noble, to be improved for the defence of said town; and that the major of the regiment of New Haven forthwith make out the necessary orders therefor.

Resolved by this Assembly, That Capt. John Marsh and Capt. Stephen Noble forthwith send each of them a small scout at their discretion into the woods, and in the name of this Assembly to command all our friend Indians to retire to the respective towns or places where they belong, and that they may not be seen in the woods except in company with the Englishmen."

In connection with Messrs. Edmund Lewis and William Gaylord, he was appointed, May 11, 1732, by the "Governor and Company of Connecticut," to lay out a township at the north part of the "country lands on the west side of Ousatunnuck river."

He was a justice of the peace in 1754. He joined the Cong. Church at New Milford, Feb. 26, 1727. Administration on his estate was granted Jan. 16, 1756, to his only surviving sons, Gideon and Stephen.

He m. ABIGAIL MORGAN, b. Feb. 16, 1683, dau. of Isaac Morgan of Enfield, Conn. She joined the New Milford church Aug., 1720. She d. abt. 1758, æ. abt. 75, and her son Gideon Noble was appointed her administrator, Jan. 2, 1759.

THOMAS NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Jan. 16, 1712, and there d. Nov. 4, 1783, æ. 71, and not 72, as stated on his monument. He erected the first house north of Gallows Hill, in New Milford, near his father's, where he lived until his death. He was an active business man, and for many years the owner of the iron works near his residence, which were managed with success. He had also considerable landed property, upon which he farmed. On the 8th May, 1772, he, together with twenty-five other proprietors of 1,800 or 2,000 acres of meadow on Wood Creek in Danbury and New Fairfield, Conn., applied to the legislature to remove obstructions in the river, and was himself appointed with five others, by the legislature, June 3, 1772, to see that said obstructions were removed. He was selectman, 1771 and 1773, and representative to the General Assembly for five sessions, viz., Oct. 1750, Nov. 1750, May 1771, May 1772, and May 1774. He was probably one of the persons referred to in the following order of the Litchfield Co. Court: "Litchfield Co. ss., Mch. term, 1777. The personal estate of Daniel Smith, Justin Sherman, Nathan Daton, and Thomas Noble, all of New Milford, in the County of Litchfield, they being inimical, was ordered to be disposed of for the use of the state." He joined the Cong. church in New Milford, Dec. 3, 1727; and was afterwards one of the principal supporters of the Episcopal church. A man of unblemished character, he was universally esteemed by all who knew him. His remains are deposited in the public burying ground, some seventy or eighty rods distant from his residence, on the opposite side of the road. A marble table marks the spot, bearing the following inscription:

This Life is short Eternity long.

In MEMORY of

Mr Thomas Noble who died

Nov^r 4th 1783, Aged 72 years.

And Mary his amiable

Consort who died Jan^r 17th 1795

Aged 78 years.

The strokes of fate

are death to earthly views,

The Soul surmounts the tomb,

& in her state secure,

devoid of hope or fear or faith,

Enjoys her God.

His sons Elnathan Noble and Jesse Noble, were appointed, Nov. 18, 1783, administrators on his estate. When a young man, he served for some time in the French war, and was at Louisburg, Oct. 9, 1745. At this time his health became much impaired by fever and ague. About 1756, he removed to Cape Elizabeth, Me., in 1757, to Stroutwater, Me., and abt. 1767, to Gray, Me., and purchased a farm, one mile from the village, now called Gray Corner. He there lived in comfortable circumstances, until the American Revolution, when he enlisted for three years' service in the army. He was in a number of engagements, among others in the memorable battle of Stillwater. At the battle of Saratoga, he was killed by a musket ball from the enemy, just as he was entering the breastwork. He never spoke after receiving the wound. He seems to have had a presentiment of his fate, having observed on the morning of his death, that he should not live out the day.

ELNATHAN NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Mch. 16, 1750, and d. of apoplexy in Butternuts, Otsego Co., N. Y., Jan. 11, 1824, æ. 74. He signed a petition May 2, 1772, to the General Assembly of Connecticut in aid of one from Ralph Keeler, who asked that a ferry five miles below Falls Bridge, on the way from Brookfield to Woodbury, might be settled on him.

Soon after the birth of his son Cyrenus, which occurred in 1776, he removed to that part of New Milford which, together with parts of Danbury and Newtown, formed the Society of Newbury. This was incorporated in 1788, as the town of Brookfield, Conn.

About 1789, in company with his brothers Sylvanus and Jesse Noble, and Joseph Tomlinson, he built a forge and engaged in the manufacture of bar iron. The charcoal there used was burned wholly by himself.

Soon, glowing accounts of the richness of the soil west of the Hudson, in New York, reached his neighborhood, and in 1793 he sold his farm in Brookfield, and early the ensuing year, for $750, bought one hundred acres of land on Butternut Creek, Otsego Co., N. Y., in the township of Burlington, since called Pittsfield, and now New Lisbon. The only buildings upon it were a log-house and a log-barn; the former ten feet by twelve, covered with elm-bark, with a chimney of sticks and clay, and containing but two rooms. An account of the journey thither, written by his son Cyrenus, has fortunately been preserved:

"On the 17th of April, 1794, at about 10 o'clock in the morning, we started for our new home, in a cart covered with tow-cloth, drawn by two stout yoke of oxen. Our family consisted of my father, mother, my sister Sally, brothers Sylvanus, Nathaniel, Bostwick, Elnathan, and myself. The first day, the weather being warm and pleasant, the ground well settled, and the roads good, we made twelve miles, and in twelve days passed Canagoharie, fifty miles west of Albany. We reached our destination on the first of May. The land was heavily timbered; the settlers few, and principally Dutch. We lived happily in our log-cabin."

By occupation a farmer, he was an industrious and worthy man, possessing a cheerful spirit and courteous manner, which seemed to win for him the friendship of all. He was for many years a magistrate of the town, and one of the founders and active supporters of Zion church, at "the Butternuts." His remains were deposited in the church burying-ground, near the site of the old Episcopal church, now gone to decay. In accordance with his previously expressed wishes, his funeral was attended by Rev. Daniel Nash, with whom he had long been a co-laborer, in his efforts to build up the Episcopal church in that place.

JESSE NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Sept. 23, 1754, and d. in New Lisbon, Otsego Co., N. Y., April 22, 1833, æ. 78. He signed a petition to the General Assembly of Connecticut, May 2, 1772, in aid of one from Ralph Keeler, who asked that a ferry five miles below Falls Bridge, on the way from

Brookfield to Woodbury, might be settled on him. The following documents, found in the office of the secretary of state in Connecticut, show, that during the Revolution he was suspected of being inimical to the American cause, yet without reason, if we credit the statements made by him in his petition to the General Assembly, that he had been ever "attached to the American cause," and was "ready at any time to take the oath of fidelity."

"State of New York.

"I Egbert Dumont, Sheriff of Ulster County, do hereby certify that David Ives, and Jesse Noble late of the State of Connecticut (as is said) were committed to me, as prisoners taken on their way to joyn the enemy towards Crown Point.

"Dated this fifth day of August, 1777."

"To either of the Constables of Sharon in Litchfield County, greeting.

"In the name of the Gov^t and Company of the State of Connecticut, you are hereby commanded, to take the within named David Ives and Jesse Noble, they being deemed inimical to the United States of America, and taken, as is said, on their way to join the enemy, and commit them to the Keeper of the Goal in Litchfield in said county, who is likewise commanded to receive the said Ives and Noble, and them safely keep in said prison, untill they be brot. to a proper trial, or are delivered by order of law.

"Dated at Sharon the 7th day of August, A. D. 1777.

DANIEL GRISWOLD, justice of the peace."

"Litchfield, August y^e 8th day 1777, then by virtue of the above mittimus, I delivered the above named David Ives and Jesse Noble to the keeper of the Goal in Litchfield, test, SILAS S. JOHN, Constable of Sharon.

"To the Honourable General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, now sitting in Hartford in sd. State, the Petition of Jesse Noble, now confined in Litchfield Goal humbly sheweth, that your Petitioner lately removed from New Milford in this State to Arlington in the State of New York, and last winter was going to view a tract of land which he had purchased near Crown Point, when he was apprehended under a suspicion of going off to the enemies of the American States, and carried to Ticonderoga, and from there was sent under guard to Albany and from there to Kingston and from thence to Sharon and is now confined in Litchfield goal, by virtue of a mittimus from Daniel Griswold, Esq. No proof has at any time been brought to prove an inimical disposition in your petitioner to the American States, neither can any be brought, for he has been ever attached to the American cause, and is now confined in Goal with the prospect of an endless imprisonment, without being brought to trial. Your Petitioner would therefore pray your Honours, that he may be brought to trial as soon as conveniently may be, and in the mean time released from goal, upon putting in sufficient bail for his appearance at time of trial. Or if your Honours should judge a trial in this State impracticable, that he may be released from goal, upon putting in sufficient bail to return to goal when called for. Or, that he may be released from goal and suffered to enjoy all the privileges of an American, upon taking the Oath of fidelity presented by this State, which he is ready to do at any time.

JESSE NOBLE.

Having pursued the study of divinity, for one year, with Rev. Dr. Joseph Bellamy of Bethlehem, Conn., he was for the two subsequent years a teacher, and then for nine years a farmer in Sharon, Conn. In Oct., 1766, and May, 1767, he represented Sharon in the General Assembly of Connecticut. Having completed his theological studies under Rev. Cotton Mather Smith of Sharon, Conn., he was ordained, Jan. 31, 1770, as pastor of the Cong. church in New Preston, Conn., and remained in that connection until his death, which took place Sept. 12, 1806, at the age of 67. He was about six feet in height, and had a large frame, although never corpulent. He had mild blue eyes, and his countenance was open and expressive of the benignity of his disposition. He excelled as a pastor, and though not a fervent and animated orator, was a solemn and impressive preacher. In ecclesiastical difficulties his advice was often sought.

While pastor of the New Preston church, he resided in that part of New Milford, Conn., which about 1782 was annexed to the town of Washington, Conn. [He m. (1) Sarah Mills of Kent, Conn., who d. She m. Oct., 1784, Rev. JOSEPH BADGER, b. Feb. 28, 1757, in Wilbraham, Mass., son of Henry and Mary Badger. Henry Badger was son of Nathaniel, who was son of John, who was son of Giles, who came from England, and settled in Newbury, Mass., abt. 1635. Joseph Badger for two years was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and in 1785 graduated at Yale College. Having pursued his theological studies with Rev. Mark Leavenworth of Waterbury, Conn., he was licensed to preach, Oct., 1786; and ordained pastor of the church in Blandford, Mass., Oct. 24, 1787. Having been dismissed from his charge in that place Oct. 24, 1800, after a ministry of thirteen years, he went the same year to the Western Reserve in Ohio, being the first missionary who arrived there. After laboring there for something more than a year, he returned to New England for his family. At that time there were no stage-coaches daily plying between the eastern and now western cities—no packets, steamboats, or railroads, to facilitate his progress. He drove his own wagon over roads that were never before made, cutting his own path from Buffalo, N. Y., to Erie, Penn., and reached the Reserve in safety, in 1801 or 1802. He spent three or four of the following years as a missionary among the whites, preaching and laboring in the settlements, which were then few and far remote from each other. The next four years he labored among the Wyandotte Indians, who then resided at Sandusky and vicinity. After this he resumed his missionary work among the whites in the eastern part of the Reserve. In this capacity he continued (except a season in the war of 1812, when he served as chaplain in the army, and two or three years which he spent as stated supply of three or four churches), until Oct. 19, 1825, when he was installed over the church in Gustavus, O. He terminated a long and laborious life, in Perrysburg, O., Apr. 5, 1846, æ. 89.

DAVID NOBLE, s. of Daniel, was b. Dec. 9, 1744, and d. in Williamstown, Mass., March 4, 1803, æ. 58. He graduated at Yale College in 1764, read law with Woodbridge Little of Pittsfield, Mass., removed between 1766 and 1770, to Williamstown, Mass., and established himself in the practice of his profession. He was afterward, for a time, engaged in mercantile pursuits.

He settled at first on the banks of the Hoosick, in a house which stood where the new factory company have since erected their store. Soon he removed thence, and built, at the east end of Main street, half a mile from the old Congregational church, a double brick mansion, two stories in height, with dormer windows. To it from the street led a grand avenue of Lombardy poplars.

He was a man of activity and enterprise, of probity and intelligence. An early friend and earnest patron of Williams College, he was one of its trustees from 1793 until his death. The college bell, and the land on which the old presidential house stands, were his gifts. In 1795, he was chosen judge of the court of Common Pleas for Berkshire county, and retained the office while he lived. His estate was appraised at $11,735.97. A portrait taken near the close of the American revolution, and now, 1876, in the possession of his great-grandson, Charles W. Noble of Detroit, Mich., shows him, with his powdered hair, silk coat and waistcoat, and general bearing, to have been "a gentleman of the olden school." A copy of this, made by a Detroit artist, was presented by his grandson, Hon. Charles Noble, to Williams College, and placed in Alumni Hall.

His monument bears the following inscription:

In memory of
David Noble, Esq.,
lately one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Berkshire, who died
March 4th, 1803: in the 59th year of his age.
The dust shall return to the earth
as it was, and the Spirit shall return to God who gave it.

SIXTH GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

CURTIS NOBLE, s. of Elnathan, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Nov. 19, 1774, and d. in Unadilla, Otsego, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1835, æ. 60. He was bred a merchant, in the store of Hon. Elijah Boardman of New Milford. Habitually a business man, ceaseless employment was his pleasure. He removed from New Milford to Unadilla, Otsego Co., N. Y., and settled at or near the place then called Wattles Ferry, on the Susquehannah. For more than thirty years he there carried on the mercantile business, near the village, in company with Isaac Hayes, under the firm of Noble & Hayes. A man of strong natural ability, with clear views on all subjects, he was unambitious of public notice or political life, and universally declined, when offered political or military preferment. He admired unpretending merit, and was himself in all respects unostentatious. Though economical from early habits, and though not having himself had the advantages of early education, he bestowed his property freely upon the education of his children, and liberally advanced funds, with little hope of their return, to his brothers and other relatives. Always evincing a stern integrity and strict honesty himself, he could brook in others no palling with either. He died of a disease in the head, by some deemed scrofulous, but most probably an inflammation arising from a cold and some catarrhal predisposition. He made no will, having often before and during his illness expressed his approbation of the disposition of property which the statute laws of the state made in cases of intestacy. To his widow and children he left property, real and personal, to the amount of thirty or thirty-five thousand dollars, which he had accumulated by industry and economy.

At a meeting of the vestry of St. Matthew's church, Unadilla, held on Monday, Feb. 23, 1835, two days after his death, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the dispensations of an all-wise Providence it hath pleased the great Head of the Church to remove from the Church Militant our much-esteemed and beloved brother and companion, Curtis Noble, one of the earliest settlers of our village, and one of the founders of our church, and who has been from the first organization of the same, a distinguished and efficient member of her vestry, and for a long time one of her most exemplary, pious, and devoted communicants; and whereas, we are desirous of expressing our feelings on this mournful event; therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Curtis Noble we are called upon to lament the loss of one whose sterling integrity and unostentatious and well-directed charities have not only endeared him to a large circle of friends and relatives, but have left us a bright example worthy of our admiration and esteem.

Resolved, That as a vestry, we will ever cherish the liveliest recollections of his piety and virtue, and sincerely sympathize with his family and relatives in this most afflicting bereavement, which has deprived them of an affectionate husband and indulgent father, and an undeviating friend, and the Church of God of one of her wisest, most exemplary, and devoted members.

Resolved, That in this great bereavement we cannot but acknowledge the goodness and mercy of God, in that He has not left us comfortless, but that in view of the bright example, of the calm and peaceful departure of our companion and brother, we are led to exclaim: "Let us die the death of the righteous, and let our last end be like his."

Resolved, That as a tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, the members of the vestry will wear the customary badge of mourning for the space of thirty days.

Resolved, That the foregoing resolutions be entered on the book of the vestry, and that a copy of the same be sent to the widow of the deceased.

CYRENUS NOBLE, s. of Elnathan, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Sept. 27, 1776, and d. in Buffalo, N. Y., March 16, 1857, æ. 81. In his fifth year, he first attended school, walking two miles to reach the school-house. At that time, the people, being greatly straitened in their circumstances, in consequence of the Revolutionary struggle, were unable to employ competent teachers, even for three months in the winter. His father, in connection with others, having erected a forge for the manufacture of bar iron, and agreed to furnish charcoal for the manufacture of the same, in his thirteenth year, under the direction of Eber Ruggles, he learned to build and burn coal pits. In his fourteenth year, he took the entire management of the same. The farmers' market was then Bridgeport and Norwalk, on the sea-coast, thirty-five miles distant. Their mode of conveyance was ox-teams; carts in summer, and sleighs in winter. There were then but few horse teams in the country. A trip to Norwalk and back required four days. The mail came but once a week, and was carried on horseback from Hartford to New York. The Connecticut Courant, published weekly at Hartford, furnished the family with the news of the day.

In 1794, he removed with his father to Burlington, since called Pittsfield, and now New Lisbon, Otsego Co., N. Y. He received in 1804, the appointment of postmaster of Pittsfield. In 1806, he built a shop in New Lisbon, N. Y., and in company with his brother Elnathan, made and sold tinware. He established, in 1808, a shop in Ogdensburgh, N. Y., for the manufacture and sale of hats, and continued in business there until 1812, although never removing to that place. In 1816, he was elected a member of the General Assembly of New York, for the county of Otsego. From 1817 to 1827, he was engaged in the manufacture and sale of hats, and in farming.

Having sold his farm, in 1827, he removed to the adjoining farm, formerly owned and occupied by his father, and there remained until the same was divided in 1834. In May, 1835, he removed from New Lisbon to Kortright, Delaware Co., N. Y., and there engaged in mercantile business. The succeeding year he removed to Hamden, Delaware Co., N. Y., and there followed the same pursuit. In December, 1838, he removed to Oneonta, Otsego Co., N. Y., and there, in company with Samuel B. Beach, commenced the manufacture of shaving and fancy soaps. He removed thence to Unadilla, Otsego Co., N. Y., and continued the same business, until May, 1848.

His children having now removed to Detroit, Mich., he with his wife followed them thither, in June, 1848. That city was his home through the remainder of his life. He died at the house of his son Charles E., in Buffalo, N. Y., but his remains were removed to Detroit, and there interred.

He m. Dec. 1, 1804, HANNAH WESTON, b. in Wethersfield, Conn., Dec. 15, 1783, dau. of Benjamin and Mary (Woodhouse) Weston. HON. ELNATHAN NOBLE, s. of Elnathan, was b. in New Milford, Conn., July 15, 1779, and d. in Unadilla, Livingston Co., Mich., April 2, 1841, æ. 61. He removed in 1794, with his father, from New Milford, Conn., to Butternuts, N. Y. In 1806, he commenced the tin business in New Lisbon, N. Y. From 1808 to 1812, with his brother Cyrenus Noble, and Sylvester Gilbert, he dealt at Ogdensburg, N. Y., in general merchandise, hats, furs, and lumber. The embargo caused the failure of Noble & Gilbert for a large amount. About 1812, he removed from New Lisbon to Geneva, N. Y., in the spring of 1832, to Dexter, Mich., and thence, in 1833, to Unadilla, Livingston Co., Mich. He was a hatter in Geneva, and a farmer in Michigan. In Unadilla, Mich., he kept a hotel, was the first justice of the peace, and an associate judge of the county court. He gave the name to the town of Unadilla, and also to the county of Livingston.

Rev. JEREMIAH DAY, D.D., LL.D., s. of Rev. Jeremiah and Abigail (Noble) Day, was b. in that part of New Milford, Conn., which is now Washington, Conn., Aug. 3, 1773, and d. in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 22, 1867, æ. 94. His studies preparatory for college were pursued with David Hale, in New Preston, Conn., and Joseph Badger and John Kingsbury, in Waterbury, Conn. He graduated at Yale College in 1795; was a tutor in Williams College, 1796-98; professor of mathematics, natural philosophy, and astronomy in Yale College, 1803-17; and president of Yale College, 1817-46.

During Dr. Day's professorship, he published an Introduction to algebra, and also a Course of mathematics, embracing principles of plane trigonometry, mensuration, navigation, and surveying, all of which had a wide circulation. While president, he published an Enquiry respecting contingent volition; and an Examination of Edward's enquiry as to the freedom of the will.

In 1817, Middlebury College conferred on him the degree of doctor of laws, and Union College, in 1818, and Harvard College, in 1831, the degree of doctor of divinity.

Although Yale College had been very fortunate in its presidents, it had never been more prosperous than under President Day. His learning and talent united to great kindness of heart, secured alike the respect and love of the thousands of pupils committed to his charge. For twenty years after his resignation he continued to serve the college as a member of the corporation, retiring from the board only the year before his death.

In early life he was threatened with consumption. But by constant, persistent, and self-denying attention to the laws of health, he attained a more advanced age than most of his contemporaries, and was at his death the oldest resident of New Haven.

"I suppose," says President Woolsey, in the address at his funeral commemorative of his life and services, "that if the nearly 2,500 graduates of Yale College who were educated here under President Day, were asked, who was the best man they knew, they would, with a very general agreement, assign him that high place." "We bury him not knowing whether so good a man shall ever appear among us, or in the times of our children again. We bury him, a man of a clear intellect, who lived in harmony with all political, moral, religious truth, without a grain of party spirit, bigotry, or uncharitableness in his temper, who had a full-orbed character, in which calmness, self-control, meekness, tenderness, unselfishness, all the virtues found their radiance. We bury him above all, a servant of Christ, eminently like the Master, thankful that we have known such a man, and that the remembrance of him may be a guide and a help to us in the remainder of this earthly life."

Hon. THOMAS DAY, LL.D., s. of Rev. Jeremiah and Abigail (Noble) Day, was b. in that part of New Milford which is now Washington, Conn., July 6, 1777, and d. in Hartford, Conn., March 1, 1855, æ. 77. He pursued his preparatory studies with his father, his brother Jeremiah, Barzillai Slosson of Kent, Conn., and at New Milford academy, and graduated at Yale College in 1797. He commenced immediately his legal studies under Judge Reeve of Litchfield, Conn. He was, from Sept., 1798, to Sept., 1799, a tutor in Williams College, continuing at the same time the study of the law with Hon. Daniel Dewey of Williamstown, Mass. After three months' study at Hartford, Conn., under Theodore Dwight, in December, 1799, he was admitted to the bar. He immediately commenced practice in Hartford, where he continued to reside until his death. In 1810, he was elected by the people of Connecticut, secretary of state, and was continued in office by twenty-five successive elections, until May, 1835. He was appointed in May, 1815, associate judge for the county of Hartford, and annually afterwards, with the exception of one year, until May, 1825, when he was made chief judge of that court, and retained the office until June, 1833. From March, 1818, until March, 1831, he was one of the judges of the city court of Hartford. Mr. Day was one of the committee who prepared the edition of the Statutes of Connecticut, published in 1808. He himself compiled the notes, made the index, and wrote the introduction. He was one of the committee, who in 1821, revised the Statutes of the State, and also one of the committee appointed to prepare and superintend a new edition in 1824. In 1805, he began to report the decisions of the Supreme Court of Errors in Connecticut, and when provision was made by law, in 1814, for the appointment of a reporter, received that office, and retained it until his resignation in 1853. The report of the decisions from 1802 to 1813, published by him, makes five octavo volumes, and those from 1814-53, inclusive, twenty-one octavo volumes. He also edited, with copious notes, about forty volumes on English law. As a deserved recognition of these services, his Alma Mater, in 1847, conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws.

Mr. Day's name stands connected, as vice-president or trustee, with most of the benevolent and literary institutions of Hartford, as the Hartford Grammar school, Hartford Female seminary, American Asylum for the education of the deaf and dumb, and Retreat for the Insane. He was also an original member of the Connecticut Historical society, and its first recording secretary. On the revival of the institution, in 1839, he became its president, and retained that position for more than fifteen years.

A man of dignified presence, uncommon courtliness of manner, and great kindness of heart, he secured alike the love, respect, and veneration of his fellow citizens. A life-like portrait of him, taken towards the close of life, by Emmons of Norwich, Conn., adorns the wall of the rooms of the Connecticut Historical society in Hartford.

JOSHUA DANFORTH, b. in Western (now Warren), Mass., Nov. 26, 1759, s. of Jonathan Danforth, an officer in the Revolutionary war, who acted a conspicuous part as commander of a battalion at the battle of Bennington. His father having designed to give him a liberal education, he was preparing for college when the revolutionary struggle commenced. Abandoning his plans of study, at the age of fifteen years, he entered the army, in the capacity of clerk in his father's company. At the age of sixteen he received an ensign's commission, and in 1778 was raised to the rank of first lieutenant, in which office he continued until 1781, when he was appointed paymaster, with the rank of captain. He was at the surrender of Burgoyne in 1777, in the battle of Monmouth in 1778, spent the principal part of the year 1780 at West Point and its vicinity, and in 1781 had for some months command of a post a few miles from the Hudson, near Tappan's Bay, where he was engaged in several skirmishes with the enemy. When the army was disbanded in 1783, Col. Danforth was continued in the service as paymaster to assist in the settlement of the accounts with the soldiers, and was not discharged till the year following. In May 1784, he removed to Pittsfield, and engaged in the mercantile business in company with Col. Simon Larned. In 1787 he was appointed aide-de-camp to Major-General Patterson, and the same year received his first commission as justice of the peace from John Hancock. In 1794 the post-office was established in Pittsfield, and he was appointed postmaster, and retained the office until his death, a period of twenty-three years. From about 1794 to 1823, he held successively the offices of town clerk, treasurer, selectman, and assessor. In 1801, 1802, 1803, 1806, and 1808, he was representative to the General Court. In 1807 he was appointed associate justice of the court of sessions of Berkshire county, and in 1808 chief justice of the same court. He received from Mr. Madison the appointment of United States marshal for his district, and also that of principal assessor, and collector of the revenue, for the 18th district in Massachusetts. In 1827 and 1828 he was elected a member of the Governor's council. He m. MARIA NOBLE, dau. of Hon. David, was b. in New Milford, Conn., Oct. 7, 1770, and d. in Williamstown, Mass., Mch. 13, 1813, s. 43. Her monument bears the following inscription: "In memory of | Mrs. Maria Dewey | the wife of Daniel Dewey, Esq. | On the 13th March A.D. | 1813, in the 43 year | of her age, she | departed this life, in full | faith and hope of a | blessed immortality. | Let those who revere her memory, | follow her example of patience, | humility, and unaffected piety."

She m. May 6, 1792, Hon. DANIEL DEWEY, b. Jan. 29, 1766, in Sheffield, Mass., s. of Daniel and Abigail (Higgins) Dewey. He was for two years a member of Yale College, and received from that institution, in 1792, the degree of A. M. He resided in Williamstown, Mass., and built a house about eighty rods east of the old College chapel, now, 1876, owned and occupied by Hon. Joseph White. He was a member of the Governor's council in 1809 and 1812; treasurer of Williams College, 1798-1814; member of Congress 1813-15; and judge of the Supreme judicial court from Feb., 1814, until his death. He was happy in all the social and domestic relations of life, and though he lived at a time of violent party animosities, detraction never meddled with his name. "He is almost the only man," says Chief Justice Parker, "in an elevated rank and of unalterable political opinions, and who was never remiss in enforcing those opinions, that has been at no time calumniated." He d. in Williamstown, May 26, 1815, s. 49, and over his remains has been erected a monument with this inscription: "In memory of the | Hon. Daniel Dewey, | who departed this life | on the 26th day of May | A. D. 1815 in the 50th | year of his age. | He had held several | important offices, and at | the time of his death was | one of the Justices of the | Supreme Judicial Court | of this Commonwealth."

He practiced law in Adams, Mass., and Williamstown, Mass. He was a State senator, 1817-18, and member of the executive council, 1821-22. He was a trustee of Williams College, 1809-30, and its treasurer, 1814-30. When a powerful and concentrated effort was made to remove Williams College to Northampton, Mass., Mr. Noble threw the whole weight of his influence against the measure, and thus defeated the designs of the president and a large majority of the trustees. He died in Portland, Me., while absent from home on business connected with the college. His remains were brought to Williamstown, and over them was erected a monument bearing the following inscription: "In memory of | the Hon. Daniel Noble, | who died Nov. 22, | 1830, | aged 54 years. | Sorrow not, even as those who have | no hope, for if we believe that Jesus | died and rose again, even so them | which sleep in Jesus will God | bring with him."

HON. WILLIAM HENRY NOBLE, s. of Daniel, was b. Sept. 22, 1788, and d. in Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 5, 1850, æ. 61. He was a tanner by trade, but during the latter part of his life, devoted a part of his time to agriculture. He was a man of medium stature, and had a very sharp and piercing black eye. Col. Noble was identified, politically, with the Bucktail party, with those called Democrats or Locofoco supporters of Jackson's and Van Buren's administrations. He was a member of the New York assembly, 1827-29; and a member of Congress, 1836-37. He lived successively in New Milford, Conn., and in Ballston Springs, Cato, and Rochester, N. Y. His three eldest children were b. in Ballston Springs, and the others in Cato. In an Auburn paper, published soon after his death, appears the following sketch of his character:

"Died at his residence in Rochester, Tuesday morning, Feb. 5th, Col. Wm. H. Noble, formerly of Cayuga County, in this State, in the 62d year of his age. Col. Noble had been a resident of the County of Cayuga more than thirty years, when a few months since he removed to Rochester. He has been called suddenly from among us, but his many good qualities as a man and a citizen, will cause his memory to be long cherished by a large circle of friends. His intelligence, his energy in business, his kind and social manners, made him in early life popular and influential, and the recipient of the confidence and honors of the people of the county. He has repeatedly represented them in the Legislature of this State, and was their representative in Congress during the administration of President Van Buren. The bereaved family are left to mourn the loss of a husband and father, who, in all the relations of private life, commanded their love and esteem by his devotion to their welfare. His funeral was attended on Thursday last, at Cato, his late residence, and the large assembly present, furnished a strong testimonial of the high respect in which he was held in the community that knew him best."

SEVENTH GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

Col. GEORGE HAYES NOBLE, s. of Curtis, was b. in Unadilla, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1803, and there d. July 27, 1847, æ. 42. He was a merchant. The Albany Argus thus notices his death:

"We are pained to announce the death of this estimable and much respected gentleman, who expired at his residence in Unadilla, Otsego County, on the morning of the 27th inst., of a disease of the kidneys, of some months' standing. In his native village, and wherever he was known, the withdrawal of one so favorably and honorably connected with the affairs of his times, in the freshness of life, and the meridian of his usefulness, will be felt as an event deeply to be deplored, and to his family and friends, irreparable. A mutual friend and correspondent, in communicating his death, writes us as follows, not for publication, but which we take the liberty to transcribe:

"Col. Noble has occupied no inconsiderable place in the public mind here, as a man of high intellectual powers, and extensive reading and intelligence. You knew him personally, and were not, I am sure, insensible to his worth. His fine qualities of mind and heart were devoted to the service of his friends, and to all who came within the sphere of his association, in his native village. His pen also has been often employed for their gratification and instruction. Politically he enjoyed a personal popularity beyond his party friends and associates, all confiding in his integrity and manliness of character. He was, when he died, postmaster at this place, and supervisor of the town. He has always been a professed believer in Christianity, and was much attached to the Episcopal church, of which he was a sincere, but unostentatious member.

"He was in the 44th year of his age, and died in the possession of his mental faculties, having scanned his books, and perused your paper yesterday as usual, although too feeble to sit up. He passed the day comfortably, and slept last night until two o'clock in the morning, when he awoke to undergo the pains of dissolution, and expired in one of the paroxysms of his disease, at half-past three."

"We sympathize with the surviving relatives, who so recently called to the death-bed of a beloved sister, Mrs. Donnelly of Catskill, now bow to this added stroke of affliction."

He m. Oct. 22, 1833, ELIZABETH BUTLER PAGE, b. in Unadilla, N. Y., Mch. 2, 1812, dau. of Sherman and Maria (Crocker) Page. They had no children. She m. (2) Nov. 20, 1856, Hon. Arthur Yates, b. in Otsego Co., N. Y., Feb. 7, 1807, s. of William Yates, b. in Derbyshire, England, Nov., 1767, who m. Apr. 25, 1802, Hannah Palmer, b. in Brookfield, Conn., Jan. 18, 1781. Hon. Arthur Yates, and Elizabeth his wife reside, 1876, in Waverly, Tioga Co., N. Y. From 1836-46, he was one of the judges of the Tioga Co. court.

Hon. CHARLES CURTIS NOBLE, s. of Curtis, was b. in Unadilla, N. Y., Jan. 10, 1806, and d. in Owego, N. Y., June 13, 1851, s. 45. The following article, copied from the Freeman's Journal, gives a truthful sketch of his life and character:

"A correspondent at Unadilla, the residence of the late Judge Noble, furnishes us," says the Albany Argus, "with some particulars of the circumstances attending his death, together with some incidents of his life, which cannot but be interesting to our readers, many of whom knew him well, and appreciated his sterling worth both in public and private life:

"Charles Curtis Noble was the second son of Curtis Noble, one of the earliest settlers of the town of Unadilla, a successful and enterprising merchant, extensively and favorably known for many years throughout that section of the State. He died some years ago, leaving a family of two sons, and daughters, and large connections, an ample fortune, and an unsullied name. The deceased was the oldest [second] son, and was in his 46th year at the time of his death. He was a graduate of Union College. He commenced his professional studies with Ezekiel Bacon of Utica, and completed them under James Clapp of Oxford. Upon his admission to the supreme court, in 1842, he formed a partnership in the practice of the law with the Hon. Stephen Strong of Owego, and continued this association for several years, and until the death of his father, when he returned to Unadilla, where he resided at the time of his death. The general esteem and confidence which he earned at Owego, and in all that section of the country, awaited him on his return to Unadilla. The office of supreme court commissioner he held for several years, and was subsequently the successor of the Hon. Jabez D. Hammond, as first judge of Otsego County. This last office he held in 1847, when the new constitution took effect. He was elected in 1849, to the Assembly from Otsego, and in that station distinguished himself as a safe and able legislator.

Judge Noble was attacked by the disease which terminated his life, in March last, and about four weeks ago, seeking relief from a change of residence, he became a welcome guest in the family of Judge Strong (with whom he was connected by marriage), and there, surrounded by kind and attentive friends, he breathed his last on the 18th inst. in the full possession of his mental faculties, and in the faith and with the hopes of a Christian. His remains were accompanied to the railway depot by a large procession, and conveyed to Deposit, whence they were taken to Unadilla by way of Bainbridge. There the remains were received by the friends and fellow-townsmen of the deceased, filling some thirty carriages, and accompanied about ten miles to Unadilla, where the funeral services were held in the Episcopal church, of which the deceased had long been a communicant, and an appropriate sermon was delivered by Rev. N. H. Adams. The scene was highly impressive, and the unusual circumstances attending it, evinced how deeply and generally the loss of the deceased is felt and deplored by all classes of society.

"We cannot better express our own high appreciation of the character of the deceased, than by giving place to the following eloquent and just tribute to his memory, from the pen of the Hon. Jabez D. Hammond, an intimate and warm personal friend:

'CHERRY VALLEY, June 21, 1851.

'My Dear Sir:

No case of mortality could have occurred in this county, which would have produced more general lamentation and heart-felt grief, than the death of Judge Noble. He has been taken from us in the vigor of life, and in the midst of his usefulness. He was for many years engaged in extensive practice as a lawyer, in this and adjoining counties. He has held the office of Supreme Court Commissioner, first Judge of Otsego County, and member of the legislature. All these high trusts he has discharged with distinguished ability and scrupulous integrity. I was for five years associated with him as one of the members of the Court of Common Pleas of this county, and therefore can speak from my own personal knowledge, of the purity and independence of his official conduct. He was a sound and well-read lawyer. But that for which he was most distinguished, was his amiability of temper and kindness of heart. In his political and professional collisions, he never afforded evidence of the least unkind feeling or illiberality to his opponents. His appearance was highly prepossessing, and his address was so frank and friendly, as instantly to enlist your feelings in his favor. A more purely virtuous man never lived. He was universally respected—he was more than respected, he was beloved by all. There may have been those who envied him, but I do not believe the human being now lives, who was an enemy to Charles C. Noble. His wife, a most amiable and excellent lady, and several young but highly promising children survive him. May the God of the widow and fatherless protect and comfort them."

He prepared for college at Geneva, N. Y., as is thought, under Dr. McDonald, and graduated at Union College, in 1828.

FRANCIS WILLIAM NOBLE, s. of Cyrenus, was b. in New Lisbon, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1826. He left Unadilla, N. Y., May 4, 1848, for Detroit, Mich., hoping to secure a clerkship on the lake steamers, in which business two of his brothers were then engaged. "I landed in Detroit," he writes, "not penniless, for I had one penny, a gift, which I have still, Feb. 7, 1876, in my possession." He immediately applied to Titus Doane, the husband of his cousin, Antoinette Noble, who employed him in shovelling gravel on the Michigan Central railroad. On the morning of the second day, he was promoted from a common laborer to time-keeper, and his wages increased from 6/ to 8/ per day. He soon after obtained a clerkship in the drug store of his brother, Garra B. Noble, and there remained until the following year, when he entered into the employ of Capt. E. B. Ward, as clerk of the steamer Champion, running from Grand Haven to Milwaukee and Sheboygan, and continued on the same for five years. For the two subsequent years, he was a merchant in Ypsilanti, Mich., and then removed to Detroit, and entered into partnership with his brother, Garra B. Noble, under the firm name of G. B. & F. W. Noble, in the grain, flour, feed, and commission business. His brother retiring after a year, he conducted the business alone for about two years. For the ensuing two years, he was street commissioner. In July, 1859, he again entered Capt. E. B. Ward's employment, first in the drafting-room with William F. Puffer, where he was engaged on machinery for rolling-mills, blast furnace, and steel work. For many years, down to the time of Capt. Ward's death, he was employed to look after the mineral department of his business. He held the position of mining engineer and mineral expert, and explored a vast amount of territory in various parts of the country, turning his attention particularly to iron and coal. He is now, 1876, senior partner of the firm of Noble & Brady, mining engineers and mineral experts, and also secretary of the Michigan State board of managers of the Centennial exhibition. Detroit has been his home for twenty years.

SYLVESTER GILBERT NOBLE, a. of Hon. Elnathan, was b. in Geneva, N. Y., March 12, 1819.

He left home, on the 10th of March, 1849, for California, by the overland route, being one of the company known as the "Wolverine rangers," numbering sixty-seven men, with eighteen wagons, fifty-four yoke of oxen, and many cows and horses. Soon after leaving the frontier, thinking to outstrip the train, Noble, with one companion, took ponies and provisions, and started on in advance. The first night, the Indians stole their ponies, leaving them with their heavy packs to pursue their way on foot. After a weary march of five hundred miles, on the 19th of October the eyes of the starving travelers were gladdened with the sight of the Sacramento valley. We have not space to tell the marvelous story of the sicknesses, hardships, and privations, which he endured from the time of leaving home, until he was once more safe in Unadilla. In that place he has since resided, engaged a part of the time in mercantile business, and a part in farming.

Rev. LOUIS LE GRAND NOBLE, s. of Sylvanus, was b. in New Lisbon, N. Y., Sept. 26, 1811. At the age of thirteen, he removed with his father, to Dexter, Mich. His studies preparatory to college were at a school in Wilmington, Del., under Rev. John B. Clemens, at an academy in Delhi, N. Y., under Rev. Thomas Judd, and at the preparatory department of Bristol academy, in Bristol, Penn. In 1834, he entered the Freshman class in Bristol College, and in 1835, by extra study, was able to join the Junior class, and graduated in 1837. The same year he became a member of the General Protestant Episcopal Seminary in New York city, and graduated in 1840. Having been ordained as a deacon, in St. Peter's church, New York, he was during the summer an assistant of Rev. Dr. A. Potter, of St. Peter's church, Albany, N. Y. In the fall of the same year, he went to Perquimons Co., N. C., and was a planter's chaplain, preaching for the whites in the morning, and the blacks in the afternoon. Soon after, he had in connection, a charge in Hertford, the county seat, and thence extending his labors to Elizabeth City, N. C., became rector of Christ church, and there remained until 1844. In the summer of the last-named year, he accepted a call to St. Luke's church in Catskill, N. Y., and after a ministry of ten years, in the summer of 1854 became rector of Grace church in Chicago, Ill., where he remained until the fall of 1855. Having for a time performed missionary labor in Glens Falls and Lake George, N. Y., on the 4th of July, 1857, he took charge of Trinity church in Fredonia, N. Y. In Sept. 1858, he accepted a call to the church of the Holy Trinity, in Hudson City, a suburb of Jersey City, N. J., and there remained until the spring of 1872. He then became professor of English literature, in St. Stephen's Episcopal College, Annandale, N. Y., where he still, 1877, remains. Mr. Noble is a man of genius, and a ripe scholar, honored by Griswold with a place among American poets. While at Catskill, he formed the acquaintance of the artist, Thomas Cole, and after the death of the latter, became his literary executor, wrote his life and edited his papers. In 1856, he published a duodecimo volume, embracing his Lady Angeline, and other poems. In 1857, he pronounced a poem at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., which has been printed. He subsequently made a voyage with Church, the painter, to the Northern seas, and on his return, published, in 1862, After ice-bergs with a painter; a summer voyage to Labrador, and around Newfoundland.

Ford's independent company attached to 58d Ill. Cavalry. During his service, he was transferred to several different regiments, and at the time he was wounded, Oct. 28, 1863, at Vincents Cross Road, Miss., was 1st Lieut. of Co. B, 1st Alabama (Loyal) Cavalry. Previous to his death, the Union army had retreated forty miles. A Southern woman took him to her house and nursed him like a mother, during his week of suffering, and after his death, with her two little children as her only companions, carried his remains, in a cart drawn by a yoke of young steers, within the Union lines, to the camp of his regiment. To those expressing surprise at her courage and humane feelings toward an enemy and a stranger, her answer was, "In the Southern army I have two sons, and for this wounded man I have only done what I should wish some Northern mother might do for them in similar circumstances." Surely such Christian charity will not go unrewarded.

Gen. WILLIAM HENRY NOBLE, s. of Rev. Birdsey Glover, was b. in Newtown, Conn., Aug. 18, 1813.

He prepared for college 1824-28, at Capt. Alden Partridge's famous "American literary, scientific and military academy," in Middletown, Conn., entered Washington (now Trinity) College at Hartford, Conn., in 1828, removed in 1830 his connection to Yale College, and there graduated in 1832. He taught school for Rev. Ambrose Todd, D. D., in Stamford, Conn., 1832-34; read law with Joseph Wood, in Bridgeport, Conn., 1834-36, and was admitted to the bar in 1836. For eight years, he was clerk of the courts for Fairfield county, for two or three years State's attorney, and at one time the unsuccessful candidate of the Democratic party for Congress. In connection with Phineas T. Barnum, he planned and laid out that part of Bridgeport, Conn., known as East Bridgeport, a large portion of which came to him by inheritance from his father. Building lots, streets, and a park were laid out; two bridges built across the Housatonic River, and large manufacturing companies, the Wheeler & Wilson and Howe Sewing machine and others, were induced to locate there, so that what was formerly a mere cow-pasture, has become a thriving city.

In the Civil war he was mustered into the service Aug. 28, 1862, at Bridgeport, Conn., as colonel of the 17th Reg. Conn. Vols. He was ordered first to the defense of Baltimore and Washington, thence to Sigel's 11th Corps, reserve to Burnside's army of the Potomac. In the battle of Chancellorsville, in 11th Corps under Howard, he was wounded, a ball cutting off the main artery of his left arm, above the elbow. Having recovered from his wound, he reached his regiment in time for the last day's fight (July 3, 1863) at Gettysburg, Penn., went in and through the town, capturing rebel stragglers, and with the army followed Lee into Virginia. Thence he was sent with his brigade to South Carolina, under Gen. Ames (subsequently governor of Mississippi), was in the trenches at the siege of Wagner, and on Folly and Morris Islands until Wagner fell, and Sumter (on which he saw the first gun fired) was battered to a sand-heap. He was sent thence to Florida, first to Jacksonville, in command of a brigade, thence, Dec. 22, 1864, to headquarters at St. Augustine, in command of seven regiments and batteries, and all the country east of the St. John's River, a district larger than Connecticut. He was captured by the confederates Dec. 25, 1864, and taken to Macon, Ga., and thence to Andersonville, Ga., and was there in the officers' prison, in sight of the "great pen," for six weeks. Being released in March, 1865, with one thousand prisoners under his charge, he went by foot and rail to Vicksburg, thence to St. Louis, thence in command of one thousand paroled prisoners to Annapolis, Md. He was mustered out of the service at Port Royal, S. C., in July 1865. During the same month or the next, on the recommendation of U. S. Grant, he was breveted brigadier general.

Bridgeport has been his home since 1834. He is a good public speaker, and a man of culture and broad views. Horticulture is his hobby, and he has introduced more new and rare shrubs and plants than any other man not a nurseryman. His portrait may be found in a group facing page 354, of Croffut and Morris' Military and civil history of the War of 1861-65. Hartford, 1865..

HON. CHARLES NOBLE, s. of Deodatus, was b. in Williamstown, Mass., July 4, 1797, and d. in Detroit, Mich., Dec. 26, 1874, æ. 77.

Having graduated at Williams College, in 1815, he read law in Williamstown, with his uncle, Hon. Daniel Noble, and in Pittsfield, Mass. He started for the West, in 1818, and after a short residence in Cleveland, O., removed in 1820 to Frenchtown, now Monroe, Mich. That place continued to be his home, except from 1850-53, and 1867-74, when he resided in Detroit, Mich. He held many public offices, as register of deeds, district-attorney, postmaster, Indian agent, member of the general assembly, member of the legislative council, 1828-29, president judge of the county court, 1846-50, and surveyor general of the district embracing Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, 1849-53. In the obituary record of the graduates of Williams College, for the year 1874-75, appears the following estimate of the character of Mr. Noble:

"Older citizens remember Mr. Noble as one of quite a large number of earnest and well educated men, who half a century ago planted themselves in Monroe, and thence influenced, and to a large extent controlled the politics, and what were then regarded as the early enterprises of the State. The results of Mr. Noble's active life are now seen and enjoyed through a wide extent of country, by a large and appreciative population. He has left a bright and spotless reputation, and a memory which will be fondly cherished for many long years to come. Mr. Noble was a man of deep convictions and decided opinions in all religious matters. In the year 1831, he first connected himself with the Presbyterian church, and for a number of years was a ruling elder in the church of that denomination at Monroe. Shortly after his removal to Detroit, he became a ruling elder in the First Presbyterian church there, and so remained until his death. Both in Monroe and in Detroit, Mr. Noble had, by his genial manners, his sterling integrity, his inflexible uprightness of life, gathered around him a wide circle of friends, who will lament sincerely that he is no longer their fellow citizen and friend. As the good mariner, when he draws near the home port, furls his sails and enters its gates softly, so did this good man with all dignity of expression and confidence of faith, turn his face towards Heaven in his last days, and enter into his rest. 'The memory of the just is blessed.'"

HON. DAVID ADDISON NOBLE, s. of Deodatus, was b. in Williams-town, Mass., Nov. 9, 1802, and d. in Monroe, Mich., Oct. 13, 1876, m. 73. He graduated in 1825, at Williams College, was admitted, Aug., 1829, to practice in the Supreme court of the state of New York; represented Monroe, in 1845 and 1846, in the legislature of Michigan, and was elected representative in Congress for the session of 1853-54.

The following extract from the Detroit Free Press, gives the principal facts in the history of his life:

"David Addison Noble . . . was fitted for college in the school of Parson [Moses] Hallock, in Plainfield, Mass., and entered Williams College in 1821, from which institution he graduated with honors, in 1825. In college he was a good scholar, distinguished for accuracy and soundness rather than for fluent recitations and showy acquisitions. . . . In September, 1825, he entered the law office of Hermanus Bleeker, in Albany, N. Y., remaining there until the winter of 1826, when he went to Hudson, N. Y., where he entered upon his literary work as assistant editor of the Columbiad. In the following year he moved to New York city, entering the law office of Benjamin Clark, on Franklin Square, at the same time giving lessons in French in Bancell's academy. He was a fine Greek and Latin scholar, and during the winter was engaged to correct for the publishers the proof-sheets for a Greek work. Subsequently he opened a law office with David Logan, at No. 4 Pine street. He was in the practice of his profession about two years in New York, and for a short time was in partnership with Hon. Charles O'Connor.

"In 1831 Mr. Noble removed to Monroe, Michigan, where he has since continued to reside. He here opened a law office with Warner Wing. He was an accomplished French scholar, and here it was of the greatest advantage among the French population, so numerous at that time, enabling him to do an extensive business for them, pleading their cases in that language.

"He always devoted himself assiduously to the practice of his profession, and as a consequence, with his sterling abilities and good attainments, was successful, establishing an enviable reputation. It was as a counselor that Mr. Noble was chiefly distinguished, his thoroughly-disciplined mind, his habits of patient research, and his superior judgment peculiarly qualifying him to arrive at correct legal conclusions. The bar of which he was a member numbered in its ranks such lawyers as Robert McClelland, Alpheus Felch, and that well-known jurist, the late Judge Warner Wing.

"He was not only active in his profession, but entered with the same vigor into public life. He was elected Recorder in 1838, and while acting in this capacity, drew up the city charter. He was twice elected Alderman, and in 1842 was elected Mayor. In 1845, Mr. Noble was chosen to represent his county in the Legislature, which he did with ability, and to the satisfaction of the people of the county. On Nov. 10th, 1846, Mr. Noble secured the charter of the Michigan Southern Railroad. He opposed the sale of the public roads, the Michigan Central, etc., and then fought the House on the bill and prevented its passage. In 1847, Mr. Noble was appointed a member of the Harbor and River convention at Chicago. Subsequently he was appointed one of the committee of five to carry out the wishes of the convention, at which time he wrote a full statistical report of the commerce of the lakes. In 1852, Mr. Noble was elected to Congress from the Second District. In 1858, he was appointed manager of the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railroad, which position he held four years."

REV. MASON NOBLE, D. D., s. of Deodatus, was b. in Williamstown, Mass., Mch. 18, 1809. He fitted for college, partly at Stockbridge, Mass., under Rev. Jared Curtis, and partly at the academy in Williamstown, and graduated at Williams College, in 1827. His theological studies were pursued at Princeton Theological Seminary, 1828-29, and also for a time with Rev. Dr. Nathan S. S. Beman of Troy, N. Y. He was a tutor in Williams College, 1829-31; was ordained, as an evangelist, Feb. 15, 1832, at Williamstown. He was installed, Dec. 17, 1832, as pastor of the Fourth Presb. church in Washington, D. C., and was dismissed July 21, 1839; was installed, Oct. 14, 1839, as pastor of the Eleventh Presb. church in New York city, and dismissed, June 9, 1850. In June 1850, he commenced his labors in the Associated Reformed church in Baltimore, Md., as assistant pastor with Rev. Dr. Duncan, who had become entirely disabled by paralysis, and continued there about one year. He opened, in 1851, a young ladies' school in Washington, D. C., but retired from that position in Mch., 1852, to accept a chaplaincy in the United States navy. While teaching in Washington, he organized a new Presbyterian church on 6th street, and continued his labors in that field, while performing his duties as chaplain in the Navy Yard.

While chaplain of the navy, he made at least one cruise to the Mediterranean, and during the late Civil war was chaplain of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. At the latter place, writes Dr. Noble, "I preached to five hundred young naval officers every Sabbath, and read the Bible to them, and prayed every morning, as they stood before me, in military array. I felt that this was probably the most responsible, if not the most useful portion of my ministerial life."

He was retired from active duties as chaplain in 1871, at the age of sixty-two, as the law requires, but is still a chaplain on half-pay. He is now, 1876, in strong health, preaching every Sabbath, as pastor elect, to the Sixth Presb. church in Washington, which is free from debt, and numbers about one hundred and thirty families, and two hundred communicants.

Mr. Noble received, in 1866, the degree of D. D. from his Alma Mater. He has published, 1. A Thanksgiving discourse occasioned by the departure of the Asiatic cholera from the city of Washington, preached in 1832; 2. An introduction to the life of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Dwight of Constantinople, in 1838; 3. Sermon on the death of President Harrison, preached and published in New York in 1841; 4. Speech on home missions, delivered in the Broadway Tabernacle, in New York, in 1845; 5. A series of letters from Canada, published in 1846; 6. A series of letters from foreign lands, extending through the years 1855-57; 7. Essay on the extraordinary usefulness of David M. Wilson of Washington, 1858; 8. Tribute to the character of Rev. Joshua N. Danforth, D. D., 1862; 9. Memorial discourse, occasioned by the death of President Lincoln, preached before the United States Naval Academy, 1865; 10. Centennial discourse at Williamstown, Mass., 1865; 11. Speech before the Seaman's Friend society, on the claims of the American navy upon the sympathy of American Christians.

Portraits of Rev. Dr. Noble and his wife, painted at Washington, in 1838 or 1839, by Charles B. King, an eminent artist, are, 1876, in possession of their son, Rev. Joseph F. Noble of Hempstead, L. I.

"For nine months of the time," writes Mr. Comerford, "I was a prisoner in the Southern rebel prisons, in Libby, Castle Thunder, Belle Island, Danville, Greenboro', Salisbury, Camp York, Salisbury, and Richmond, where I was exchanged. I laid in Richmond hospital six weeks, under the care of the 'Sisters of Mercy,' and at Annapolis hospital, Md., for five weeks, and was then sent to New York and mustered out. At Libby, Belle Island, and Castle Thunder, our rations were four or five ounces of wheat bread and two ounces of pork, in twenty-four hours; in the other prisons, one pint of corn meal in twenty-four, or often in forty-eight hours, without any salt, and frequently without any water or fire with which to cook it. None of the prisons were covered except Libby and Castle Thunder. We were exposed to all kinds of weather, were naked and covered with vermin, and suffered from cold, hunger, and thirst. Our sufferings were beyond description. When I was taken prisoner, I weighed one hundred and seventy-six pounds, and when released, but eighty-six pounds, was covered with sores, and in Salisbury prison lost the use of my limbs, so that when released, I had to be carried about on a stretcher. I shall never recover from the effects of my imprisonment."

SECOND GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS NOBLE, SON OF THOMAS.

Dea. THOMAS NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in Springfield, Mass., Jan. 14, 1666, and d. in Westfield, Mass., July 29, 1750, æ 84. He put himself under the watch of Westfield church, Oct. 11, 1696, "entered into state of church fellowship," June 4, 1699, and was ordained as deacon, May 25, 1712.

In town business he was much employed, having been chosen selectman in 1716, 1720, and 1722, and moderator of most of the town meetings, from 1717 to 1726. The following extracts from the town records will show how often he was called by his fellow citizens to act upon important committees:

"At a legal Town meeting Oct. 31, 1718 those assembled at said meeting made choice of Deacon Noble, Capt. Ashley, Lieutenant Dewey, Daniel Bagg, & Ensign Gun, to go and treat with John Gun senior, and with y^e widow Noble concerning a place to set a new meeting house & the Terms their of and to bring report their at, unto the Town at the next meeting.

"May 1, 1719, their was Chosen Cap. John Ashley, Deacon Thomas Noble, and Samuel Root to run and settle the line between Northampton and Westfield, to joyn with Northampton men to carey on said work, either where it was formerly run, reviving the old marks and monuments, or by a new running by the needle, which the aforesaid 3 men with one of the selectmen have full power to joyn with Hamton men in, and to make a finall settlement of said bounds."

Difficulties respecting the location of the new meeting house having arisen, and the Westfield people being unable themselves to decide the matter, on the 17th Nov., 1719, the town appointed Dea. Nathaniel Munn, Lieut. John Merrick, and Benjamin Leonard of Springfield, to locate said house, and "at the same meeting the Town mad Choice of Deacon Thomas Noble, Deacon David Ashley, and John Shepard, to accompany the Comitey above chosen, to enform and to enlighten them in respect to the surcomstances of the Town." Having however at length fixed upon a site, the town voted, June 6th, 1720, "that they would begin to raise the meeting house on wendens Day morning, at 2 hours by sun in the morning, the 8th day of this instant, attending sd. work at the beat of drum every morning, until it is over." Every man, from seventeen years and upwards, was to assist duly in raising, under penalty of three shillings per day for absence, unless excuse should be rendered, for whose refreshment the committee had "liberty to prepare four or five barrels of beer at the Town's charge."

"At the same meeting it was voted, that Captain Phelps, Deacon Noble, and Deacon Ashley should go and desier Mr. Taylor to come to the place of raising the meeting howse, then and their at the time appointed, to seek to God for his guide and protection in the work of raising."

At a meeting held Oct. 11, 1721, the town made choice of "Cap^m Phelps, Deacon Noble, Cap^m Ashley, and Deacon Ashley to go and treat with Mr. Taylor concerning his removing to the new meeting house, to attend the worship of God their. At the same meeting, it was voted that if Mr. Taylor will go to y^e new meeting house to carey on the public worship, the comitey hath liberty to remove sum of the timber & carey from the old meeting house & use it towards finishing the new meeting house."

At a town meeting held Jan. 9, 1722, "Capt. Ashley was made Choice of to go & discours with Mr. Taylor concerning giving a minister a call. At the same meeting Deacon Noble was Chosen also to go & discours with Mr. Taylor upon the same account. At the same meeting it was voated that the town will send for Mr. Brown at New Haven to come up & carey on the work of the ministrey with us, three or four months in order to a settlement. At the same meeting it was voated to give Mr. Brown reasonable reward for his labors amongst us, for the time he shall continueer with us. At the same meeting, Deacon Thomas Noble was chosen as a messenger, to go in the Town's behalf to give Mr. Brown a call, & also voated to give Thomas Ashley five or six shillings to encourage him to go & accompany Deacon Noble in his Journey."

At a town meeting held Jan. 18, 1723, "Deacon Noble and John Root were chosen a Comitey, to go and treat with Mr. Stiles concerning keeping school for the year ensuing, & to hier him, if his terms exceed not forty pounds pr year."

At a town meeting Aug. 30, 1723, "it was voted to give Mr. Stiles a call in tothe ministry to help Mr. Taylor. At the same meeting, it was voated to give Mr. Stiles fifty pounds to preach one halfe the time for the year ensuing. At the same meeting Deacon Noble, Cap^m Ashley, Deacon Ashley, Ensine Gun and Thomas Ingersole were chosen a comitey to go and agree with Mr. Stiles as about s^d, and to make report to the town of what they have done."

At a town meeting, Mch 9, 1725, "it was voated to hier Mr. Bull to help Mr. Taylor carry on the work of the ministrey for the space of half a year from the time of his finishing the school service now in, and to give him for his labour Twenty five pounds for half a year in money. At the same meeting it was voted that Deacon Noble, John Root, and Jonathan Ashley shall be a comitey, to go and agree with Mr. Bull accordingly & [provided that] Mr. Bull excepts and agrees or complies with the proposals above mentioned."

May 26, 1726, "At a Legual Town meeting, Deacon Thomas Noble, Deacon Ashley & Cap. Dewey were chosen a comitey to go to Mr. Taylor and discors with him to see whether or no he be willing to lay down preaching."

Dea. THOMAS NOBLE was a farmer, and resided about two and one-half miles east of the present centre of Westfield, upon the farm afterwards occupied by his son Thomas and grandson Stephen. After the death of the latter, it passed into the hands of Ambrose Day, and is now, 1877, owned by his son, Rev. Ambrose Day.

Rev. SETH NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Apr. 15, 1743, and d. in Franklinton, now Columbus, O., Sept. 15, 1807, æ. 64. Though a good Latin scholar, he does not appear to have been a college graduate. Two of his grandchildren insist that he was for a time connected either with Dartmouth or Yale College. He joined the Cong. church at Westfield, Mass., May 5, 1770. The Maugerville people say that he was ordained at Newburyport, Mass. His letters show that he was well acquainted in that place. His first settlement in the ministry was on the 15th June, 1774, over the Cong. church in Maugerville, Nova Scotia. The first settlers of this town came from Rowley, Mass., and its immediate vicinity, about the year 1764. Maugerville is situated seventy miles up the river St. Johns, and belongs now to New Brunswick, which, in 1784, was separated from Nova Scotia. The New England settlers immediately established divine worship, and speedily erected a meeting-house. "From all that I can learn," writes Rev. Henry Wilkes, D. D., of Montreal, Oct. 12, 1842, after a personal visit, "this spot was the nucleus whence proceeded most of the intelligence and piety to be found in this part of New Brunswick." The first religious teacher, who came out with the settlers, was a Mr. Wellman, who soon returned to New England. Then came Mr. Briggs, and after him, Mr. Webster. Mr. Noble, the first pastor, was settled June 15, 1774. Little is known respecting him at Maugerville, except that he actively sided with the American colonies in their conflict with Great Britain. The following letter to a nephew in Westfield, who had spent some time in Maugerville, shows us this, as well as his early ministerial success:

"DEAR KINSMAN:

"I received yours of the 7th and 10th, with joy. Had you been more particular respecting the national difficulties, it would have been an addition to my joy. I have enjoyed a usual state of health. I took a bosom companion the last of November. She has been pressed down under a weight and burden of her sins, almost ever since we entered into that near relation, but I trust, within a few days past, has happily taken sanctuary in Christ, the only ark of safety.

"There is at present a considerable shaking of the dry bones among us, and several have happily put on Christ, which is life eternal. Simeon Towns is daily rejoicing in the rock of his salvation. Asa Kimball and wife are brought out into marvellous light. John Wasson was greatly troubled in mind during his absence. It was pressed upon him to return to this place, which he did with Capt. Lovet, and is now almost incessantly praising and adoring the lowly Jesus. Andrew Tibbetts and wife, Mr. Gellison's wife, Thomas Saunders, Sarah Coy, and Alice Potter seem under the preparatory work of the Spirit. . . . My wife with myself desires to be remembered to you, to Mr. Granger, to your mother, and all my kindred and acquaintance.

"From your friend and humble servant,

"SETH NOBLE.

"MAUGERVILLE, 7th Feb. 1776.

"P. S. I send this letter by Capt. Row, tho' it is uncertain whether he goes farther than Machias. I shall expect you in the spring, if there is any passing. I should be glad to take Medad Noble till he is 21, except he should be greatly bent on learning a trade, and if he is, I will endeavor to get him a good place at Newbury Port. Pray advise with his mother and my brethren about it, and especially with him. If he and they think it best, pray bring him down with you—I will do as well by him as I would by my own. Mr. Saunders has done considerable labor on your land. We have had something of a cold season of late, though not colder than it is many times at Westfield. We have about eighteen inches of snow. Mr. Makin died soon after you went away, but nobody since. Jeremiah Howland and Polly Buber were published last Sabbath, and Israel Easty and Salome Burpe. Josiah Whitney is married.

"It seems to be still as to political affairs. If you could bring a Suffield diahturner, it might be a benefit to the person and to this place. A saddler is much wanted, for there have been near a dozen horses purchased here since you left us. There were sundry opportunities to get a passage from New England here last fall. We have a number of vessels lately come in from over the Bay. We have unanimously signed a paper, to join New England in the national struggle, and are making all possible preparations for war. The fleet and army that went from Boston to Halifax have sailed, we suppose, for England, though they pretended they were going to Quebec.

"MAY 30, 1776.

"To MR. AARON DEWEY,

"Westfield,

"County of Hampshire,

"Massachusetts Bay."

Rev. Seth Noble's ministry at Manguerville continued until 1777,* when upon the arrival of an armed British schooner, he, to avoid taking the oath of allegiance to the British crown, which it came to enforce, fled, narrowly escaping with his life. It is the tradition in New Brunswick, that Mr. Noble eluded his pursuers, by fleeing to the house of a Mrs. Wasson, who concealed him under a bed upon which lay her daughter, apparently suffering from a severe malady.

Hardly had he reached New England, before we find him shouldering his musket in defense of the rights of America against the British crown. On the Massachusetts muster rolls, [Vol. 35: 286,] his name appears as a private in the roll of non-commissioned officers and soldiers in the companies of Capts. Dyer and West, who marched to St. John in Nova Scotia, in May, 1777, his time of service being two months and five days. He is known to have been at Machias, Me., May 29, 1777; at Aukpaye, above Manguerville, on St. John's river, June 11, and June 29, 1777; and again at Machias, Aug. 14-15, when the British fleet under Sir George Collier attacked that town. Two days later, at that place, "Sunday, Aug. 17, Parson Noble preached a sermon on the late event," i. e., the repulse of the British fleet.

Where he was, and how engaged during most of the time between 1777 and 1786, is unknown. In 1779 he was in Woburn, Mass., and declines an order for a mission to the eastern parts of Maine, which he had received from the General Court of Massachusetts, in the following characteristic letter:

* In 1789, the meeting-house in which Mr. Noble had preached, was removed to that part of the town which is now Sheffield, and over this society, which amid various trials and discouragements has always remained steadfast to Congregational principles, on the 18th July, 1876, Rev. Joseph Barker, a grandnephew of Mrs. Noble, was settled.

WOBURN, June 7, 1779.

HON^d GENTLEMEN:

"I recd. an order for a mission to the eastern settlements, yesterday, by the hands of Col. Baldwin, but find[ing] its contents so much different from what I had expected, must decline the undertaking. I was informed the mission was to be on the river Penobscot only, but find I was misinformed. There are such a variety of islands, and other inhabitants contiguous to the water—those seas are so much frequented by their cruisers, that I think it too dangerous for a proscribed person to accept of. I suppose you are not unacquainted with the amazing scarcity of the necessaries of life, in those parts. Add to this, the reward offered me, when laid out in provision or clothing, will not purchase more than one dollar would in 1775.

"From a friend to those liberties which God and nature has bestowed on mankind.

"SETH NOBLE.

"To the whole Court."

Rev. Mr. Noble's son Joseph is known to have been born in New Market, N. H., June 13, 1783. A letter from Humphrey Pickard of Manguerville, to Mr. Noble, dated June 14, 1784, in reply to letters which he had written, asking for a dismission from that church, is also directed to New Market. His brother Thomas writes him there, May 21, 1785. To the same place he directs, Feb. 6, 1786, a letter to his wife from Hallowell, Me. During these years he could not have been preaching there, for Rev. Nathaniel Ewers was then their pastor. According to Minutes of the ministry and churches of New Hampshire (in Cong. Quarterly, xviii: 283), Rev. Seth Noble for three years ministered to a now extinct Presb. church in Seabrook, N. H. He may have been preaching at the latter place, while a resident of New Market.

For several Sabbaths prior to Sept. 6, 1785, Mr. Noble had preached in that part of Hallowell which is now Augusta., Me., and at a town meeting held on that day, the committee raised to procure preaching was directed to hire him "to continue his services until the middle of the ensuing March." The efforts of the committee were successful, and Mr. Noble preached sixteen Sabbaths, for which the town paid him £26 10s. Notwithstanding the engagement with Mr. Noble, when the Rev. William Hazlitt appeared, with a letter of recommendation from Samuel Vaughan of Boston, a committee consisting of Joseph North, Henry Sewall, and Daniel Cony were chosen to return the thanks of the town to Mr. Vaughan, and request Mr. Hazlitt to continue his services for two months. But the people judged best to settle neither of the above gentlemen, for at a town meeting held Apr. 1, 1786, the names of Rev. Seth Noble and Rev. William Hazlitt were presented to the town, as candidates for settlement in the work of the ministry, and were both rejected.

Rev. Mr. Noble shortly after makes his appearance at Kenduskeag (now Bangor). He was probably drawn thither by the influence of his friend, Col. Jonathan Eddy, who had settled in township No. 10, Penobscot river (Eddington), upon a grant made June 24, 1785, by the state of Massachusetts to the Nova Scotia exiles. At this place Mr. Noble himself received three hundred acres of land. When he came, in 1786, Kenduskeag had no organized church, and on the 7th of June, 1786, he was engaged as a settled religious teacher and preacher, at an annual salary of £70. He was inducted into office, Sept. 10, 1786, under some ancient oaks, that stood on the square bounded by Oak, Ash, York, and Hancock streets, Bangor. Rev. Daniel Little of Wells, Me., gave him the right hand of fellowship. Mr. Noble preached the sermon on the occasion.

To Mr. Noble, Bangor is said to have been indebted for its present name. Entrusted in 1790, with an agency to procure the incorporation of the town, he was directed by a vote of the plantation, to have Sunbury inserted in the act, either because appropriate to its pleasant appearance, or because the name of a precinct where Mr. Noble had once resided. Being an excellent singer and passionately fond of the solid old minor tune, Bangor, when the legislative committee asked what the town should be called, he requested them to insert Bangor instead of Sunbury.

The broad parish to which Mr. Noble ministered, embraced what is now Bangor, Brewer, Eddington, Hampden, Holden, and Orrington. No church edifice seems to have been erected, but during his continuance there, "the meetings were generally held during the summer, in a barn south of Penjewalk stream, and in such other places as would accommodate the worshippers." His field of labor was a hard one, the country being new, and the morals of the people having suffered from the long war through which they had passed. According to the custom prevailing in many places, he was compelled to collect his own salary, a task attended with no little difficulty, as the following letter plainly shows:

"To Col. Jonathan Eddy, Maj. Robert Treat, Capt. John Crosby, Mr. Elisha Nevers, and the rest of the committee chosen to make proposals to settle the gospel on Penobscot river, June 7, 1786.

PENOBSCOT RIVER, Aug. 21, 1790.

GENTLEMEN:

"Sundry attempts have been made for a settlement between the people and myself; but all to no effect. When I settled here, I consented to accept 20 pounds less than what was really necessary to support my family, because the people said they were poor. Still, to relieve them of the burden, I have been at the expense to collect a great part of what has been collected. Very little thanks have I had for the trouble I have been to. I was desired to draw a bond for the people to sign for my support, which was rejected, and another drawn, (unknown to me,) which hath deprived me of one-half of the sum proposed. I am willing to do in this and all cases, as I would be done by; but necessity compels me to say, I must have my pay.

"I must farther tell you I shall look to no other persons for a settlement, but that committee which covenanted with me on June 7, 1786, to give me 70 pounds annual salary. What you then did, is as binding as a note of hand. I am sorry to take any coercive measures; but I tell you again, I must have my pay immediately.

"I am, gentlemen, with due respect,

Your most obedient,

Humble servant,

To the Committee.

SETH NOBLE."

To eke out a scanty support for a growing family, he was obliged to resort to the cultivation of his farm, and the instruction of youth in English branches, and also in singing. "He was a good singer," says Dea. William Boyd of Bangor, "and had a clear and pleasant tenor voice. He taught those who were natural vocalists to sing by note, and was the first teacher of sacred music in the place."

Those who knew Mr. Noble personally, at Bangor, have long since passed away. Mrs. Thomas Howard of Bangor, now deceased, who knew him intimately, says: "Mr. Noble was a gifted man, and preached well with notes, was a good neighbor, a moral man, industrious, and excellent in times of sickness. In 1798 [1797], the sums subscribed for his support, were not paid. Some of the subscribers were dead, and some had moved away. His living being reduced, he returned to New Market, and never came back to Bangor." The late Rev. George Shepard, D.D., for many years a professor in Bangor Theological Seminary, who was personally acquainted with many of his parishioners in that vicinity, says of him: "He was evangelical in his doctrine, and faithful in his preaching, as one remarked of him, 'he unsheathed the sword of the Spirit and turned the point upon the hearer.'"

Having resigned his charge, on account of insufficient support, on the 10th of Nov., 1797, he left Bangor, and returned to New Market, N. H., arriving there on the 14th of November. His family joined him on the 17th of the same month, and they soon commenced housekeeping. While a resident there, he supplied vacant pulpits in that and neighboring towns, most of the time. On the 21st of May, 1798, he agreed to preach for six months at New Market. He is also believed to have supplied for a time the churches in East Kingston, Exeter, Kensington, Pittsfield, Rye, Salisbury, and Stratham, all in New Hampshire. He is known to have commenced singing-schools, Dec. 25, 1797, in Newfield, Me., and Jan. 5, 1798, in Lampert River, N. H.

While at New Market, he suffered a heavy affliction in the death of his first-born child, Seth, a promising young man of twenty-one years. Late in October, 1798, a vessel having on board, among others, Mr. Noble's eldest son, and Major Treat's son, Robert, both of Bangor, and Silvia Knapp of Eddington, bound from Bangor to Boston, in the midst of a thick and cold snow-storm, becoming unmanageable by the breaking of her boom, was wrecked on Boon Island, and all the passengers and crew lost. In Mr. Noble's Diary are found the following entries:

"Oct. 20, 1798. O death! my son Seth lost at sea; and all who were with him; supposed to be at Boon Island. All in number who were lost was 26." "Nov. 5. Cool. Went to Ipswich, on my way to Sandy Bay [Rockport, Mass.]." "Nov. 6. Pleasant, went to sd. bay; and got my poor son's clothes." "Nov. 7. Returned home with a heavy heart."

On the succeeding Sabbath, Nov. 11th, Mr. Noble preached to his people a most pathetic discourse, expressive of Christian sorrow and Christian resignation, from 2 Kings, iv: 26, the words of Elisha to his servant Gehazi, when he saw the Shunamite riding in haste toward Mt. Carmel: "Run now, I pray thee, to meet her, and say unto her, Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with the child? And she answered, It is well."

Having resided in New Market for two years, he left that place on the 29th of November, 1799, and with his family started for Westfield, Mass. On the 6th of December he reached his destination. For the next sixteen months he continued to dwell in the midst of his kindred, from whom he had been so long separated, and found constant employment in the supply of pulpits in Becket, Blandford, Feeding Hills, Ireland, (the last two being then parishes in West Springfield,) Montgomery, Russell, and Springfield. On the 13th of April, 1801, he removed to Montgomery, Mass., and ministered regularly to the church established there, January 30, 1797, until the succeeding 4th of November, when he was installed their first pastor. Rev. Noah Atwater of Westfield preached his installation sermon from 2 Tim. 4:7. The Rev. Elisha D. Barrett of Assumption, Ill., born Jan. 16, 1790, one of the oldest Presbyterian clergymen in the United States, and his sister, Mrs. Joanna Allyn of Holyoke, Mass., born Dec. 19, 1791, both natives of Montgomery, remember the Rev. Seth Noble perfectly.

"I can say," writes the former, under date of May 8, 1876, "that I well remember Rev. Seth Noble. He was tall, and slim, but very active and energetic. His step was quick and firm and his gait graceful. He wore a white wig, which he used to powder. He was of a lively, social disposition, and agreeable in his manners. As a man, he was much respected and esteemed. I was too young at that time to be a competent judge of his scholarship, but to my youthful mind, he was a student. As a preacher, he was sound and able. His sermons, I recollect, were well prepared, unique, systematic, and evangelical. I do not remember any difficulty between him and his people, as the cause of his removal. The society, I know, was weak, and the salary must have been small, and raised with difficulty. A claim which he had upon land in Ohio, was, I think, his inducement to remove to that state."

Mrs. Allyn, in letters dated May 5, and May 12, 1876, confirms in every respect the testimony of her brother, as to the character of Mr. Noble, and the esteem in which he was held at home and abroad, both as a man, a pastor, and a preacher. She also adds that he was an excellent singer, and taught singing-schools in Montgomery, and also generally sang in church. "I can even now," she writes, "hear his sweet voice."

The only printed productions, known, from the pen of Mr. Noble, are two sermons preached at Westhampton, Mass., June 26, 1802, from 2 Cor. 1:22, which were published at Northampton, by T. M. Pomeroy, in 1804, making a pamphlet of nineteen pages.

In his letter dated Sept. 22, 1801, accepting the call of the Montgomery church, Mr. Noble confidently predicted that the salary which they offered him, would be insufficient for the support even of "a small family." Partly perhaps on that account, he expressly provided, on the one hand, that if at any time, two-thirds of the church and congregation should wish the pastoral relation dissolved, they were to "part in peace;" and on the other,

"after suitable notice," he was to have liberty to leave them. Congress, in consequence of his Nova Scotia losses, had granted him 320 acres of land on the Scioto river, where Columbus now stands. In Montgomery, the parish gave him, in addition to his salary, the use of a small farm. Is it strange that he should have reasoned, that the virgin soil of Ohio would, in addition to his ministerial labors, yield him a better and easier support than the hard acres of Montgomery?

Though not formally dismissed from the latter place until Sept. 16, 1806, he removed early in that year to Ohio. He is known to have preached, Apr. 9, 1806, at J. Andrus's, near Worthington, Ohio. He at once built a cabin in Columbus, where High street now runs, and south of Mound. Fields for ministerial labor immediately offered themselves. During the ensuing fifteen months he preached in the following settlements, viz.: Berkshire, Bigsby's, Derby, Franklinton, Granville, and Worthington. No Congregational or Presbyterian clergyman is believed to have previously held regular services nearer than Marietta, in that part of Ohio. The last sermon he is known to have preached, was on the 9th of August, 1807, at Franklinton, from Matthew 11: 28, "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." On the 15th of the following month, after a life laboriously spent in the Master's service, he himself entered upon this promised rest, whose glories he had, as with his latest breath, so vividly depicted, and was buried in the old graveyard at Franklinton. Yet the "march of empire," passing over and beyond, has left no sign or token of the place of his sepulchre.

The farm of Mr. Noble, at Columbus, had it been advantageously sold, would have enriched his family. But half of it was given by him, before his death, to his son-in-law, Martin Bartholomew, and soon passed from his hands without an equivalent. The other half was divided between his widow and children. The shares of his sons Joseph and Benjamin were unsold, as late as 1829, and probably forfeited. His daughter, Mrs. Phillips, sold her share of twenty-three acres for the paltry sum of $37! The whole tract may not have netted the family more than one dollar per acre.

known, but that her eyes were blue. From a few of her letters and other writings which have been preserved, it is evident that she was a woman of good education, superior intelligence, and rare Christian virtues. Her husband, who had been for several weeks absent in Boston, probably as agent of the town for procuring an act of incorporation, did not start for home until the day of her death, nor arrive there until the day after her funeral. The first sermon which he preached after his return, had reference to his departed wife, and was from Hebrews xi:13. "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth."

She m. (1) Dec. 5, 1790, James Emery, by whom she is said to have had one child, who died in infancy. She is remembered as being "lady-like" in her appearance. Over her remains stones were erected, bearing her initials, "R. N.," and the year of her death, 1805.

In the vicinity of Franklinton, O., were many, in 1807, who had previously resided in and about Mangerville, Nova Scotia. She is thought by some of the grandchildren of Rev. Seth Noble, to have been one of these. Miss Sophia Riddle, who d. of consumption, in Franklinton, O., a short time prior to Sept. 3, 1807, was probably her daughter. The date and place of Mrs. Noble's death have not been ascertained, but it is thought that she survived her husband but a few months.

Gen. WILLIAM SHEPARD, s. of Dea. John and Elizabeth (Noble) Shepard, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Nov. 20, 1737, and there d. Nov. 16, 1817, a. 79. In the last French and Indian war, he enlisted at the age of seventeen, probably in 1754, was a lieutenant at the age of twenty-one, and at the age of twenty-two, had received a captain's commission under Gen. Amherst. He was in the war six years, was in the battles at Fort William Henry, Ticonderoga, Crown Point, Isle au Noix, St. John's, and Montreal, and at the close of the war returned to his family, with whom he remained until the commencement of the revolutionary struggle. Soon after the affair at Concord, in April, 1775, he joined the troops at Cambridge, for the defence of the province. He received, May 19, 1775, a commission as lieutenant-colonel, in the regiment commanded by Col. Timothy Danielson, and in Dec., 1776, was appointed a colonel in the continental army. He aided in bringing our troops from Long Island. In 1780, he had a general's commission under Lafayette, and continued in that station until the close of the war. He fought in twenty-two battles, establishing a high character for bravery, sound judgment, and humanity. On the restoration of peace, Gen. Shepard returned to his farm, and, like the other military patriots of that period, after devoting seven or eight years to the service of his country, with very little pecuniary reward, became an industrious and peaceful citizen. When the insurrection occurred under Shays, in 1786, on account of the great taxes then imposed to pay the debt of the Revolutionary war, Gen. Shepard being then a brigadier-general of the militia in Hampshire County, was ordered out to suppress the unlawful movement. He had particular orders to guard the military arsenal at Springfield, which it was believed the insurgents would attack and seize. On this trying occasion, he conducted with equal firmness and forbearance. He stationed the men under his command near the arsenal, and when the insurgents approached, ordered them to retire. But they continued to advance. He ordered them a second time to retire, assuring them that he should certainly fire upon them, if they persisted. At last it became apparent to Gen. Shepard that blood must be shed, but even then his humanity did not forsake him. He directed a discharge of cannon to their right and left, and then over their heads. But the insurgents still advanced with an unbroken front. They had arrived within fifty rods of Shepard's battery, when he ordered his cannon to be discharged upon the centre of the column. The smoke rolled up, and exhibited to the government troops a most pitiable scene of cowardice and confusion. Three of the insurgents lay dead upon the field, and a fourth was mortally wounded. Breaking up with the cry of "murder," the cowardly host turned in retreat, and an attempt of Shays to display his column was entirely abortive. They had been told by their desperate leaders, who mistook the man, that Shepard would not dare to give the command to fire; or would not be obeyed by his men, if he gave such orders. He refrained from this alternative until it became his imperious duty to take the decisive measure, and save the commonwealth from anarchy and misrule.

Gen. Shepard was a presidential elector, 1789 and 1792; a member of the executive council of Massachusetts, 1792-96; and representative in Congress, 1797-1803. In 1796, he was appointed by the governor of Massachusetts, to treat with the Penobscot Indians, and subsequently by the national government, to treat with the Six Nations. He was not only a brave military officer, but possessed traits of character which rendered him respected as a citizen, and beloved as a relative and friend. Like many of his companions in arms, who jeopardized their lives for their country, he was quite poor and destitute in his old age. Of him and of them, when tempted, in 1783, to retain arms, and to force Congress to pay them for their services, an occasion of great excitement and danger, Gen. Washington said "that the crowning glory of their character as patriots would have been wanting, but for their disinterestedness, their love of order, and their submission to the civil authority." The prominent traits in the character of Gen. Shepard were sound judgment, undaunted courage, and unbending integrity. Not only was he a lover of his country, but also a devoted Christian. He was chosen, April 29, 1789, a deacon of the Cong. church in Westfield, and retained the office for twenty-eight years, until his death. His plain, unpainted two-story house on the right hand side of Shepard lane (now Franklin street), about half a mile from Elm street, was taken down, a few years since, and on its site a modern house erected, now, 1877, occupied by Chauncey Allen. A plain stone erected to his memory in the old burying yard of Westfield, bears the following inscription:

died

Nov. 16, 1817

Vinson Gould of Southampton, Mass., in 1809-10. Within that one year, he, together with Justin Wright Clark of Southampton, and Theodore Clapp, afterwards the distinguished Presbyterian and Unitarian clergyman of New Orleans, La., went through all that was required for entering the Sophomore class in Williams College, and entered it in 1810. After graduation, in 1813, he studied medicine with Dr. William Atwater of Westfield, Mass, 1814-15, and taught a high school, during the year 1816, in Hutonsville, Tygart's Valley, Randolph Co., West Va. In 1817, he removed to Beverly, Randolph Co., West Va., and commenced the practice of medicine. After a short time, he removed to Buchanan settlement, Harrison Co., and thence to Stebbensville, Buchanan Co., West Va. In 1822, he removed to Fairmount, Monongahela Co., Va., and there continued practice, until 1829. In 1825 and 1826, he studied divinity with Rev. Ashbel Green Fairchild, D.D., of New Geneva, Penn., was licensed, April 10, 1827, to preach the gospel, and after a missionary tour in Coahoc-ton Co., in the winter and spring of 1828, was installed, Dec. 9, 1828, over the united Presbyterian churches of Glade Run and Plumb Creek, Penn. He removed his family, at this time, to Glade Run. He preached his farewell sermon at Glade Run, Nov. 29, 1840. From 1841-48, he was pastor of the Presb. church in Leatherwood, Clarion Co., Penn., but still continued to reside in Glade Run. In 1848, his health compelling him to suspend ministerial labor, he removed to Granville, O., and there resided for about five years. He then removed to Kittanning, Armstrong Co., Penn., and had charge of an academy, until 1861. He received, that year, the appointment of physician to the Indians in the Yankton agency, Dakota Territory, and continued there for two years, his family remaining in Kittanning. He then removed to Assumption, Ill., where he has resided until the present time, Apr., 1877, in the enjoyment of a "green old age." [He m. LYSTRA NOBLE, s. of Bildad, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Jan. 12, 1788, and d. in Memphis, Onondaga Co., N. Y., April 12, 1875, æ. 87.

His father dying when he was but eleven years of age, he was from that time the main dependence of his mother, in the family and on the farm. Having been hopefully converted at the age of forty-seven, he was soon after chosen deacon of the Baptist church in Jordanville (Warren), Herkimer Co., N. Y., and retained the office for twenty years, until his removal in March, 1856, to New Hartford, Oneida Co., N. Y. In Nov., 1864, he removed once more to Memphis, N. Y., where he continued to reside until his death.

He was an early advocate of the temperance cause, and in 1840, cast the first and only anti-slavery vote in Warren. To the extent of his ability, he was ever ready to respond to the calls of Christian benevolence.

Although infirm for many years, he was not thereby prevented from frequently visiting his neighbors, and occasionally his friends in New Hartford, Utica, and Warren. To the very last, he retained, to a remarkable degree, his youthful feelings, and was greatly beloved by all who knew him. The cause of Christ continued ever near his heart, and he was interested in everything which tended to its prosperity. His last days were peace. He welcomed the messenger of death, and was happy in the thought that he was going home.

LUCIUS BOLTWOOD, s. of William and Eunice (Noble) Boltwood, was b. in Amherst, Mass., Mch. 16, 1792, and there d. July 10, 1872, æ. 80. Inheriting from his paternal ancestors great muscular strength, he was in his youth distinguished for his skill in all athletic exercises, particularly as a wrestler. His early education was obtained in the district schools of his native town, but his advantages could not have been great, as the annual appropriation for the six schools, was only $333.33. His first male teachers were Martin Field, then of Leverett, afterwards an able lawyer of Newfane, Vt., and Bela Kellogg, then of Amherst, subsequently the beloved pastor of the Cong. church in Avon, Conn. Though appreciating the advantages of the district school, he still had longings for a better education than it could furnish. His father, a farmer in moderate circumstances, with a family of eight children dependent on him for their support, felt that he could ill spare the labors of the only son who could aid him on the farm, and who was then able to do the work of a man, and was obliged to tell him that he could render him no assistance, beyond giving him his time until he should come of age. But a liberal education the young man was determined to have. He accordingly commenced, in 1807, in the district school, the study of Latin, under William D. Williamson, afterward an eminent lawyer of Bangor, Me. Three months were devoted to study, and the remaining nine to farm labor. The next winter, he pursued his classical studies for three months more, and the year after, attended for about twelve weeks, the Hadley grammar school, of which a Mr. Lyman was then master. With such a preparation as this, nine months of disconnected study, in the fall of 1810, he entered the Freshman class in Williams College. And now commenced the struggle, as his preparation for college was poor, and he was obliged to support himself by teaching. The winter before entering college, he had established so good a reputation as teacher in Belchertown, Mass., that when it was known that he desired still farther "to exercise his gift," in that direction, the centre school of Amherst was at once tendered him. Here he taught with success, during the winters of his Freshman, Sophomore, and Senior years. The attendance on his schools was large, averaging at least one hundred scholars, of ages varying from four to twenty years. Steel pens and books with printed copies were then unknown, and in order to prepare pens and copies for more than one half of his pupils, he was obliged to spend one hour before and the same length of time after school. Seventeen dollars per month, exclusive of board, for the first two years, and twenty dollars for the last year, was the pittance for which he was thankful to labor.

His college class was one of the largest, as well as one of the best, which his Alma Mater sent forth during the first quarter century of her existence. It contained an unusual number of young men who afterward attained to eminence, among whom were the Hon. Austin E. Wing of Detroit, Mich., for several years delegate in Congress; the Hon. Samuel F. Vinton of Gallipolis, O., for twenty-two years a member of Congress, at one time the unsuccessful Whig candidate for governor of Ohio, and an eminent lawyer; and Rev. Orville Dewey, D. D., a distinguished Unitarian divine, the last survivor of the class, now spending the evening of a useful life on his paternal acres in Sheffield, Mass. With the same class, the Hon. Nathaniel P. Tallmadge, early a member of the United States Senate from New York, and subsequently governor of Wisconsin, was for a time connected. The first and second of these were Mr. Boltwood's most intimate college friends, and the latter, before his removal to Union College, was for a time his room-mate. Among such young men, he at once took high rank as a scholar, and notwithstanding his necessary absence during three winters, maintained his standing, until the end of his course. In assigning the appointments for commencement, the faculty of the college after deliberating long whether to give the valedictory to Lucius Boltwood or Orville Dewey, finally compromised the matter by giving the valedictory to Dewey, and then deciding, contrary to the usual custom, that Boltwood should deliver the master's oration, at the end of three years.

He was distinguished in college, not only for his scholarship, but also for an ease and affability of manners eminently calculated to gain him friends. It is the united testimony, not only of his own classmates, but also of the members of other classes, that no one in his class was more popular than he. He stood high as a writer, was a fair debater, and in consequence was chosen the first president of his literary society, the Philotechnian. May not any college graduate well envy the estimate of his character drawn, more than forty years after his graduation, by his revered and venerated teacher, Professor Chester Dewey? "Lucius Boltwood, a good scholar, of good character, and of good influence. His classmates loved him, and will tell more good of him than I need to write."

He read law with Hon. Samuel Fowler Dickinson, an eminent attorney of Amherst, was admitted to the bar in August, 1817, and entered immediately into company with his instructor. In 1820, he opened an office of his own in Amherst, and continued in active practice until 1836. About that time, he made large purchases of land in Michigan, the care of which compelled him gradually to abandon the law. He, however, continued to discharge the duties of a civil magistrate, until within a few years of his death. He was, from 1828-64, secretary of the corporation of Amherst College; from 1833-66, commissioner of the Charity fund of the same institution; and from November, 1835, to October, 1836, president of the Amherst bank. Amherst was always his home, his house, just north of the colleges, having been built by him, in 1835. At the time of his death, he was the senior member of the Hampshire county bar, and the eldest native male resident within the limits of the West parish of Amherst.

Mr. Boltwood was a man of medium height, with a dark blue eye, and an exceedingly earnest expression. He was a man of commanding presence, "a gentleman of the old school," having worn from early manhood a ruffled shirt, and until within a few years of his death, a blue dress coat with gilt buttons. Even down to old age, he retained an erect form, elastic step, and dignified bearing.

He was a well-read lawyer, a wise counsellor, and an excellent magistrate. A diligent and thoughtful student of the law, with a wonderfully retentive memory, he had at command whatever he had read. Though not a fluent speaker, he had a faculty of conveying his ideas intelligently and in a remarkably concise manner. Those who consulted him in relation to legal questions, always found his opinions conservative and judicious. During the fifty years that he officiated as a magistrate, his decisions evinced a wide knowledge of the law, and a remarkable clearness of judgment.

He was also a vigorous writer. Some of the keenest articles which have ever appeared in the newspapers of the county, were the productions of his pen, published almost always anonymously, as he was the last man thus to seek notoriety.

He had quite a taste for genealogical and historical research. No citizen of Amherst knew so much of its early and later history, or was so often consulted for historical information.

He was no politician or office-seeker. Politics, as a trade, he abhorred. To succeed in such a field, required traits of character which he neither possessed nor coveted. In his composition there was nothing sly, crafty, or deceitful; on the contrary, everything was fair and open. It is not known that he ever allowed his name to be used in connection with any political office, to which he had the least expectation of being elected.

He was, moreover, characterized by great benevolence, ever a cheerful contributor to the charities of the day, and always ready to lend his aid for the relief of the poor and suffering. At no period of his life did he turn a deaf ear to the poor, but was as ready to listen patiently, and give gratuitous advice to them, as to those from whom he expected a reward. In cases of sorrow and affliction, he was prompt in rendering efficient sympathy.

He was also noted for his public spirit. At all times, he took a deep interest in every measure, which he thought was calculated to benefit the town or its inhabitants. He was a warm friend of the academy and female seminary, a trustee of both, and for many years, secretary of the former. When Amherst College was projected, connected as he was with Hon. Samuel F. Dickinson, one of the leaders in the enterprise, he threw himself with all his youthful ardor, into the work of helping forward the institution. He counted it a great honor that he had enjoyed the friendship of its early trustees, and in sympathy for the cause, cheerfully performed the duties of secretary of the corporation, without compensation, for thirty-six years.

He also favored the establishment of the Agricultural College, though, in his dread of debt, municipal as well as personal, doubting the policy of imposing upon those who should come after him, the payment of the money necessary to secure its location at Amherst.

He always followed strictly his conscientious ideas of right. He was one of the earliest and most earnest advocates of the cause of temperance. His heart was touched with sympathy for the suffering slave, and he was one of the originators of the Liberty party, and in 1841, its first candidate for governor of Massachusetts. Educated in the Whig party, it was no easy thing for him to cut loose from an organization which embraced most of his intimate friends. Though party ties were then stronger than now, no fear of losing popular favor for a moment deterred him from a step which he believed to be right. Great as was his desire for emancipation, his political efforts were to this end alone—to check the extension of slavery by every constitutional method. Of its ultimate downfall, he had no reasonable doubt. Though he dared not hope that the blessing he so earnestly craved would come in his day, it was not the less a source of the deepest thanksgiving to God, that he was spared to behold it, in all its fullness.

He may be said to have been a successful business man. In the settlement of many large estates, and as guardian of minors, he always performed every trust with fidelity. For thirty-three years he managed the Charity fund of Amherst College, without the loss of a single dollar. Drawn, unwisely as many thought, in 1835, from professional duties into real estate operations at the West, undismayed by the high taxes and large rates of interest which he was obliged to pay, he kept up good courage, until the tide turned. From the sales which he subsequently made, he was able to support his family respectably, give his sons the best educational advantages, and leave at his death a comfortable estate.

From early manhood, he was distinguished for religious principle. This might be inferred from the fact that his chosen companions and intimate friends were always the best men in the community. But beyond this, the golden rule seemed ever to have been his governing principle. Though for almost sixty years a consistent member of the Congregational church, he was no sectarian. Good men of every name and creed he loved, and was ever ready to aid liberally all the religious denominations of the town.

In confirmation of the character as above drawn, the testimony of a few persons, most of whom had a life-long acquaintance with Mr. Boltwood, may not be inappropriately introduced here.

Rev. Orville Dewey, D.D., of Sheffield, Mass., his only surviving classmate, who never met him after graduation, in acknowledging the receipt of a copy of a daguerotype of Mr. Boltwood, taken in 1859, writes, in 1872, as follows:

"It astonishes me, that the face so much resembles what I remember in the youth of nearly sixty years ago. Only there is a fine manliness in the mature countenance, and a benignity, too, not to be looked for in the face of a boy, and also a calmness; for the predominating expression then was earnestness. I think I never saw a boy-face that was more earnest. His mouth was a very mobile feature, and his lips often quivered with emotion. You see that I have a very distinct recollection of his person, and yet beyond this, and his scholarship, in which I feared him more than any of our number, I do not know that I can recall anything which would help you in a biographical sketch."

Hon. Abner Hazeltine of Jamestown, N. Y., for some years a member of Congress, and subsequently a judge of Chautauque Co., the sole survivor of the class of 1815 in Williams College, bears this testimony to the character and position of Mr. Boltwood, when in college:

"The perusal of your letter revived the memories of my youth. the scenes, the pleasures, the toils, the anxieties of college life. I seemed to be surrounded for the moment with the companions of those days, and to be witnessing the athletic sports on the spacious lawn in front of the old East college. Conspicuous among them was young Boltwood, an acknowledged leader, and a very model of manly beauty. There were Rice and Wing, both a little resembling Saul of Gilboa, in their fair proportions, and in towering somewhat above their fellows. There, too, was the lame Chapin, primus, moving around with the aid of his staff, and amusing the beholders with his keen remarks, his drollery and fun.

"This, perhaps, answers one of your inquiries; but I will say more directly, Mr. Boltwood was particularly distinguished for his personal activity and skill in all athletic exercises. Perhaps his passion for these sports and amusements generally, especially in the latter part of his course, detracted too much from his lessons, and contributed in some degree to the success of the very studious Dewey, in obtaining the coveted valedictory. That it was the expectation not only of his class, but also of the students generally, that Boltwood would win the prize, is certainly the fact. He was undoubtedly the most popular individual in the class. His scholarship was of the first order, and his social qualities were eminently calculated to gain him friends. He was a great favorite in his class, and in the college. He stood high as a writer, and was a fair speaker."

Mrs. Henry Jones of Bridgeport, Conn., the only surviving child of Noah Webster, LL.D., the lexicographer, for a time a resident of Amherst, thus writes respecting him:

"I thank you for the picture of Mr. Boltwood. It is a striking likeness, and tells the story of his life, revealing in its expression, that he had caught the spirit of the angels, who sang, 'on earth peace, good will toward men.' My early recollections of him are all pleasant. From his graduation, he was a familiar friend of my father's, calling often at our house on the village green. I remember how entirely my father trusted him, and always spoke of him with respect, showing his high regard for his character and abilities. And in later years, he was glad to watch his progress in life, and to know that he was placed in positions of honor and trust."

Hon. Edward Dickinson of Amherst, a member of Congress, for thirty-eight years treasurer of Amherst College, a pupil, neighbor, brother lawyer, and for fifty years an intimate friend, says of Mr. Boltwood:

"He was an able teacher, a thoroughly read lawyer, a man of sound judgment and of great insight into the character of those with whom he became acquainted. He officiated as a magistrate for many years, in the trial of civil and criminal cases, and in that capacity evinced great discrimination, legal acumen, and clearness and independence of judgment, which enabled him to arrive at right results. I remember only one case, in which his judgment was reversed, on appeal to a higher court."

His college classmate, the Hon. Caleb Rice of Springfield, Mass., long sheriff of the county of Hampden, the first mayor of Springfield, and for more than twenty years the president of the Mass. Mutual Life Insurance company, bears his testimony in the following words:

"Mr. Boltwood established a character above suspicion, being a man of sound and discriminating mind, endowed with a good share of common sense, and the strictest integrity. Of such characters we need more."

Professor Charles U. Shepard, of Amherst College, who has spent years beneath his roof, thus writes respecting him:

"He was a good example of 'a gentleman of the old school,' as the designation is understood in the larger interior towns of New England. A little precise in expression, he was nevertheless an animated and pleasant talker, remarkably alert in comprehending whatever was advanced, and yielding a courteous opportunity for replies. His language was always forcible, and clear, while it was remarkably free from words or phrases having any approach to modern slang. A ready wit enlivened his conversation, while in the aptness of his anecdotes, and the felicity of their recital, he was rarely surpassed. In early life, he had been a diligent reader of the standard English writers in prose and verse, and having a retentive memory, always had at command an unusual store of material for increasing the interest of his discourse."

Hon. Samuel F. Lyman of Northampton, Mass., for many years judge of probate for Hampshire county, remarks respecting Mr. Boltwood:

"He was universally and justly respected in this county, for his high moral principle, his sterling integrity, his unflinching and fearless advocacy of a holy but unpopular cause, his pure and spotless life, and the distinguished courtesy of his manners."

Hon. Emory Washburn of Cambridge, Mass., judge of the Court of common pleas, governor of Massachusetts, and for many years professor of law in Harvard College, gives his estimate of him in the following words:

"When at the beginning of Junior year, I joined the class of 1817 in Williams College, the name of Lucius Boltwood had not ceased being spoken of, as one of the distinguished men of his class. I do not recall the name of any one, whom I so often heard spoken of, as his. I am very happy in saying, that the opinion I formed of him by hearsay, before I had the pleasure of meeting him personally, was confirmed and strengthened, the longer and more fully I knew him. I was proud to reckon him as an alumnus of our college. I never met him, that I was not reminded of his courtesy as a gentleman, and of the ease and affability which marked his intercourse with others. The last time I had the pleasure of meeting him, was at Williamstown, in 1867, at the commencement of our Alma Mater. The scenes and the associations seemed to revive in him the vigor as well as the sensibilities of his college days, and we both forgot for the time being, that half a century had been working changes in us, as in the world around us, since we had gone out from that sequestered spot, to take our chances on the stage of active life."

Dr. Gardiner Dorrance, a graduate of Williams College in the class of 1820, for many years a practicing physician in Amherst, and in Sunderland, an adjoining town, and afterwards of Attica, N. Y., says of Mr. Boltwood:

"He was a patriotic and an enterprising citizen, and to his dying day retained the warmest interest in whatever concerned the prosperity of the town or country. He was an early and active member of the Liberty party, and through his wise counsels, and judicious proceeding, it owed much of its subsequent success. After a long and intimate acquaintance with Mr. Boltwood, I can say with sincerity and truthfulness, that few men have ever lived, whose example, in every department of life, has been more faultless than his."

Rev. Samuel P. Parker, D.D., now of Stockbridge, Mass., but formerly of Amherst, gives these impressions of him, after he had passed his threescore years and ten:

"I met Mr. Boltwood for the first time, in the fall of 1864, on the occasion of my first visit to Amherst. In December, of the same year, I removed to that town, to take charge of the new parish of Grace church. Mr. Boltwood attended frequently the services of the Episcopal church, and aided the movement liberally, by contributing to the building of the church and its support. I was a frequent visitor at his house, and may venture to say, became well acquainted with his habitual thoughts, feelings, and life. The impression on my mind made by these four years of intercourse, is the picture of a man of great natural sagacity, improved by labor, and experience as a lawyer, and by large contact with mankind. His conversation was replete with good sense, and with the evidence of wide reading, and great sprightliness of mind, commended by liveliness of manner, and a prevailing courtliness and urbanity, which made all in his society feel that he was their friend. None can forget his radiant smile, caught so to the life in his photograph. The consequence was, that he was a general favorite, and his house a delightful place of resort. I always went to it with anticipations of great enjoyment, and left it enlivened, invigorated, and warmed. His dear wife, with her strong and universal sympathy, and her great brightness, ever reinforced his smile and kind words. The conversation used to take a broad range from grave to gay, and wit and kindness flowed in equal and abundant measure.

"As a Christian, Mr. Boltwood's purity, directness, simplicity, warmth, and absence of cant, made a deep impression on me, as did his qualities as a man, a friend, and a companion. I never left his company without feeling that he was a good man. 'Sound in the faith which was once delivered unto the saints,' his was a heart religion, binding him fast to the Saviour, God, and clasping closely all men of every complexion, creed, and condition. I believe that his Christianity was a personal law of life, intelligently held, firmly grasping the truth, breathing ever sweet charity, and in the sympathy of the Master, embracing the world. God bless the memory of my dear friend! God raise up many like him—the true, the intelligent, the bold, the courteous, the loving, gentle, humble follower of Jesus Christ!"

"Why weep ye then for him, who, having won
The bound of man's appointed years, at last,
Life's blessings all enjoyed, life's labors done,
Serenely to his final rest has passed;
While the soft memory of his virtues, yet,
Lingers like twilight hues, when the bright sun is set.

His youth was innocent, his riper age
Marked with some act of goodness every day;
And watched by eyes that loved him, calm and sage,
Faded his late declining years away.
Meekly he gave his being up, and went
To share the holy rest that waits a life well spent."

OLIVER NOBLE BOLTWOOD, s. of William and Eunice (Noble) Boltwood, was b. in Amherst, Mass., June 1, 1807, and d. in Hastings, Mich., June 5, 1871, æ. 64. He removed in Aug., 1830, to Carroll, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; in March, 1836, to Panama, (Harmony,) Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; in Oct. 1850, to Hastings, Mich.; in 1862, to Ionia, Mich.; and in Aug., 1868, returned to Hastings, and there continued to reside until his death.

He learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, but worked at it very little, after 1830. While a resident of the state of New York, he worked on his farm in summer, and was a clerk in a store in winter. From 1845-49, he was postmaster of Panama. At Hastings, Mich., he was from 1850-62, engaged in the flouring business, and for a part of the time, was also in the dry goods and grocery trade. In Ionia, he was successively in the flouring, stove, and hardware and grocery business, until compelled by ill health to retire. After his return to Hastings, he was a grocer, for a short time previous to his death.

He was endowed with a cheerful disposition, and was beloved and respected in all the places of his residence.

Dr. LESTER NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in Blandford, Mass., Nov. 11, 1819. He commenced the study of dentistry, Sept. 17, 1846, with Dr. Nathan Keep of Boston, and remained with him nearly three years. He then studied analytical chemistry, for five or six months, with Prof. E. N. Horsford, in the Lawrence Scientific School, Cambridge, Mass., attending at the same time the chemical lectures of Prof. John W. Webster of Harvard College. He joined the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, in Oct., 1849, and received in June, 1850, the degree of D.D.S. During the sessions of 1851-52, he was demonstrator of mechanical dentistry, giving most of the instruction in the making of artificial teeth. While in the office of Dr. Keep, he assisted that gentleman in making a set of artificial teeth, for Dr. George Parkman of Boston. After the murder of Dr. Parkman, Drs. Keep and Noble had the disagreeable duty of identifying the artificial teeth, found with a burned head in Prof. Webster's stove. Their testimony was the only reliable proof that the burned head was that of Dr. Parkman.

Dr. Noble practised his profession, 1852-60, in Washington, D. C. His health having become impaired, he removed to Longmeadow, Mass., and in May, 1869, opened a dental office in Springfield. He continues, Jan., 1878, to reside in Longmeadow.

HENRY NOBLE, s. of Roger, was b. in New Haven, Vt., Sept. 1, 1812. Having received a common school education, in 1829, he learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, and was subsequently a tailor, for one year in Troy, N. Y., six months in Buffalo, N. Y., and one year in Batavia, N. Y. Being burned out in the latter place, in 1836, he removed to Memphis, Tenn., and at the end of six months, to Holly Springs, Miss., where he worked a little as a tailor, and commenced the study of medicine. In 1838, he removed to Commerce, Tunica Co., Miss., where the Northern Mississippians were attempting to build a city to rival Memphis. The enterprise failing, in 1840, he went to New Orleans, La., as a salesman in the boot and clothing establishment of Theodore Lacroin & Brother, and while with them, learned to speak French, they being able to speak only a few English words. After their failure, in 1842, he engaged, in company with William Terry, a Virginian, in a miscellaneous trade in dry goods and groceries, on the Mississippi river. In 1846, he became a partner in a wholesale and retail house in New Orleans, under the firm of Joseph F. Hildreth & Co., but from inability to make collections, the firm were, in 1848, obliged to suspend payment. With Yankee perseverance, he removed once more, in March, 1850, to Chagres, New Granada, now United States of Colombia, where he became partner in a hotel called the Falcon house. In 1852, he went to Colon, sometimes called Aspinwall, and devoted himself exclusively to commerce, purchasing his goods in London, Paris, Prussia, and Germany. Selling his stock of goods there, in April, 1867, he left for Europe, and after stopping for a few months in Paris, went in August, 1867, to Genoa, Italy, and on the 1st of March, 1868, to Turin, Italy. He was appointed, Dec. 10, 1872, consular agent of the United States of America at Turin, Italy, an office which he still, 1876, retains. HON. LUCIUS MANLIUS BOLTWOOD, s. of Lucius and Fanny Haskins (Shepard) Boltwood, was b. in Amherst, Mass., in the house of his grandmother, Mrs. Deborah Shepard, June 8, 1825. His studies preparatory to college, were from 1834-39, at Amherst academy, Rev. George Cotton Partridge (Amherst Col. 1833), Hon. Rodolphus Baker Hubbard (Union Col. 1829), Rev. Frederick Buel (Yale Col. 1836), and Rev. Nahum Gale, D.D., (Amherst Col. 1837), preceptors. He graduated at Amherst College, in 1843, and at Andover Theological Seminary, in 1847, but was never ordained as a clergyman. From 1852 to 1863, he was librarian of Amherst College; from June, 1861, to July, 1865, postmaster of Amherst; from Apr., 1867, to Apr., 1868, assistant librarian in the Congressional library at Washington, D. C.; and from Apr., 1868, to Aug., 1875, librarian of the Young Men's Institute at Hartford, Conn. In 1859-60, he was a member of the Massachusetts senate, from the Hampshire and Franklin district. Since Aug., 1875, he has continued to reside in Hartford, Conn.

He was chosen, Oct. 7, 1846, a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical society; Nov. 2, 1852, a corresponding member of the New York Historical society; March, 1856, a corresponding member of the Connecticut Historical society; May 5, 1868, a resident member of the same society (of which, from May 19, 1868, to May 21, 1872, he was recording secretary); Oct., 1858, an honorary member of the Vermont Historical society; June 15, 1859, an honorary member of the New Hampshire Historical society; and was invited, 1876, to become a fellow of the Royal Historical society of Great Britain.

In 1863, he prepared and published the genealogical portion of "Judd's History of Hadley, Mass."

He was for a time a clerk in a dry goods store in Hartford, Conn., Keokuk, Iowa, and Middletown, Conn. He was next, a clerk in a glass-ware store in New York city, and subsequently a member of the firm of Henry Russell & Co., dealers in table glass-ware, lamps, and looking-glasses, at 60 Vesey street, in the same city. During the last two years of his life, he resided at Amherst, superintending the business of his father. His character and reputation were excellent, and he was faithful in the discharge of every trust. He had a sunny smile, and possessed a rare sweetness of disposition, making him a great favorite, in every circle in which he moved. His health was usually firm, and his last illness was of but ten days' duration.

"Green be the turf above thee, friend of my better days!
 None knew thee but to love thee, nor named thee but to praise,
 Tears fell when thou wert dying, from eyes unused to weep,
 And long, where thou art lying, will tears the cold turf steep.
 When hearts, whose truth was proven, like thine, are laid in earth,
 There should a wreath be woven to tell the world their worth."

SECOND GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

DESCENDANTS OF MATTHEW NOBLE, SON OF THOMAS.

MATTHEW NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. abt. 1668, and d. in Sheffield, Mass., abt. 1744, æ. abt. 76. He put himself under the watch of the Westfield church, Aug. 19, 1694, and together with his wife, joined the same, Nov. 3, 1728, after their removal to Sheffield, the church at the latter place not being then organized. The precise date of his removal to Sheffield has not been ascertained. It is known, however, that the land in that township, which, in 1725, had been divided into lots by John Ashley and Ebenezer Pomeroy, was very soon occupied by settlers, who came in, and planted themselves upon the river bank.

In a "History of Berkshire County, Massachusetts, by gentlemen in the county, clergymen and laymen," 12°, Pittsfield, 1829, is a carefully prepared sketch of Sheffield, by Rev. James Bradford, who on the 13th of October, 1813, was settled over the Congregational church in that place. In this sketch, appears the following statement, respecting the first settler of Sheffield:

"Mr. Obadiah Noble was the first white man who came to reside in Sheffield. He was from Westfield, and came and spent the first winter here with no other human associates than the Indians. In the spring, he went back to Westfield, and in June, his daughter, afterwards the wife of Dea. Daniel Kellogg, returned here with him. She was the first white woman that came into the town. She travelled from Westfield, when about sixteen years of age, on horseback, bringing a bed with her, and lodged one night in the wilderness, in what is now the east part of Tyringham."

The above statement has been quoted with more or less fullness, by J. W. Barber, in "Massachusetts Historical Collections"; by J. G. Holland, in his "History of Western Massachusetts," and more recently by J. G. Barnard, and G. A. Hoadley, in their addresses at the Centennial celebration of the town of Sheffield, on the 19th of June, 1876.

Mr. George D. Noble, an intelligent citizen of Sheffield, born there on the 23d of August, 1813, the great grandson of Obadiah Noble, informed me, in 1876, that his grandfather Nathaniel Noble, whom he well remembers, and who died, May 28, 1824, æ. 87, used to say, "My father, Obadiah Noble, was the first white settler of Sheffield; he came from Westfield to Sheffield in the fall of the year, lived the first winter in a wigwam, and the next spring went for his wife, and soon brought her, a bride, to Sheffield."

To Mr. Bradford's statement, the objections are these: In the first place, there is no evidence that Obadiah Noble ever had a daughter, his family consisting of five sons, whose births are recorded on the town record of Sheffield. In the second place, Hannah Noble, who subsequently became the wife of Dea. Daniel Kellogg, is known to have been the daughter of Matthew, and not the daughter of Obadiah Noble.

To the statement of Mr. George D. Noble, we have this objection to make, that in 1724, when Hannah Noble, afterward the wife of Dea. Daniel Kellogg, was sixteen years of age, Obadiah Noble, her brother, was but eighteen, quite too young to have been the pioneer settler of the town. Again, the eldest child of Obadiah Noble having been born May 22, 1734, it is not probable that he was married much before the year 1733, whereas, the first settler would, according to G. D. Noble, have been married as early as 1725.

We incline, therefore, to the opinion, that if any person by the name of Noble was the first settler of Sheffield, it was Matthew, and not his son Obadiah. Matthew is known to have been there on the 3d of February, 1727, for at that date, as appears by Hampshire Deeds, E. p. 61, "Matthew Noble, of Housatunnuck, husbandman, in consideration of a certain sum paid by Capt. John Ashley of Westfield, gentleman," makes over to him "two certain tracts or Parcels of lands, with a house, barn and orchard or orcharding upon it, which Parcels of lands Containing in quantity by Estimation about two hundred acres, lying and being partly within the Bounderies and precincts of y^e township of Springfield, and partly within y^e boundaries of the township of Westfield, in the afores^d County, it being a tract of land, which the s^d Mathew Noble formerly Dwelt upon, and lyeth Easterdly of y^e mountaine, which rangeth between the s^d Westfield and Springfield, and alsoe lyeth Southerlie of Westfield river."

If Matthew Noble was in Sheffield, in Feb., 1727, he could not have removed during the winter, but must certainly have removed as early as the previous year. How much earlier he fixed his abode there, we have no means of determining.

In 1733, Matthew Noble issued the following warrant for the first town meeting in Sheffield:

"HAMPSHIRE vs. SHEFFIELD, Jan. 11, 1788.

"To the Constable or Constables of the Town of Sheffield, or Either of them Greeting. In His Majesty's Name, you are Required forthwith to warn the free Holders, or Proprietors that are approbated settlers in the said Town of Sheffield, that they meet at the House of Mr. Obadiah Noble, on Wednesday the sixteenth Day of January Currant, at ten of the Clock In the Morning; and signifie unto them that they are then and their Required to Chuse Town Officers to serve the Town Respectively from the Date of said Meeting, untill the time of annually Chusing Town Officers, which is in March Next.

"This warrant is Given under my Hand Pursuant to the Power and authority Directed to me by the General Assembly at Boston, to Call s^d meeting to Chuse Town Officers &c., and you are Hereby Directed to make a Return of s^d warrant unto myself at or before s^d time to me. Given under my Hand the day above said.

MATTHEW NOBLE."

In pursuance with this warrant, a meeting was held, of which the following is a record:

"Att Leagal Meeting, Jan^y 16, 1788, in Sheffield, voted, matthew Noble Chosen moderator.

voted at the Same meeting Hezekiah Noble Chosen Town Clerk, and sworn.

voted at the Same meeting John Smith, Philip Calender, and Daniel Kellogg was chosen Selectmen.

voted at the Same meeting Nathaniel Austinn, and obadiah Noble was Chosen fenceviewers and Sworn.

voted at the Same meeting, and Jonathan Root was Chosen Sirveyer and Sworn."

The first minister called by the Sheffield church, was doubtless Mr. Ebenezer Devotion.* The church records are not to be found, but on the town records, appear the following votes, under date of June 7, 1734:

"Voted to Give m^r Ebenezer Devotion A call to the work of the min-istrie In this Town.

"Mathew Noble, Ezekiel Ashley and Philip Calender ware Chosen a Committee to Treate with m^r Devotion In order for Settling In the work of the Ministrie."

*Ebenezer Devotion, s. of Rev. Ebenezer and Hannah (Breck) Devotion, was b. in Suffield, Conn., May 8, 1714; graduated at Yale College, in 1782; was settled 1785, as first pastor of the Cong. church in Scotland parish in the town of Windham, Conn., and d. 1771.

Matthew Noble died intestate. The proceedings of the court of probate, in the settlement of his estate, are as follows:

"Hampshire Prob. Rec. III: 249. At a Court of Probates holden at Northampton within & for the County of Hampshire for the Probate of Wills & granting Adm^a in s^d County on the Second Tuesday of Feb^r, being the 12th Day of s^d month Anno Dom. 1744, p^r John Stoddard Esq. Jud. Cur. Dict.

THIRD GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

JOSEPH NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 8, 1691, and d. in Great Barrington, Mass., Feb. 12, 1758, æ. 66. He removed to that part of Sheffield, which is now Great Barrington, Mass., probably as early as 1727, and is supposed to have lived, about one and one-fourth miles south of the centre of the village, on land where his son Eli afterward resided, and now, 1875, owned by Ebenezer Chadwick. This then, as now, was the most southerly location of any house in Great Barrington, on the meadow road to Sheffield, the land south, for a mile or more, being low and unfit for building lots. Joseph Noble was one of the building committee, appointed Mch. 8, 1742, for erecting the first meeting-house in Great Barrington. He joined the Great Barrington Cong. church, Mch. 3, 1745. He d. intestate, leaving the following children, viz.: Joseph, Preserved, Eli, Mary [Baldwin], Margaret [Culver], Abigail [Root], and Lydia. Administration on his estate was granted, Mch. 24, 1758, to his eldest son, Joseph, the widow declining the trust. His inventory, taken May 18, 1758, by Stephen Dewey, Jonathan Nash, and Aaron Root, amounted to £490 9s. 5d.

He m. ABIGAIL DEWEY, b. Nov. 17, 1694, dau. of Jedediah and Sarah (Orton) Dewey. She joined Westfield church, in 1716, and the Cong. church in Great Barrington, Dec. 1, 1745. She d. after Mch. 24, 1758.

CHILDREN.

3065. Joseph, b. Jan. 29, 1717; d. Feb. 16, 1717, æ. 18 days.

 3067. Eli, bapt. Feb. 24, 1721; m. July 23, 1760, Hannah Miller. He d. in Great Barrington, Mass., abt. 1798. Administration on his estate was granted May 1, 1798. He left a widow, but no children. His estate went to his widow and to his brothers and sisters or their heirs. Child. Joseph, b. Aug. 22, 1763, supposed to have been killed in battle, at Stone Arabia, N. Y., Oct. 19, 1780, æ. 17.
 3068. Preserved, bapt. Apr. 20, 1723; m. Elizabeth Highstead.
 3069. Mary, bapt. 1725; m. Ebenezer Baldwin, prob. of Egremont, Mass., and was prob. alive in 1799. She per. had son, James, for James Baldwin of Egremont, Mass., was, in 1796, administrator on the estate of Eli Noble.
 3070. Margaret, b. Oct. 8, 1727; m. Samuel Culver.
 3071. Abigail, b. Sept. 14, 1731; m. Israel Root.
 3072. Lydia, b. abt. 1740; m. Warham Lee.

HEZEKIAH NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., May 14, 1694. He removed, after Aug. 27, 1728, and prior to Mch. 2, 1731, to Sheffield, Mass., was chosen clerk of that town at its organization, in 1733, and continued in the same office up to 1770. He was a hatter by trade. The last mention made of him, is on the 13th of May, 1772, at which date he granted the land in Sheffield on which he dwelt, near the new meeting-house, with the buildings thereon, to his son-in-law, Dan Raymond of Sheffield.

He m. Nov. 5, 1740, ANN ROBERTS of Canaan.

CHILDREN.

3073. Anne, b. Jan. 24, 1743; m. Dan Raymond.
 3074. Hezekiah, b. Nov. 18, 1745; m. ————. He prob. resided in Sheffield, Mass., and was the assessor of 1779, and a grantor, June 11, 1808. Children. 1. Sarah, b. Mch. 1, 1779, in Sheffield; 2. Mary; and two sons whose names are unknown.
 3075. Lydia, b. Oct. 20, 1747; m. ——— Boardman of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Child. Godfrey.

ENS. MATTHEW NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Sept. 9, 1698, according to his gravestone, but Sept. 19, 1698, according to the town record. The latter date cannot be correct, if he was baptized, as the church records of Westfield show, on the 18th of September. He d. in Westfield, Aug. 8, 1771, æ. 72. His residence was about half a mile east of Westfield green, on the farm owned and occupied, in 1852, by his grandson, Charles Noble. He joined the Westfield church, Nov. 3, 1728. He was chosen selectman, 1738, '40, '41, '44, '51, '60, and '61, and moderator of town meeting, in 1740. On the 6th of March, 1741, he was appointed, in connection with others, to inform Mr. John Ballantine that the town had invited him to be their minister, and to receive his answer. In 1757 he was representative to the General Court. In deeds, he is styled, in 1745, tanner; in 1754, saddler; and in 1759, cordwainer. In his will, dated Dec. 20, 1770, and proved Sept. 3, 1771, he names his wife Mercy, sons Constant, Gideon, Matthew, and Paul, and daughters, Bethia, wife of Asa Noble, Joanna, wife of Israel Dewey, and Rhoda, wife of Abner Dewey. The monument erected to his memory bears the following inscription:

"Ensign | Matthew | Noble | Was born | Sept. 9, 1698 | & died | Aug. 8, 1771.

Remember me
as you Pass by,
as you are now
So once was I;
as I am Now
So you must be,
Prepare for death
& follow me."

He m. (1) May 31, 1720, JOANNA STEBBINS, b. in Springfield, Mass., Mch. 4, 1697, dau. of Samuel and Abigail (Brooks) Stebbins. She joined the Westfield church May 5, 1728. She d. in Westfield, Nov. 1, 1763, æ. 62. Rev. John Ballantine makes the following entry in his Diary, under date of "1763, Nov. 3. Ena. Noble's wife buried. She liked the Separates, but did not regularly attend their meeting." Her monument bears this inscription: "In memory of | M^{rs}. JOANNA | Wife of Ens. | MATTHEW NOBLE | who died Nov. | 1st 1763 in her | 67th Year.

Death is a Debt
to Nature Due,
which I have paid,

Capt. ELISHA NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Feb. 9, 1703, and d. in Sheffield, Mass., Aug. 27, 1771, a. 68. [G. Whiting's private record.] He entered into full fellowship with Westfield church, Dec. 8, 1728. Soon after this, he must have removed to Sheffield, for he is known to have been there, June 17, 1730, and at the organization of the town, in 1733, was chosen constable. In 1745, his house was "forted," and Rev. Samuel Hopkins, D.D., of Great Barrington, Mass., records in his Diary, under date of Nov. 22, 1745, that alarmed by the reports that the Indians had taken Stockbridge, he went down and lodged in Elisha Noble's fort, but "had a very poor lodging," as "the house was crowded with women and children." In 1755, he had command of a company of men, who enlisted for reënforcing the army destined for Crown Point. In his will, dated Aug. 8, 1771; and proved the 6th of Sept. following, he names wife, Abigail, son Enoch, dau. Abigail, wife of Oliver Ashley, children of dau., Sarah Saxton, late wife of James Saxton, and dau., Hannah, wife of William Sheldon of Sheffield. He appoints wife, Abigail, executrix, and gives for a family burying-ground, a piece of land in Sheffield, "where my daughter, Sarah Saxton, lies buried." His estate was inventoried at £1,243 10. 3. 2.

He m. prob. in 1727, ABIGAIL WARNER, b. Feb. 6, 1704, dau. of Mark and Lydia (Phelps) Warner of Northampton, to whom he was pub. March 18, 1727. Her name appears on Sheffield rate, in 1775, '79, '80, and '82.

OBADIAH NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 19, 1705, and d. in Sheffield, Mass., prob. in 1786, æ. 81. He was early at Sheffield, the first town meeting having been held, in 1733, at his house. He resided about three-quarters of a mile north of the Congregational church, near the academy, on the place where Mrs. Jay Shears, now, 1876, lives.

The Sheffield town records show that, on the 22d of May, 1785, "three Barrels of Good Beare, and twenty Gallons of Rumb," were voted, by the town, for the use of those who should aid in raising the first meeting-house. Such was the confidence reposed in the character of Obadiah Noble, that, "at the same meeting, Obadiah Noble, and Ensign Ashley were made Choice of, to Dool out Drink to the laborers, when it is convenient, and Likewise, to Sell Drink to Strangers or town's People, and also to Receive the money."

In his will dated Oct. 14, 1785, and proved June 6, 1786, he names his sons, Peter, Nathaniel, Zechariah, Obadiah, Ezekiel, and daughter-in-law, Susannah Fairchild, wife of Moses Fairchild of Sheffield.

ANNE NOBLE, dau. of Hezekiah, was b. in Sheffield, Mass., Jan. 24, 1744, and there d. Jan. 22, 1826, æ. 81.

She m. July 19, 1763, DAN RAYMOND of Norwalk, Conn., who d. in Sheffield, Oct. 10, 1809, æ. 73. He was for a time a wealthy merchant, and on the Sheffield rate of Apr. 18, 1779, but three persons paid a higher tax than he.

According to the statement of Rev. Orville Dewey, D. D., in his sermon at the centennial celebration at Sheffield, June 18, 1876, Dan Raymond was a noted tory, and upon him suspicion at once rested, on the 5th of July, 1776, when the liberty-tree on Sheffield green, erected the previous day, was found level with the ground. When charged with the outrage, he did not deny that it had been committed at his instigation. As the law did not reach his case, a meeting of the citizens was held, to decide what should be done to avenge the insulted honor of the town. Their decision was, that the people should stand in two rows down through the broad street, and that between them the offender should pass, and taking off his hat to every individual as he passed, should say, "I ask your pardon." Having subsequently ascertained who was the person Raymond had procured to cut down the liberty-tree, they dressed him in a coat of tar and feathers, put him upon a bareboned horse, and compelled him to ride through the whole street, stop at every house, and ask pardon for what he had done. In a note to Dr. Dewey's discourse, referring to Dan Raymond, Rev. Mason Noble, Jr., of Sheffield, says: "From the record, one is compelled to conclude, that the 'Sheffield Tory' met with a change of heart, for, in 1780, he was chosen assessor, and a member of the 'committee to adjust town debts,' and 'overseer of the work-house,' and chairman of a committee to engage recruits for the Continental army. Moreover, his third son, born November 1, 1783, was named George Washington Raymond."

At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, Raymond may have stood aloof from the popular movement, yet, if so, he doubtless "met with a change of heart," earlier than 1780, or even July 5, 1776, for his name appears as a private on the roll of Lieut. Enoch Noble's militia company, in Col. Mark Hopkins' regiment of foot, being the first regiment in the county of Berkshire, dated Sheffield, June 13, 1776, which may be found on page 67 of the "Proceedings at the Centennial celebration of the town of Sheffield, June 18, and 19, 1876." In relation to this matter, there seems to be so great a discrepancy of dates, that the conclusion is irresistible, either that the events related must have transpired at an earlier date than July, 1776, or that some other person than Raymond must have been the principal actor.

Rev. GIDEON NOBLE, s. of Matthew, was b. in Westfield, Mass., March 6, 1728, and d. in Willington, Conn., according to the date on his gravestone, Nov. 6, 1792, æ. 64; but Nov. 13, 1792, according to the town record.

He graduated at Yale College, in 1755, joined Westfield church, May 9, 1756; and studied theology with Rev. Daniel Welch, of Mansfield, Conn., a niece of whose wife he subsequently married. He was ordained, Nov. 28, 1759, as pastor of the Congregational church in Willington, Conn., and dismissed, according to the statement in 1851, of one of his successors in the pastorate at Willington, Rev. David Bancroft, "between Nov. 18, and Nov. 30, 1790." He is remembered as a man, spare in flesh, a little over five feet in height, courteous, affable, without affectation or ostentatious show. In a history of the Willington church, Dea. G. O. Southwick says of him, "He was a man of lively disposition, sound learning, and a good preacher, often moving the congregation to tears, by his solemn admonitions." His children were all rather below the medium height, and are said to have been quite distinguished for their personal beauty. The family likeness was striking. He resided near the church on Willington hill. Over his remains was erected a stone bearing the following inscription: "This monument is erected | to the memory of the Rev. | Gideon Noble who departed | this life Nov. the 6th 1792 | in the 66th year of his age. | He labored in the Gospel | ministry, as Pastor of the | church in Willington 31 years. | Mark the perfect man, | and behold the upright | for the end of that man | is peace."

He was "about five feet and ten inches in height, and rather stout built." He resided in New Canaan, Conn., New Milford, Conn., West Stockbridge, Mass., and Hoosick, N. Y., removing to the latter place about 1792. He was in 1756, armorer in Col. Wooster's regiment of Connecticut troops. During the war of the American revolution, he raised a volunteer company, and received a captain's commission. He was a gunsmith, and a skillful workman, as the following documents from "American archives," 4th series, vol. V: 1465-70, show:

"New York Com. of Safety, Die Jovis 10 ho. A. M., Apr. 25, 1776.

A Letter and Recommendation from the Committee of King's District, in the County of Albany, recommending Thaddeus Noble as a Gunsmith, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

'KING'S DISTRICT, April 18, A. D. 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Thaddeus Noble, gunsmith, of this District, has made application to us, the Committee of the said District, for our recommendation in his behalf to your Committee, as an able workman at his trade or occupation of gunmaking. Being willing to lend said Noble our assistance in such a necessary and laudable business, at such a time as this, when muskets are so much needed to defend our natural rights and liberties against the potent power of Great Britain, we do accordingly hereby recommend said Noble as a workman at said business, so far as we are acquainted therein, and can inform that we have often seen of his said work, and that it has been generally to the acceptance of the publick. And as said Noble may not be able to procure all such materials as may be necessary for carrying on said business, if you, gentlemen should contract with said Noble for making muskets, &c., if he should want money for any part of the business, we desire you to furnish him therewith to the amount of thirty pounds, if he requires that sum; and any order that you shall have occasion to give from time to time in the premises, we shall readily obey. If you grant said request, please to let this Committee know, and the terms, &c.

Gentlemen, we are your very obedient servants, in the name and behalf of said Committee.

MATTHEW ADGATE, Chairman.

To the Committee of Safety of the Province of New York.'

The said Thaddeus Noble was called in to the Committee. They conversed with him on the subject of the said Letter, and he was desired to attend again at five of the clock in the afternoon.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock in the afternoon."

"Die Jovis 4to ho. P. M., Apr. 25, 1776.

Ordered that Mr. Van Zandt advance to Thaddeus Noble thirty Pounds, and take his obligation for that sum; and that he contract with Mr. Noble for thirty Muskets at eight Dollars each, without Bayonets; and to be allowed a reasonable price for fixing Bayonets to them, if he shall have to put Bayonets to them."

"Die Veneris, 10 ho. A. M., Apr. 26, 1776.

Mr. Van Zandt delivered in a Contract by him made with Thaddeus Noble, for the making of Muskets, which was read and filed.

The said Noble has hereby agreed to deliver to Mr. Van Zandt, on account of the Provincial Congress, thirty good Muskets, well finished, and with Steel Ramrods, on or before the 10th day of June next, at the price of eight Dollars each; and if he should deliver Bayonets fitted to the said Muskets out of some of the old Bayonets brought from Crown Point, Noble is to be allowed a reasonable reward for the same.

Mr. Van Zant also delivered the obligation of Noble, by him taken for the payment of thirty Pounds advanced to Noble, agreeable to the order of this Committee, made yesterday, and the same was read and filed.

Ordered, that Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of the Colony, pay to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt, thirty Pounds, to repay him the money advanced (by order of the Committee made yesterday), on a contract with Thaddeus Noble, for the making of Arms.

A draft of an Answer to the Letter of the Committee of King's District, was read and approved, and is as follows, to wit:

'SIR: Your letter by Mr. Noble was received, read, and immediately taken into consideration. In consequence of your recommendation, we have contracted with Mr. Noble, and advanced him thirty pounds. We think the Committee of King's District have merited the applause of their country, by interesting themselves in the promoting a manufactory so necessary for the defence of the rights and liberties of America.

We are &c.

To Matthew Adgate, Esq., Chairman, and the Members of the Committee of King's District."

Rev. OBADIAH NOBLE, s. of Obadiah, was b. in Sheffield, Mass., Sept. 6, 1739, and d. in Tinmouth, Mass., Feb. 19, 1829, æ. 89. He graduated, in 1763, at the College of New Jersey, in the same class with Gov. William Patterson of New Jersey, and Chief Justice Tappan Reeve of Connecticut. He was ordained, Nov. 5, 1771, as pastor of the Cong. church in Orford, N. H., and owing to the inability of the people to continue his salary, was dismissed Dec. 31, 1777. During the American revolution, he was for a time a chaplain of New Hampshire troops, and was present at the surrender, after the battle of Saratoga. Soon after 1777, he removed to Tinmouth, Vt., and after the organization of the courts, was for eight or ten years clerk of Rutland county, and for nineteen years subsequent to 1786, a justice of the peace. He was a man of great benevolence. In the words of one who remembers him well, "He was of medium size, with broad shoulders, full, deep breast, muscular frame, stout neck, full face, dark eyes, and dark hair, slightly silvered with gray." For six years, he was the sole survivor of his college class. He retained all his faculties, until within a few years of his death.

He m. Aug. 11, 1774, Mrs. REBECCA WHITE, b. in Leominster, Mass., about 1743, dau. of ——— Rogers. By her first husband, Jonathan White of Leominster, Mass., she had no children. She d. in Tinmouth, Vt., Nov. 23, 1833, æ. 90.

ROGER NOBLE, s. of Joseph, was b. in Sheffield, Mass., Apr. 2, 1742, and d. in Pownal, Vt., Sept. 15, 1810, s. 68. During one of the French and Indian wars, his father having been drafted to march from Sheffield to the Canada line, and finding it inconvenient to leave his family, Roger volunteered to go in his place. Having been fully equipped for the march, he tore himself away from his anxious mother, who had a strong impression that she should never again see his face, and took his departure through the wilderness for Canada. While not on duty, he used to mend the shoes of the soldiers, whose feet would bleed as they marched over the frozen ground. At length, having obtained leave of absence to visit his friends, in company with six whites and two friendly Indians, he started for home. While the whites were asleep on the second night of their journey, the Indians stole all their provisions and fled. For six days, Noble and his companions marched on without food, and were on the point of laying down to die, through complete exhaustion, when they came in sight of a house. There they were refreshed by food, and resuming their journey, reached their homes in safety.

At the time of Wolfe's death, 1759, Roger Noble is said to have been on the Plains of Abraham, in the capacity of an officer's waiter. In the American revolution, he was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and used afterward to say, that as he heard the bullets whistling over his head, while marching up the hill, he felt some fear, which vanished, however, the moment he came into action. He served during most of the war, and was a man of great courage. He marched in Lieut. J. Hickock's Co., and Col. John Ashley's Reg., to Kingsbury, and was out twenty-two days, from July 6—July 27, 1777. In the time of Shays' rebellion, he took sides with the government against the insurgents.

By trade a shoemaker, he abandoned that employment for the mercantile business, in which he engaged first at Sheffield, and afterwards at Hudson, N. Y. He also owned at Great Barrington, Mass., in company with Capt. Bacon, a store, which was supposed to have been burned by the Shays' men. Rose and Bly, just before their execution, confessed that they plundered and burned the store.

His residence in Sheffield was at first about a quarter of a mile from the village, but after the death of his father, he purchased, in the village, the place of Rev. John Keep. He removed about 1791, to Hudson, N. Y., and thence, about 1794, to Pownal, Vt., residing at the south village in the latter town, on the place where the widow of his son James resided, in 1856.

He m. abt. 1772, OLIVE HUNT, b. Dr. GIDEON NOBLE, s. of Rev. Gideon, was b. in Willington, Conn., Aug. 3, 1763, and d. in Glastonbury, Conn., July, 1807, æ. 43. Early in the Revolutionary war, a company of soldiers was raised in Willington, to march to New York. Being destitute of a fifer, they persuaded Rev. Mr. Noble to allow his son Gideon, then thirteen years of age, to accompany them in that capacity. He was at that early age, a good musician, and many a time did the soldiers, with whom he was a universal favorite, carry him on their shoulders over difficult places, while he played "march away." He was considered the mere child of the army. He however took cold, while on his way home, after having been inoculated for the small-pox, and had a long and distressing illness, for aid in defraying the expenses of which, his father presented the following petition to the General Assembly of Connecticut:

"To the Honourable, the general Assembly of the State of Connecticut, holden at Hartford, the 10th of Jan. 1782. The memorial of Gideon Noble of Willington Clerk humbly sheweth, that your Memorialist's Son, Gideon Noble yet continuing a Minor, enlisted into the continental Service, during the war, in the Spring of 1777, in Capt. Jonathan Parker's Company, Col. Charles Webb's Reg^t & soon after was inoculated by Order at Pomfret, on his return Home supposed to take Cold, was affected with a Disorder in his Knee & thigh which was soon attended with Tumifaction, Inflammation & extreme Pain; whereby he was confined to Bed for more than two months, the far greater Part of the Time; & required constant attendance both Day & Night. The Case was so extraordinary that his Physician, Doct. Cobb, desired & had Council. As he was, & still is, the publicks servant, your Memorialist humbly thinks it reasonable that the necessary Expence of his Sickness, should be allow'd by some publick Bord: Doct. Cobb charged his Bill directly to your Memorialist, upon my Desire drew it of, which with one for y^r Memorialist's Expence for Tendence, & other necessaries, your Memorialist's sent divers Times to the Hospital Directors at Danbury, but the proper person to lay it before, could not be found there, & neither of them have been allow'd by any publick Board, or pay Table to this Day; and your Memo-rialist is call'd upon by the Heirs of Doct. Cobb, who was his principal Physician, for the pay which is £9 8^s 0, charged agreeable to the then regulating Price: y^r Memorialist is likewise accountable to Doct. Rose, who was the Council Doct. Cobb desired, for four Journeys of ten Miles each all which with my own Bill for necessary attendance &c. which upon the Price of articles at ye Time, is £14 18 0, make a large sum for y^r Memorialist to pay & which it is impossible for him to pay without deducting so much out of the necessary Expe[nce] of his Family which is [narrow] & small & already reduced to great [stra]its. Your Memorialist therefore Prays your Honours to take his unhappy Case under your wise Consideration, & enable the pay Table to adjust the accounts & give Orders for such Sum as shall be found due, & reasonable, or in some other way grant Relief as y^r honour shall think just & equitable; as y^r. memorialist in duty bound shall ever Pray.

GIDEON NOBLE.

Dated at WILLINGTON Jan. 10. 1782."

Upon the above petition the Gen^l Assembly "Resolved by this Assembly that the foregoing Memorial be granted, and that the Committee of Pay Table be authorized and directed, and they are hereby authorized & directed, to draw an Order in favour of the Memorialist upon the Treasurer of this State for the sum of eleven Pounds, thirteen shillings and sixpence payable out of the Tax of two shilling and sixpence, Exclusive of such Part of ad. Tax as is Payable in this States money & charge y^e same to acct. of the united States."

[Passed Jan., 1782.]

Lauderdale of Geneseo, N. Y., writes, under date of July 31, 1856: "Russell Noble was known at an early period, in this country. He was a fiddler by profession, and was always seen at parties, balls, &c., with his fiddle encased in an old green bag. One peculiarity is mentioned, he was left-handed, and held the bow in his left hand." O. Turner, on page 468 of "Pioneer History of the Holland Purchase of Western New York," published in 1849, notices him as follows:

"And here in the reminiscences of this primitive period, occurs the name of one who, if he did not follow as useful an employment as the keeping of a house of public entertainment, made himself as well known. Russell Noble! At the bare mention of his name, there are surviving pioneers, who will be reminded of their younger days and their enjoyments, and if there is 'music in their souls'—as there was wont to be with most of them—they will almost fancy they hear the notes of his old violin! A fiddler was no obscure person in those early days; and Noble had no competitor—for he was the pioneer fiddler; he and his old violin mark the advent of music on the Holland Purchase. Compared with his, 'Italian trills were tame.' In those primitive times, in sleigh or ox-sled rides, at recreations that followed log-house raisings, logging-bees, road-cuttings, at Christmas and New Years' frolics; far and wide in the early sparse settlements, Noble and his fiddle formed an accustomed and necessary part. It was to be hoped that his reputation as a fiddler would have remained unquestioned; but recently a facetious gatherer-up of reminiscences has ventured to slur it, by intimating that he used to have no more regard for time than he had for eternity. The old fiddler still lives, and it was only last winter that he was an occasional guest at the houses of surviving pioneers—stripping the same old green bag from the same old fiddle, and reminding his auditors of early days."

He removed from Geneseo to Batavia, N. Y.

HON. OBADIAH NOBLE, s. of Rev. Obadiah, was b. in Orford, N. H., Feb. 12, 1777, and d. in Tinmouth, Vt., March 6, 1864, æ. 87. He resided in Tinmouth, Vt. "You are right," says Judge Noble, in a letter dated March 22, 1852, "in supposing me a self-made man. What little there is of me, was so made. I never had any education, but what I obtained at a common district school, such as we had seventy years ago. I worked on a farm, until I was twenty-three years old. I then went into the office of Smith & Prentice of Rutland, Vt., read law there a part of three years, and after being admitted to the bar as an attorney, returned to Tinmouth, and commenced practice."

He was register of probate, in 1799, admitted to the bar in April, 1803; chosen representative to the General Court, 1811-12, 1815-16, 1820, and 1830; State senator, 1838 and 1839; member of the council of censors, 1827; member of the constitutional convention, 1828, and 1836; justice of the peace, 1807-1848; judge of probate, 1813-1830; judge of the county court, 1839-1842. "These several appointments," writes Judge Noble, in 1852, "called me thirteen times to our seat of government, a distance of seventy miles. I live ten miles from where our courts are held, and when I held my Probate court once in each month, and oftener by special appointment, I have ever been physically able to perform and did perform every duty incumbent upon me by these several appointments. I have never been confined to the house a day in my life by sickness or lameness."

The Rutland Herald of March 8, 1864, contains the following notice of Judge Noble's death, and estimate of his character:

"Hon. Obadiah Noble of Tinmouth died suddenly on Sunday morning last, at the age of 87 years. Not coming to his breakfast as usual on that morning, his chamber was entered, and he was found dead upon the floor, partially dressed.

"Judge Noble was a man of eminent good sense and practical judgment, of retentive memory, of genial and kindly feelings, and spotless character. He possessed a rich fund of anecdote and information regarding events which transpired in the time of his youth and vigorous manhood, which will make his loss all the more seriously felt by those interested in the early history of the State, and especially of Rutland County."

From 1829, until his death, with the exception of a few years, Fayetteville was the place of his residence. He was an efficient Sabbath-school superintendent; and a deacon of the Baptist church, both in Fayetteville, and in the Pearl street Baptist church, Albany, N. Y. In early life, he espoused the anti-slavery cause, and was identified with Gerrit Smith, James G. Birney, Beriah Green, and all those earnest workers for the abolition of slavery. He was one of the founders, and the first publisher, of the National Era, an anti-slavery journal printed in Washington, D. C. He was also an active supporter of the temperance cause. "He was a man of commanding presence, large brain, considerable intellectual culture, a good speaker, and an honest man. He might have filled high political stations, but his radical views kept him in the minority. His generous spirit could not be fettered by sectarian narrowness, or the blind bigotry of a corrupt public sentiment. He cared not for office—he wanted honesty and honor in the conduct of public affairs."

JOSEPH BATES NOBLE, s. of Ezekiel, was b. in Egremont, Mass., Jan. 14, 1810. From 1827 to 1834, he was employed in the flouring mills of A. H. Fairchild of Bloomfield, N. Y., and Messrs. James and William Wadsworth of Geneseo, N. Y. Having embraced the Mormon doctrines, in 1834, he started with an exploring party for western Missouri, in search of lands to colonize, and during the summer, travelled, mostly on foot, a distance of 2,800 miles. In Oct., 1834, he removed to Willoughby, O., and for one year was employed in a flouring mill. He was ordained, in 1835, an elder in the Mormon church; in 1839, as a councillor to Bishop Elias Smith; in 1843, as a bishop in charge of the Fifth ward in Nauvoo, Ill.; in 1846, as a bishop in charge of one division in Council Bluffs, Iowa; and subsequently for three or four years, acted as a bishop in Salt Lake City. In 1838, he removed to Far West, Caldwell Co., Mo.; in 1839, to Montrose, Lee Co., Iowa; in 1841, to Nauvoo, Ill., and in 1846, to Council Bluffs, Iowa. He was with the pioneers, and had charge of a company across the desert into Utah, which was then Mexican soil, arriving at Salt Lake City, Utah Ter., in Sept., 1847. About 1862, he removed to Bountiful, Davis Co., Utah Ter., where he still, 1877, resides. About forty years of his life have been spent as a Mormon missionary. He is a man of great energy and commanding influence. Few of the descendants of Thomas Noble have manifested greater interest than he, in the publication of the genealogy and history of the family, and but one other person has subscribed so liberally for the work.

MARK NOBLE, s. of Thomas, was b. in Westfield, Mass., abt. 1670, and there d. Apr. 16, 1741, s. abt. 71. He was a farmer, and was chosen, 1718, "surveyor for town, county and countrey roads," in 1720, constable, and in Dec., 1722, in connection with Capt. Ashley, Joseph Dewey, and Israel Dewey, was "chosen to dignifie the seats in the meeting house, which dignification the townsmen confirmed by a voat." He was chosen tithingman, Mch. 8, 1725. On the 8th of April, 1741, only nine days previous to his death, he executed a will or deed, giving his property to his sons, John and Noah Noble. To this instrument he added his mark, in a tremulous hand, being evidently too feeble to sign his name, as he had done to a deed in 1732. This deed or will, which was in existence in 1852, seems never to have been recorded or proved, and is not now to be found.

He m. 1698, MARY or MERCY MARSHALL, dau. of Samuel and Rebecca (Newberry) Marshall of Northampton, Mass. Her birth is not to be found on the Northampton record. The marriage record gives her the name of Mary, while her father, in his will, calls her Mercy. On the 23d Dec., 1703, she entered into a state of fellowship with the Westfield church. She d. Capt. ELI NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in Southwick, Mass., Oct. 16, 1789, and d. in Pownal, Vt., Dec., 1827, æ. 88. His gravestone, among other inaccuracies, states that he d. Feb. 13, 1826, æ. 60. He was a soldier in the last French and Indian war, and was among those surrendered at Fort William Henry. While others were being massacred, he was seized and led away by two Indians, who held him fast by the wrists. As he walked on without making any opposition, he was soon left to the care of one Indian. Watching his opportunity, as they were about to pass a log, Noble permitted the Indian to go before him, and then wrenching his arm from his grasp, fled in the opposite direction. Being a man of uncommon agility, he was able to make good his escape, and in due time reached his home in safety. He was, 1758, a soldier under Capt. Selah Barnard.

He removed, as early as 1766, to Pownal, Vt., of which town he was a selectman, in 1777. He is said to have held a commission at the battle of Bennington, though not to have been in the engagement. He was appointed a justice of the peace, Oct. 20, 1778, an office which he retained, for eighteen years. Whether the above was his first appointment, has not been ascertained. He was representative, in 1778. His will, made Nov. 28, 1825, was proved Apr. 2, 1828. His wife, Elizabeth, was his executrix. His eyes were blue, and he was about five feet and ten inches in height. He was a farmer.

TIMOTHY NOBLE, s. of John, was b. in Southwick, Mass., Apr. 8, 1758, and there d. of apoplexy, Mch. 3, 1827, æ. 68. He served out two drafts in the American revolution. At the evacuation of Ticonderoga, having more baggage than he could carry, he foolishly threw away his rations, and was in consequence obliged to fast for three days. He was chosen the first deacon of the Baptist church in Southwick, constituted in 1806, and retained the office until his death.

He had brown hair and hazel eyes, was of medium height, thin in flesh, and mild in disposition. Between him and his brother Amos, there existed a wonderful attachment, not unlike that of Damon and Pythias, in ancient story. From their father they inherited a farm of four hundred acres, on condition of paying some debts and small legacies. This they never divided, but held all things in common, and were seldom seen apart. While working in the field, if anything called one of the brothers to the house, the other was sure to accompany him. How much happier would this world be, if children of the same father always manifested a similar affection for each other!

ABNER NOBLE, s. of Eli, was b. prob. in Southwick, Mass., Dec. 25, 1761, and d. in Bennington, Vt., Nov. 25, 1829, æ. 67. He was a farmer, and, until his removal to Bennington, resided in Pownal, Vt., on the east side of the main road from Pownal Centre to Bennington, about one mile north of the church. The house is still standing, 1877, and owned by Mrs. Sylvanus Towslee. During the American revolution, he was several times called into the service of his country. He was about five feet and ten inches in height, and had light blue eyes and light brown hair.

Having unwisely become security for a friend by the name of Choate, who afterwards failed, he was obliged to give up all his real estate in Pownal, and remove, in 1823, to the farm of his wife in Bennington. A violent death, however, awaited him, the particulars of which are given in a Bennington newspaper of December, 1829:

"Melancholy accident. On the 25th ult., Mr. Abner Noble of this town, aged sixty-eight years, was found dead in the highway. The particulars of the accident which deprived him of life, and the condition in which he was found upon the highway, are these. He was driving an ox-team attached to a wagon loaded with wood, which he probably proposed drawing to this village for market. His team was found quietly standing in the road, and he lying upon his face between the wheels, the after wheel passing upon his shoulder, which, as the ground was a little descending, confined him as he lay, and, as no assistance was near, probably smothered him. Mr. Noble was an honest man, and one of the most industrious, throughout his whole course of life.

"The bereaved widow, about 11 years since, lost her first husband, under a providence as sudden and unexpected. Her first husband was precipitated from the same wagon, on the night remembered and designated as the 'dark night of 1818,' down the bold bank of the Safford mill-pond, in this town, into its waters, and drowned. Surely the lesson to her is singularly striking, 'in the midst of life, we are in death.'"

He m. (1) Jan. 1, 1795, ESTHER BOLTWOOD, b. in Amherst, Mass., Feb. 14, 1762, dau. of William and Mary (Sheldon) Boltwood. She d. in Pownal, Jan. 1, 1820, æ. 58. The inscription on her gravestone in the cemetery at Pownal Centre is as follows: "In memory of | Esther Noble, wife | of Abner Noble | who died, Jan. 1, 1820 | in the 57 year | of her age.

Completely alone through every scene of life,
A tender parent, and a virtuous wife,
Though her loved form lies mouldering in the tomb,
In happier climes her kindred virtues bloom."

ENOCH NOBLE, s. of Gad, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Mch. 5, 1773, and d. in Richmond, Vt., Jan. 29, 1856, æ. 82. He resided in Bristol, Conn., 1795-1800; Hartland, Conn., 1800-1806; Richmond, Vt., 1806-56. A man of untiring industry, both as a farmer and blacksmith, he brought up his children respectably, impressing upon their minds lessons of industry and economy, which they will never forget. He was generous, hospitable, eminently social in his habits, and of unquestioned integrity. Never tied to party, he invariably voted for the candidate, in his opinion, best fitted for the place, without regard to his political sentiments.

Actuated by a strong love of country, in the War of 1812, he was one of the first volunteers; was in the battle of Plattsburg, and performed service at Sackett's Harbor, for which he received a pension. The story is told of him, that when on the way to Plattsburg, some one asked him, "How long do you intend to stay?"

"Stay," was his answer. "I shall stay as long as a Briton remains to invade our soil."

Following the faith of his parents, at the age of twelve years he united with the Baptist church, but subsequently embraced the doctrine of universal salvation. He retained his mental faculties unimpaired until the close of his long life (a).

CHARLES EDWIN NOBLE, s. of Horace, was b. Dec. 25, 1824. He was a student for five years at the Connecticut Literary Institute, in Suffield, Conn., and from 1847-51, taught schools in Morristown, and Dover, N. J. Having in the spring of the latter year accidentally formed the acquaintance of Zebadiah Beach Bassinger, chief engineer of the Morris & Essex R. R., he was by him induced to join a corps of engineers, who were about to make a survey for extending that road across the state of New Jersey. In the employ of that company he continued until 1857, passing through the various grades from rodman to chief assistant engineer. He was appointed, in 1857, chief engineer, on the Jacksonville & Alton R. R., since called the Jacksonville branch of the Chicago & Alton R. R. Soon after the commencement of the Civil war, work on the above road having been suspended, in 1862, he returned to New Jersey, as superintendent of the Morris & Essex R. R., and completed the extension from Newark to Hoboken, and from Hackettstown the western terminus to Phillipsburg, opposite Easton on the Delaware. In Aug., 1867, he left the last-named railroad and took charge of the Sussex R. R., as chief engineer. While engaged on this road, he made surveys through all the valleys of Sussex and Warren counties, from Belvidere to the New York state line, on the Walkill, although but a small portion of the routes were constructed. In the month of Mch., 1870, through the influence of William E. Dodge, Moses Taylor, and other New York directors of the Sussex R. R., he went to Texas, and during his five years connection, as chief engineer, with the International & Great Northern R. R., constructed between four and five hundred miles of railway. The "panic" closing their work, in 1874, he returned to Morristown, N. J., and purchased a home in the town where twenty-seven years before he had commenced his work as school-teacher. His timely, generous, and unsolicited subscription to the Noble Genealogy, has greatly encouraged the compiler, in his second endeavor to print this book. He was b. in Southwick, Mass.

THIRD GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

LUKE NOBLE, s. of Sergt. Luke, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 23, 1700, and d. in Great Barrington, Mass., abt. Mch. 27, 1778, æ. abt. 77. He was by trade a blacksmith, and removed, abt. 1743, from Westfield to Great Barrington, and owned and lived upon the place, in the south part of the village, now, 1875, Edward Mauvel's, until 1759, when he sold it to Nathaniel Lee, and afterwards lived near by, on the opposite side of the street.

The last named place, in 1772, he mortgaged to John Williams, and the mortgage had not been discharged at the time of his death, in 1778. He evidently died poor. The town, about 1778, appointed a committee to inquire into the condition of Luke Noble's property, perhaps because he was a town charge. Administration on his estate was granted Jan. 5, 1779, to William Whiting of Great Barrington. The date of his death is inferred from the following entry on the books of Dr. William Whiting, under date of March 27, 1778: "Town Dr. To Holland shirt to lay out Luke Noble in, 12s." Whiting was a physician, a justice, and at that time a selectman.

AARON NOBLE, s. of Sergt. Luke, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Nov. 10, 1711, and there d. unm., of a nervous fever, Feb. 6, 1790, æ. 78. He was by trade a weaver, and when comparatively young became insane in consequence, it is said, of disappointment in an early attachment. A representation having been made, Jan. 27, 1746, to the judge of probate for Hampshire county, by Moses, Asa, and Samuel Noble, that their brother, Aaron Noble of Westfield, was "non compos, lunatick, or distracted," and a wish expressed that he would take care of his person and estate, the judge directed the selectmen of Westfield to inquire into his state. Their report, recorded in Hampshire probate records, vol. vii: p. 25, was as follows:

"Hampshire ss. Westfield, March, 1745-6.

"Whereas the Hon^{ble} John Stoddard, Esq., Judge of the Probate of Wills &c., hath directed us the subscribers to make Inquiry into the circumstances of Aaron Noble of Westfield, whether he is compos mentis, or not, and make report to him the said Judge, of our Judgment therein and reasons thereof: in consequence whereof we have made Inquiry, and do judge, that he the said Aaron is now non compos mentis, but delirious or distracted, for the reasons following, viz: he often says his Father, and his own mother (whose maiden name was Ruth Wright) is at Northampton, and would go up and see them, and that Moses Noble, Asa and Samuel Noble were not his brothers, Ruth Wright his mother, was not their mother, and he will often strive with his hands, and arms, and in those agonies, says it is to keep Samuel Noble from being him, viz. the said Aaron, and sometimes mentions other persons that are a trying to be him. He was an industrious man till about two or three years ago, and now he has left off his trade of weaving, and almost all sorts of business, and will sit in his chair by the fire, and get up and walk a few steps, and come and sit again, and by appearance seems to be in a muse, and not capable to judge the force of any argument, and often says his mare tells him where he shall go. When he is abroad, he will sometimes walk a few rods, and stand still sometime, and then move again, and when he passeth by any body in the street, he seldom looks on them, and goeth as tho' he did not see them, and looks in his countenance as tho' his reason and judgment are very much depreciated, and he says that sometime since he was at Moses Noble's house, and Moses and he changed, he was Moses and Moses was him, viz. Aaron, and he was not so well, until they changed back again. He says that Samuel Noble's wife is Samuel, and he is his wife, and that Samuel's wife is a mind to get his grace from him, to give to her children, and much more of the like talk and actions. And as to the management of his estate, is as followeth, viz., he lets much of his land lie without improvement, and if any person asketh him to let them have his land upon hire or to the halves, he saith he is not determined and will let his grass stand, until it is almost ruined. All these things that are written the other side of this paper, and the above written, are the truth of Aaron Noble's circumstances, by our own information of his neighbours.

THOMAS INGERSOLE,	} Selectmen."
ELDAD TAYLOR,
DAVID MOSELY,
JOHN SHEPHERD, Jr.

In consequence of the above report, Thomas Ingersoll of Westfield, was by the judge of probate appointed guardian of "Aaron Noble of said Westfield, who is according to law determined to be non compos mentis," and took bond, Apr. 8, 1746, for the performance of said trust.

She m. abt. 1761, Capt. EZEKIEL ROOT of Pittsfield, to whom she was pub. Nov. 15, 1761. He was b. in Westfield, Mch. 5, 1736, s. of John and Anna (Loomis) Root, and d. Oct. 14, 1808, æ. 72. He was an inn-keeper. Smith, in his "History of Pittsfield," Vol. I, p. 190, says:

"The case of Ezekiel Root is a singular one. He was a very pronounced tory in his conversation, and even went so far as to name his children for the British commanders, but all his recorded acts are on the whig side, as in signing petitions, serving on the Committee of Safety, and in volunteering for Bennington and other fields. He was often elected to important town offices, and once at least by the extreme radicals, to represent them in the county congress. Though sometimes disciplined for a too loud expression of toryism—to the offence of sensitively patriotic ears—it seems to have been regarded by the community as the eccentricity of a worthy man, which would never stand seriously in the way of duty. He never lost the good will of the people, who were never famed for charity toward political opponents."

WILLIAM HENRY NOBLE, s. of Luke, was b. in Pittsfield, Mass., Nov. 15, 1805, and d. in Woodville, Miss., May 24, 1876, æ. 70. Thrown at an early age upon his own resources, after receiving a good common school education, he entered the store of Mr. Fenn, a relative of the family in Pittsfield, Mass. In 1836, he left his home to seek his fortune in the great southwest, then the Eldorado of America. He fixed his residence the same year in Natchez, Miss., and for several years held a responsible position as clerk in the Agricultural bank. In 1844, he removed to Woodville, Miss., became a merchant, and soon established a prosperous business. The Civil war, however, swept away the accumulation of years. At its close, in 1865, hoping to retrieve his fortunes, he entered again into mercantile business, in company with his only son. For some years he was treasurer of Wilkinson County, and at the time of his death was president of the County board of supervisors. Of a gentle and unobtrusive nature, he was yet a man of strong ideas and firm convictions. During the darkest days of the rebellion, he was ever a steadfast supporter of the Union.

The following extract from the Woodville Republican of May 27, 1876, published a few days after his decease, will show the estimation in which he was held by his fellow citizens:

"Mr. Noble was a Republican in politics, but even in the times of bitterest rancor, no word of reproach was ever uttered against him. A life of strictest integrity and unblemished purity, had secured for him a hold upon the respect of the people that even the prejudices of party could not shake. He was elected to the board of supervisors by the vote of all classes, without opposition, and became its president, and all felt from that time forth there would be economy and honesty in our county administration, for Mr. Noble was constitutionally an honest man."

He m. Mch. 5, 1840, ANN McCONNELL, b. in Natchez, Miss., June 9, 1810, dau. of James and Julia (Forgett) McConnell. She resides, 1877, in Woodville, Miss.

He m. (2) Feb. 24, 1704, CATHARINE HIGLEY, b. Aug. 7, 1679, dau. of John and Hannah (Drake) Higley of Windsor and Simsbury, Conn. She was sister of Hannah Higley, mother of the first Governor Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut. She is supposed to have been the first female teacher in Westfield. The town, on the 3d of May, 1725, voted, "to give the widow Catharine Noble, 25 shillings a month for keeping school, so long as the Town sees cause to improve her in that service, and if she sees cause to attend it." She afterward removed to Hebron, Conn., and was living there Feb. 28, 1740, with her son, David. She joined Hebron church, Nov. 23, 1740. Whether she died in Hebron or in Pittsfield, Mass., has not been ascertained.

In his "History of Hadley," p. 243, Sylvester Judd relates, that "When young, she was a girl of superior beauty, and much admired. She was wooed by a young man from Hartford, and the attachment was mutual. She was spirited and self-directing, and in attending an evening party in Hadley, her lover paid more attention to another lady than she thought was proper, and her jealousy was excited, and she hastily dismissed him. She soon exceedingly regretted what she had done, but did not attempt to conciliate him. According to tradition, she was after this, in some respects, a changed person, and did not again become a gay and sprightly girl. She married at the age of forty-nine, Daniel Noble of Westfield, and after his death lived in Hadley, and when her estate was expended, was maintained by the town. She who in early life had as fair prospects as any young lady in Hadley, died a town pauper in 1802, at the age of 90. She possessed a great fund of anecdotes and stories, including many witch-stories, and she delighted the young by her wonderful recitals."

DAVID NOBLE, s. of James, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Mch. 3, 1709, and d. in Hebron, Conn., Feb. 18, 1761, s. 51. He removed, in 1732, to that part of Hebron, Conn., which is now Gilead, and joined the Hebron Cong. church, Aug. 28, 1737. His residence was about $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles northwest of the Hebron meeting-house, and one mile west of the Gilead meeting-house, on the south side of the highway leading to Marlborough. The farm has since passed through the hands of Simeon Dunham, Isaac Dunham, Ansel Dunham, David Hall, to David Hall, Jr., the owner in 1877. The Gilead society was set off in 1748, and at the first meeting held June 13, 1748, it was "Voted, that Mr. Thomas Post and Mr. David Noble shall tune the psalms for us on the days of divine worship." The same year, he was chosen on a school committee. At a meeting in Gilead, Nov. 16, 1748, "Zerubbabel Rollo, Samuel Gilbert, Jr., and David Noble, were chosen a committee to treat with Eliphalet and Ephraim Youngs about the land to set our meeting-house on, and stake it out, and make a return to the next meeting." On the 12th of December, 1748, this committee reported that they had obtained gift of Ephraim Youngs of a piece of land, "so long as a house for the publick worship of God shall be needed there." In 1749, he was chosen moderator of the Society's meeting; on the 5th of Mch., 1750, on a committee to treat with a minister, and on the 3d of Dec., 1750, on a committee to apply to the South association, for advice as to a candidate to preach the gospel at Gilead. His children were all born in Hebron, except David, the eldest, who was born in Westfield. A monument erected to his memory in the Gilead burying yard, bears the following inscription: "In memory of Mr. David Noble, who died Feb^y 18th 1761, in y^e 53^d year of his age."

He m. May 17, 1731, ABIGAIL LOOMIS, b. Apr. 30, 1711, dau. of Philip and Hannah Loomis of Simsbury, Conn. In her old age, she resided with her children. In 1798, her son James attended her from Orwell, Vt., to Pittsfield, Otsego Co., N. Y., where she died at the house of her son, Aaron, about 1802, s. abt. 91.

Capt. DAVID NOBLE, s. of David, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Jan. 25, 1732, and d. in Skeensborough (now Whitehall), N. Y., Aug. 5, 1776, æ. 44. He was carried in infancy, by his parents, to Gilead parish in Hebron, Conn. In March, 1756, he is called "shoemaker." That he removed from Gilead, to Westfield, Mass., as early as 1757, is inferred from the following entry in the Westfield church records under date of July 17, 1757, "David Noble and wife having owned Covenant at Hebron, Conn., were admitted to Chh. privileges here." On the 2d of May, 1758, he was called of Westfield, and was a grantor of land in that town. He doubtless returned again to Gilead, for his daughter Rebecca was baptized there, in 1760, and is called, in a deed, Nov. 11, 1760, of Hebron. The Pittsfield town records show that he was chosen, May 11, 1761, a warden; and Aug. 18, 1761, a juror there. His family could not then have accompanied him thither, or else he returned a third time to Gilead, for his son Enoch was there baptized in 1763. The town of Pittsfield voted, in 1765, to erect three school-houses, and David Noble was employed to build the one in the western district.

His name appears June 24, 1774, as one of the ten signers of the petition to the selectmen of Pittsfield, asking them to call a town-meeting, "to act and do what the town think proper respecting the circular letter sent out by the town of Boston and other towns in this Province; and such other matters as the town shall think proper in regard to the invaded liberties of this country." At a meeting held June 30, 1774, in response to the above petition, the first action was to appoint "a standing committee to correspond with the correspondent committees of this and other Provinces," and on this committee of seven, the chairman of which was the Rev. Thomas Allen, pastor of the church, appears the name of Lieut. David Noble.

An alarm having been given Sept. 1, 1774, that the British troops and men-of-war had fired on Boston, the people of Massachusetts at once sprang to arms, and marched to defend and avenge their brethren. The company from Pittsfield, with David Noble as captain, and James Easton as lieutenant, went as far as Westfield. Counter intelligence having there reached them, the men returned home. To each private and non-commissioned officer, the town voted £2 for "himself and horse," and to the captain and his lieutenant £6, but refused additional pay to the last two for continuing their trip to Boston.

At an adjourned meeting of the town, held Jan. 24, 1775, it was "Voted 1st. That the town pay the Sum of one shilling & six pence pr Day to Each & Every Piquet or Minute man that have or shall hereafter enlist in the Piquet Company in the Town of Pittsfield under the command of Capt. David Noble. Provided that each & every man enlisted as afores^d shall equip & furnish himself with proper and sufficient arms & accoutrements fit for War, & stand ready at a minutes warning to march and oppose the Enemy's of our Country if called thereto. And provided nevertheless that each Piquet man as afores^d shall make Default in appearing as afores^d to Exercise after being properly Notified for that Purpose, Each and every Person making such Default, shall forfeit the sum of three shillings pr Day to be paid or Deducted out of his Wages hereby Granted him, unless such Person making such Default have a reasonable Excuse for his absence, & the Officers of s^d Piquet are hereby appointed Judges to Determine the performance of the Promises afores^d.

"2. That the piquet Company afores^d Exercise Four half Days pr Month from this time untill further orders from this Town."

The news of the battle of Lexington reached Berkshire County, Apr. 21, 1775, and the next morning the regiment of Col. Patterson was on its way to the east, completely equipped with arms, and generally in uniform. The regiment marched to Cambridge, and consisted after organization of ten companies, of one of which David Noble was captain. The precise time of his return home is not known, but it was probably not until after the battle of Bunker Hill, in which he is said to have borne a part in the defence of Fort No. 3, a work of his own regiment.

On the 31st of December, 1775, he marched again, and probably for the last time, from Pittsfield to Boston, and after the evacuation of that town, in March, 1776, proceeded to New York, and thence to Canada, for the purpose of joining Arnold. The sad tidings of defeat of the latter at Quebec, prevented the accomplishment of this purpose, and the regiment of Patterson, which had entered Canada with high hopes of success, was compelled to join in the hasty retreat toward New York, by way of Crown Point. While worn down with fatigue, and suffering from unwholesome food, being attacked with small-pox, at Isle aux Noix, the latter part of June, 1776, Capt. Noble was removed to Crown Point, and there, in less than two months, when his country most needed his willing services, this self-sacrificing patriot—noble by nature as well as by name—passed to his reward.

Administration on his estate was granted, Dec. 9, 1778, to his brother James and son David Noble, which, owing to his generous expenditures in the cause of his country, was declared insolvent. On the Berkshire County probate records, No. 5, pp. 180-1, appears the account of one of the administrators, which will be of interest to his descendants:

And one asks, "What return has the country given to the family of Capt. Noble, for his patriotic services?" We answer, "not any."

Upon their claim, four favorable reports were made to Congress between the years 1841 and 1858. The last of these is copied entire, as it sets forth fully, the sacrifices made and the privations endured by Capt. Noble, in the service of his country.

"35th Congress 1st Session. House of Representatives. Report No. 285. Legal representatives of Captain David Noble, deceased. [To accompany bill H. R. No. 501.] Apr. 17, 1858.

Mr. Dawes, from the Committee on Revolutionary Claims, made the following report:

The Committee on Revolutionary Claims, to whom was referred the petition of the heirs of Captain David Noble, an officer of the Revolution, having had the same under consideration, report:

That this claim was in 1841 presented to Congress. The Committee on Revolutionary Claims made a favorable report, and recommended a bill for the relief of the petitioners. A second and third like reports have been made to this House, recommending bills for the relief of the petitioners, followed by a similar report, with the recommendation of a bill for the relief of the petitioners made by the Senate, all of the four committees of the two branches of Congress coming to the same conclusions and results.

At this stage of the case, Congress referred it to the Court of Claims, and the claimants preferred their petition to said court, which petition set forth the interest of claimants in the claim, and how it accrued, claiming that their ancestor, Captain David Noble, was commissioned by Congress with the rank of captain in about the year 1775, in the continental service in the Revolutionary war, and served therein until his death, having died in the service, which occurred in the month of July, 1776, leaving a widow and children him surviving. The widow being deceased, the orphan children become entitled to the seven years' half-pay promised by the resolution of Congress of the 24th day of August, 1780.

COPY OF ORDINANCE OF AUGUST 24, 1780.

"Resolved, That the resolutions of 15th May, 1778, granting half-pay for seven years to the officers of the army who should continue in service to the end of the war be extended to the widows of those officers who have died or shall hereafter die in the service, to commence from the time of such officers' death, and continue for the term of seven years; or if there be no widow, or in case of her death or intermarriage, the said half-pay to be given to the orphan children of the officer dying as aforesaid, if he shall have left any; and that it be recommended to the legislatures of the respective States to which such officers belong to make provision for paying the same on account of the United States."

That after a hearing in the Court of Claims, the Court determine that whatever may be the merits of the claim, it is barred by the operation of the several resolutions and acts of Congress referred to by the court which barred said claim, to wit: the resolves of the 2d of November, 1785, 28d July, 1787, 28d March, 1792, 12th February, 1793, and which are called acts of limitation.

That at the present session of Congress the Court of Claims made their adverse report (see Calendar, No. 108), which was placed on the Calendar of the House, and when in Committee of the Whole on the Calendar on the 19th day of February last, the case was reached and called, when the adverse report of the Court of Claims was concurred in, without being read or stated, or any explanation made as to the merits of the claim. The House, in the case that next succeeded it (No. 109), having determined not to allow the statute of limitations to be used as a bar, but that each case should be determined upon their merits; and this claim being of a like character, it is now presented on petition (referred to your committee), praying for examination upon its merits, with the prayer of the petitioner that the acts of limitation be disregarded, and not applied in bar against this claim.

Your committee, considering this claim to be a proper case for their consideration, have carefully examined the evidence, and now report to the House the facts presented to them. It appears by a certificate from the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts of March 30, 1840, that from an examination of the books and documents relative to military services in the war of the Revolution in his department, the name of David Noble is borne on "a return of the names and places of residence of all the commissioned, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers which have enlisted in the 26th regiment of foot, now in the continental service, from its establishment, together with the casualties happened in the same service to this day, being the 6th of October, 1775," as captain from Pittsfield.

Solomon Martin testifies that he was well acquainted with Captain David Noble of Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, and was himself second lieutenant under Captain Noble, and in the continental service in the Revolution with him in 1775 and 1776; that he was with Captain Noble in Cambridge, and in New York, in Canada, and other places; that he returned with Capt Noble and his company from Canada to Crown Point and Ticonderoga, where Captain Noble was taken sick, and was removed in a boat to Skeensburg, where he died in the service in the summer of 1776.

The credibility of this witness is duly certified, and further sustained in what he says by being found on the original muster-roll of Captain Noble's company, on file, as second lieutenant. In further support of Captain Noble's service is an original letter from him, dated at Crown Point, July 1, 1776, to his wife, and addressed to her as follows: "Mrs. Ruth Noble, Pittsfield, per favor of Mr. Chamberlin."

"CROWN POINT, July 1, 1776.

"DEAR WIFE: I would inform you that through Divine goodness I am alive but not very well, for by reason of hard fatigue before I had the small-pox, by marching and unsuitable diet, the distemper has left me in a poor state of health, though I had it very light. Ten days ago I was sent with the sick from Isle Auxaux to this place, and have grown more poorly than better since I came here. Our army is very distressed by reason of the small-pox; we have had four thousand sick at once; I have not lost one of my company yet, though some have had it very severe;

Sergeant Colefix is now very bad and it is doubtful whether he ever recovers. I had two men taken by the Indians in Major Sherbern's party, which are redeemed; and one Samuel Merry of my company is either killed or taken by the regulars going down on a raft from Montreal to Borrel. The distresses of our sick is so unaccountable that I cannot paint it out by pen and ink. (All my company have had it.) If it was not for the danger of the small-pox I should be glad to have brother James or David come up and see me, and bring my horse, for I intend to try to come home if I remain so poorly. I believe that one of them may come safe by taking good care when he gets here. I suppose that there is about four thousand of the well of our army at the Isle Auxnaux, and whether they will stay there or come here I do not know. Tell Croner's wife that he has had the small-pox, and has got well over the distemper, but he has had the misfortune to have it fall into one of his eyes so that I am afraid he will lose the sight of one eye. He remembers his kind love to her and child. He intends to try to come home when I come; he cannot write for want of paper. It is very hard living; wine one dollar per quart; spirits one dollar per quart; loaf sugar three shillings per pound; butter one shilling and sixpence—nor to be had for that; no milk. All the above articles hardly to be had. Vinegar three shillings per quart. I shall write no more at present, but remain your loving husband,

DAVID NOBLE, Captain."

This letter was written but a few days before the death of Captain Noble, and alludes to the sickness which proved fatal to him. Captain Noble sacrificed his entire property, as well as his life, in the service of his country. On the first alarm which spread through the country, after the battles of Concord and Bunker Hill, he raised a company of volunteers in Berkshire county, Massachusetts, and marched with them as far as Springfield; afterwards, with his own means, purchased "one hundred and thirty stand of arms," new, for the supply of his company; drilled them through the next winter; "clothed them with regimentals, their breeches being made of buckskin, their coats of blue turned up with white;" sent from Cambridge, whither he had gone, "for all the goods that remained in his store at home, both linen and woollens, that would answer for soldiers clothing." "We harvested," says his son, now deceased, in a letter written in 1836, "thirty acres of wheat, which was floured and sent to Cambridge the next winter, all excepting what our families used." "My father sold two farms in Stephentown, in the State of New York, and one or two in Pittsfield about the same time. Those in the State of New York were sold in 1774, which enabled him to supply his company with their arms and clothing. The reason of my recollecting the circumstance of my father selling the farms in the State of New York is, that the man who bought them (their names were Jones and David Green) brought his money in gold, quilted around every piece of his underclothes, which took my aunt some time to rip the gold pieces out. He then went to Philadelphia and bought the deer skins or leather, and at the same time hired a breeches maker, and the breeches were all made up at our house."

The present application is not for remuneration for the property thus patriotically sacrificed, but simply for the redemption of the pledge of the government that the widow and orphan children of such officers as died in the service should be entitled to seven years' half-pay. The committee believe that pledge should be redeemed, and report a bill accordingly."

Had the bill accompanying the above report passed, the family of Capt. Noble would have received the long-delayed half-pay, to the amount of $1,680, about half the then yearly pay of a captain in the United States army.

The Berkshire County Eagle of May 21, 1858, in an article introducing the report of Mr. Dawes, has the following editorial:

"A Pittsfield Nobleman. We are indebted to Hon. H. L. Dawes, for the opportunity of presenting to our readers a document, which must prove of striking interest, especially to Pittsfield men; as reviving the memory of a revolutionary patriot, whose fame ought not to have become dim in this town; but of whose character and services the great majority of the people of Pittsfield at this day, like ourselves, knew nothing. Mr. Dawes has taken a lively interest in this case, as one which develops facts which do honor to his district. In a private letter, he says: "I think it will be of interest to the people of Pittsfield, who should erect a monument to the glorious old patriot, in their beautiful cemetery. I have the original of the letter copied in the report, and were it an heirloom in my family, no money should induce me to part with it." We have no doubt that the people of Pittsfield will peruse with gratification and pride, this record of the faithfulness and self-devotion of the fathers, in the times that tried men's souls. And with what vividness does such a memento bring back the nature and reality of sufferings and sacrifices which are becoming to us too much like a tale that is told. Every glimpse which we thus get into the fading story of the old time, goes to prove that it is no fiction, founded in local or family pride, that attributes to those who laid the foundation of our prosperity, an earnestness, courage, and pure elevation of character, which places them in the first rank among heroes and patriots."

As if the above sacrifices made by Capt. Noble for the good of his country, were not sufficient, may we not be pardoned in here introducing a statement made to us by his grandson, William T. Noble of Newark Valley, N. Y., in a letter bearing date Oct. 14, 1858, that "about the time of his death, Capt. Noble's house in Pittsfield, not far from Daniel Hubbard's tavern, together with his barn, store, saddler's shop, tannery, and ashery, were fired, as was supposed, by tories, and entirely consumed."

Smith, in his "History of Pittsfield," vol. i: 205, after alluding to the patriotic services of Capt. David Noble, states, that the bill introduced in 1858, by Hon. H. L. Dawes, was passed by Congress, and the desired "seven years half-pay" allowed to his family. Would that this statement was verified by facts! The records of Congress, on the contrary, show that the bill of Mr. Dawes, in 1858, met the same fate with its predecessors, the House of Representatives taking no action thereon. Nothing daunted by their previous disappointment, the heirs of Capt. Noble, convinced of the justice of their cause, brought their claim once more to the attention of Congress, and on motion of Mr. Chamberlain, their petition was referred, Dec. 18, 1861, to the committee on revolutionary claims, who dismissed the same without even the cold formality of a report. It surely would be hard to find a case illustrating more forcibly the fact of the ingratitude of republica.

Rev. OLIVER NOBLE, s. of David, was b. in Hebron, Conn., Mch. 3, 1734, bapt. in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 20, 1734, and d. in New Castle, N. H., Dec. 15, 1792, æ. 58. He graduated at Yale College, in 1757, and was licensed to preach, Feb., 1758, by the Hartford South association. His first settlement in the ministry was in Coventry, Conn., respecting which, Rev. Abiel Abbott, D.D., afterwards pastor of a church in the same town, writes as follows:

"On the 15th Sept. 1752, Rev. Mr. Meacham first pastor was dismissed by death from his charge, on which account the parish of which he was pastor, broke very much into parties, occasioned by different sentiments about candidates for the ministry, of whom they made trial, and after much unhappy debate, and party strife for almost seven years, they called and settled Mr. Oliver Noble, Jan. 10, 1759. [The old Society record says, voted to settle, or ordain Mr. Noble, Dec. 20, 1758.] Former altercations however did not subside, and attempts were soon made for the removal of Mr. Noble. Several councils were called on the occasion, and on the 10th of June, 1761, he was dismissed."

Rev. John Ballantine of Westfield, Mass., makes the following entry in his Diary, under the date of Nov. 11, 1761:

"Oliver Noble here, late minister of Coventry, Conn. There was no great opposition, yet some unguarded expressions about a black velvet cape on a white great coat, gave such a handle against him as occasioned his dismissal from them. Singularity in dress sometimes proves a snare to one that has a mind to be popular. We should dare to be true, though it exposes us to banter and ridicule. A small spark may be blown up to a great flame. Be careful what you say, and before whom. Do not meddle with other people's affairs. The asking of impertinent questions may have bad consequences."

On the 1st of Sept., 1762, he was resettled in the ministry, as the first and only pastor of the Fifth (Cong.) church in Newbury, Mass. There he remained, to the satisfaction of his parishioners, until about the year 1773-74. In December of that year, we find the parish voting, that "it appears to us that near one third part of the polls and estates are gone over to the church of England," and "that the state of the parish has much altered since the settlement of Mr. Noble." A committee was appointed to "confer with Mr. Noble and acquaint him with the facts." And at an adjourned meeting it was voted, that the committee "farther acquaint the Rev. Mr. Noble with the state of the parish, and that his proposals was not like to answer any good end." During the American revolution, in the year 1776, he served as chaplain for eleven months. He organized a church in Deer Isle, Me., Aug. 1, 1773, but appears to have continued there only a few weeks. Not far from the same time, he performed missionary labor in Blue Hill, Me. He resigned his charge at Newbury, Apr. 7, 1784. A council was called to dismiss him, but only the pastors and delegates of two churches being present, they acted, not as a council, but as individual churches, giving Mr. Noble a paper, recognizing and approving his separation from his church and people, and commending him to the churches.

He was settled for the third and last time, Aug. 18, 1784, over the Cong. church in New Castle, N. H., and continued in that connection until his death.

"If his ministry was not here" [New Castle], writes one of his successors, "marked with distinguished success, it should be recollected that he labored under great discouragements. The people had been, for some six years, destitute of a pastor—several of the parish and church had become Baptists—during the war of the Revolution many of the people had removed, because exposed to the enemy, a British man-of-war lying in the harbor, and threatening to destroy the town, as it had destroyed others along the coast—while the pecuniary embarrassments of the citizens were severe."

In 1789, he preached the New Hampshire election sermon.

Tradition represents him to have had black eyes and hair, a Roman nose, and heavy voice; to have been "of fine commanding person, tall, and well proportioned, noble in figure, as well as in name." His habits are said to have been social, and his visits to have been frequent, among the families of his flock. He is represented to have been evangelical in sentiment, and, "as a preacher, to have possessed more than ordinary gifts."

His remains rest in the grave-yard opposite the church in New Castle. No monument marks the place of his burial, but within the church, in 1852, a beautiful mural monument was erected to the memory of Mr. Noble and his five venerable predecessors in the ministry, in that ancient town. Three printed sermons from his pen bear the following titles:

1. "Preaching Christ, the office work of ministers, and how they should perform it;—shown in a sermon preached [from 2 Cor., iv: 4] at Arundel, at the ordination of the Reverend Mr. Silas Moody to the work of the ministry, and pastoral care of the church and congregation in that place; January 9, 1771. Salem: printed and sold by Samuel Hall, near the Exchange. M DCC LXXI." pp. 32.

2. "Regular and skilful music in the worship of God, founded in the law of nature, and introduced into his worship, by his own institution, under both the Jewish and Christian dispensations; shown in a sermon preached at the North meeting-house, Newburyport, at the desire of the church and congregation, Feb. 8, 1774. Boston: printed by Mills and Hicks, for Daniel Bayley, in Newbury Port, 1774." pp. 46.

3. "Some strictures upon the sacred story recorded in the book of Esther, shewing the power and oppression of state ministers, in a discourse [on Esther viii: 11] in commemoration of the massacre at Boston. 8°. Newbury Port, 1775."

Miniature portraits of Rev. Oliver Noble and Lucy, his wife, painted on ivory, are, 1877, in the family of Hon. Robinson Palmer of Perry, Me., who married Mr. Noble's granddaughter.

Capt. JAMES NOBLE, s. of David, was b. in Hebron, Conn., July 9, 1736, and d. in Orwell, Vt., Feb. 23, 1817, æ. 80. He served under Capt. Wells, probably in 1756, being then of Hebron, Conn., in an expedition against Crown Point. Field, in his "History of Pittsfield," Hartford, 1844, must be in an error, in supposing him to have removed in 1761, to Pittsfield, for the church records of Gilead parish in Hebron, show that his son John was there baptized in 1762. He was of Pittsfield, in 1769, for on the 14th of May of that year, his daughter Catharine was there born. His name appears, June 24, 1774, as a signer of a petition to the selectmen of Pittsfield, to convene a town meeting for the purpose of taking action upon the circular letter sent out by the selectmen of Boston and other towns, respecting the invaded liberties of the country. On the 10th of May, 1775, Capt. James Noble marched to Canada, and continued in the service until Dec. 30, 1775. During this time, he was on the 15th of July, 1775, a captain in the garrison at Ticonderoga. He was in 1776, one of the Pittsfield committee of correspondence, inspection, and safety. On the 17th Oct., 1776, he marched to Ticonderoga under Capt. William Francis, and returned Nov. 16, 1776. He enrolled himself for Bennington, Aug. 13, 1777, under Lieut. William Ford, and served until the 20th Aug. In May, 1777, he went under Capt. John Strong to Kinderhook, N. Y., "after inimical persons," and was dismissed, May 11, 1777, after one week's service. He, with Col. William Williams, in 1779, represented Pittsfield in the legislature of Massachusetts. In 1785, he removed to Benson, Vt., and thence, three years later, to Orwell, Vt.

Maj. HORACE NOBLE, s. of Daniel, was b. in Westfield, Mass., Apr. 13, 1770, and there d. Jan. 15 or 16, 1848, æ. 78. He was a millwright. Says a writer in the Westfield Times:

"He was a short, thick-set man, every lineament of whose face, and whose every motion indicated the spirit of determination which was incorporated in him, and which formed a part of his being. When Major Noble made up his mind, it was made up! Change or yielding seemed to be no part of his nature. He made an impression upon the troops of men and boys, as well as upon the militia, by his appearance on parade. His large, burly body, somewhat resembling the portraits of the late President Taylor, arrayed in a suit of dark blue, with his half-moon hat, and a flaming red feather stretching up from it, and that large, square, stern face, and those large, glaring eyes, looking, for all the world, as if the sword which he wore was ready to spring outward to his hand, at every breach of discipline by his troops, or any misconduct upon his lines by the spectators, presented an appearance of military energy and decision, which the more benignant and firm look of General Shepard; or the bustling manner of Adjutant Dewey, with his gleaming spontoon, failed to display."

HARRIET WELD NOBLE, s. of Rev. Oliver, was b. in Coventry, Conn., Feb. 5, 1761, and d. unm., of apoplexy, in Marietta, O., May, 1816, s. 55. He resided, from 1795, to about 1807, in Portsmouth, N. H. At one time he was a purser in the navy. He subsequently went to the East Indies as supercargo of a ship, which sailed from Portsmouth. Among other things he carried with him Perkins' metallic tractors, recommended in those days for nervous affections, and advertised to use them in Calcutta. In this way he acquired the title of doctor. He afterward settled as a merchant in Marietta, O., and while doing there a prosperous business, was, in the night time, robbed of all his money, amounting to several thousand dollars. Soon after, when in Boston, Mass., he met on "the Exchange," his old friend, [George?] Crowningahield of Salem, Mass., who had heard of his loss. Mr. Crowningahield handed him his pocket-book, containing many thousand dollars, and asked him to take the whole or any part of it. Declining the proffered generosity, Mr. Noble replied, "Notwithstanding my misfortunes, I am still able to care for myself." The following extract from a letter of Nahum Ward of Marietta, O., dated May 24, 1852, contains all the additional information gathered respecting his last years.

"Mr. Noble came to Marietta, in 1811, a single gentleman, and died here in May, 1816, as he came, a single gentleman. He was from Boston here. Noble was a purser in the Navy, in the sloop of war, Portsmouth, as he told me, but for how long a time, I am unable to say. We were friends from the time I first met him, in Sept., 1811, to the day of his death. I was with him when he died, was chief mourner at his funeral, and placed a slab-stone over his grave. He was a gentleman highly esteemed, and while in Marietta was engaged in the mercantile business."

WILLIAM TAYLOR NOBLE, s. of David, was b. in Pittsfield, Mass., June 16, 1791, and d. in Newark Valley, Tioga Co., N. Y., Jan. 7, 1861, æ. 69. He learned the trade of a machinist, principally with his brother Roswell, in Baltimore, Md., and was there associated with him in business. Most of the machinery of the cotton factory of Messrs. Frederick and Louis Launay of Baltimore, was their work. About this time they received from the emperor Napoleon Bonaparte a prize for the best flax machine shown at his Paris exhibition. After working at his trade, for a short time, in Paterson, N. J., he removed, about 1812, to New York city, and became the foreman of Messrs. Ward & Tallman, famous manufacturers of steam boilers, cotton spindles, and flax machines. He then engaged for a time in the mercantile business, first in Norwalk, Conn., and subsequently in Gibson, Penn. Having afterwards worked for a short time at his trade in Paterson, N. J., he returned to New York city, and for about two years was with his brother James, in the grocery business, first on the corner of Delany St. and the Bowery, and afterwards on Christie St. In November, 1821, he removed to Sterling, Wayne Co., Penn., and there carried on the mercantile business for nineteen years. He removed, in Oct., 1840, to Newark Valley, N. Y., and was there a merchant until a few years previous to his death.

He was "a gentleman of the old school," courteous in manner, and fond of good society. Generous in his feelings, and possessing a high standard of honor, he abhorred all vulgarity or coarseness in manners and language. Honorable in business, he was too lenient toward dishonest creditors. Warm and true in his friendships, open-hearted and unsuspecting, he sometimes failed in the true estimate of his associates. As a husband, father, and citizen, he was faithful in the discharge of every duty. During a long life he secured the respect and esteem of the communities in which he dwelt. For many years he was a licensed exhorter, and afterward a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church.

ARCHIBALD NOBLE was b. in Terrahen, Fermanagh Co., Ireland, abt. 1700, and there died. Tradition says that he was of English origin, his ancestors having settled in the north of Ireland, and that the family were noted for their muscular powers, high sense of honor, and moral integrity. This family, when in Ireland, belonged originally to the Church of England, yet under the preaching of John Wesley, became Methodists, though continuing, while they remained in Ireland, to attend the services of the English church. Since their removal to the United States, they have with wonderful unanimity adhered to the doctrines and usages of the Methodist Episcopal church.

After residing for a few years in New York city, he removed in 1798 or 1799 to Elm Hill, now Johnsburgh, N. Y. There he purchased farms for his four sons. He was by trade a stone-mason. He was also a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church. While on a visit to his daughter Jane, in Arlington, he attended preaching at a school-house. After the circuit preacher had concluded his sermon, he himself gave an exhortation, took his seat, and died without a groan or struggle. He was eminent for his piety and many virtues. The tomb-stone erected in Ash Grove cemetery in the town of White Creek, N. Y., but removed, in 1876, by his grandson, Hon. David Noble, to Johnsburgh, N. Y., bears the following inscription:

"In Memory of | David Noble | who died July 10, 1807 | in the 73^d year of his | age.

HON. DAVID NOBLE, s. of Archibald, was b. in Johnsburgh, N. Y., July 11, 1804. He was brought up a farmer. Receiving such an education as the common schools afforded, from the age of eighteen to thirty years, he taught in his native town and the surrounding country. In 1833, he took charge of a store, connected with a large tanning establishment in Johnsburgh, and was book-keeper and general agent until May, 1843, being for a part of the time a partner in the mercantile business. In 1843, a dissolution of the former partnership having taken place, he purchased in the vicinity about twenty acres of land and opened a store.

He has held commissions in the militia of the state, most of the offices of the town and several of the county. From 1846 to 1848 he was one of the side judges of Warren Co., and in 1851 and 1854, a member of the Assembly of the state of New York. On the establishment, in 1869, of a post-office in Weavertown, a village in Johnsburch, he was appointed postmaster, and retains the office until the present time, 1876. In politics he was, up to 1859, a democrat, and since has been a republican. His religious connection is with the Methodist Episcopal church. He takes much interest in genealogical researches, and has furnished almost the entire account of the descendants of his great-grandfather, Archibald Noble.

Lord Nelson, and, in 1796, was severely wounded in the throat by a ball, at Loano. "It is with the greatest grief I have to mention," says Lord Nelson, in his report of the affair, "that Lieut. James Noble, a most gallant and worthy officer, is, I fear, mortally wounded." He soon, however, recovered from his wounds, and followed his heroic chief into La Minerve, serving as aide-de-camp at Port Majo, Corsica, &c. He was present and again wounded at the capture of the Spanish frigate, Sabina, and shortly after, as flag-lieutenant to Nelson in the Captain, highly distinguished himself at Cape St. Vincent, taking a prominent part in boarding the two line of battle ships, San Josef and St. Nicholas. In one of his despatches, Nelson thus expresses himself: "Lieutenant James Noble's merits and repeated wounds entitle him to every reward a grateful country can bestow." He was posted, Apr. 29, 1802, and became rear-admiral in 1837. -

JOHN NOBLE, b. in England, Mch. 16, 1760, d. in 1830, s. abt. 70. He is said to have been a captain in the British army, and to have either been taken prisoner by the Americans, or to have deserted to their side, near the close of the American revolution. The latter is more probable, for he ever after had a strong dislike to British rule. For some years subsequent to his marriage he resided in the western part of Penn. In 1800, he removed to North Bend, Hamilton Co., O., and for a few years, through fear of Indian depredations, resided with several other families in a block-house. He then removed three miles back of that point to the Big Miami river, and built a good hewed log-house. After his sons were able to take charge of the farm he worked principally at his trade, that of carpenter and joiner, occasionally teaching for a season in his own district.

He pursued his legal studies with Gen. George McDuffie, and Hon. John C. Calhoun, and after his admittance to the bar was for a short time associated in practice with Mr. Calhoun. He practised law in Abbeville, from abt. 1810 to 1838. He was a member of the South Carolina house of representatives, 1812, 1818-24, and 1832, and speaker of the house 1818-24; and 1832, state senator, and president of the senate, in 1836. In Dec., 1838, he was elected governor of the state, and died while in office.

The following general order was issued shortly after his death, by his successor in office:

"EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
COLUMBIA, 28th April, 1840.

Throughout the civilized world, it is an established usage, for States to mourn for the death of their benefactors.

On assuming the high Executive functions of South Carolina, to which the Lieutenant-Governor has been constitutionally called, by the death of his lamented predecessor, the late PATRICK NOBLE, there would be a dereliction of his solemn duties, were he to pass, unnoticed, this sorrowful event.

Of the late Governor NOBLE, it may be truly said, "he was first in the hearts of his countrymen,"—his name hallowed by a chastity of motive, that disarmed reproach, and made powerless invective. Entering the councils of the State at an early period of his life—for a series of years a Representative and Senator from Abbeville—he has been successively called to preside over each branch of the legislature, as Speaker of the House, and as President of the Senate; and as a voluntary requital, was lastly honored with the first office of the State.

Of his eminent virtues as a man—his mild and forbearing rule as Chief Magistrate—looking with deep respect to the execution of the laws, and at the same time mingling Executive clemency with the rigid severity of the law,—it is unnecessary to speak; or of the general fidelity and self-devotedness with which he discharged all the duties of the elevated and sacred trust confided to him; they are fully and gratefully appreciated by the intelligent people he so long and efficiently served.

In obedience to the force of general sympathy, and as a tribute due to the Commander-in-chief, the Magistrate, and the man, the Major-Generals throughout the State, will cause the order to be extended to their separate commands, requiring all the Officers to wear the usual badge of mourning on the left arm, for thirty days; and that on the 16th May, the Commandants at the Citadel, in Charleston, and the Arsenal in Columbia, will cause a gun to be fired at every half hour, beginning at sunrise, and ending at sunset. And the Executive respectfully recommends, that on the 17th May, the Citizens of the State assemble in their respective Churches, to unite in condolence for the loss which South Carolina has sustained.

By order of the GOVERNOR,

BEAUFORT T. WATTS,

Acting Aide-de-Camp."

Lieut.-Col. ARTHUR NOBLE, s. of ———, was b. in Enniskellen, Ireland, and was slain in the battle of Minas, Nova Scotia, Jan. 31, 1747. He emigrated to America abt. 1720. He was a Louisburg soldier, and was commissioned, Feb. 5, 1744, as lieutenant-colonel of the 2d Mass. Reg., and captain of the 2d Co. Little is known respecting the places of his residence in New England, except that in Nov., 1746, he was of Georgetown, York Co., Me. On the 22d of Nov., 1746, "being bound on an expedition against the enemies of the King of Great Britain," he made his last will, which was proved Mch. or May 12, 1747. In it, he names his brothers, Francis and James, his daughter, Sarah Lithgoe, and his son Arthur. He left, for the times, a large estate, his personal property having been valued at about £8,000. He was the commander of a detachment of five hundred English troops at the battle of Minas, in Nova Scotia, and was killed by a musket ball, which entered his forehead. He was a very brave officer.*

* After most diligent search, the compiler has been able to find but six dates of marriages and deaths in the families of Lieut.-Col. Arthur Noble and his descendants, three in public print, and three in the public records of Boston, Mass. It will be noticed, that not a single date of birth has been found for a period of nearly one hundred and eighty years. There is no evidence of any family records having been kept during any part of that long period.

JAMES NOBLE of Boston, d. abt. 1772. Williamson, in his "History of Maine," vol. ii. 250, inserts the following statement made by E. Rollins: "The town of Nobleborough in the county of Lincoln, was so named in compliment to Col. [Arthur] Noble, or his family. His brother, James Noble, Esq., was claimant of a large tract in that town; made conveyances, and surveys, and after the war his nephew, Arthur Noble . . . lived on the plantation, and gave the town its name. James Noble married the widow [sister] of William Vaughan, who after the celebrated siege of Louisburg died in England." He seems to have resided in Boston, Mass., and there made his will, Dec. 13, 1769, which was proved Aug. 14, 1772. In it he named his wife Rachel, Col. William Lithgow, Sarah his wife, and her heirs, Arthur Noble, son of his brother Arthur, *James Noble Shannon, and *William and *George, sons of Elliot Vaughan. As he names no children, he probably left none. He was a conveyancer.

Capt. ROBERT NOBLE, s. of Francis, d. prob. Jan., 1770. On the 8th Apr., 1747, he was a lieutenant in Capt. Charles Morris' company, in Br.-Gen. Waldo's Reg. of foot, raised in the province of Massachusetts Bay, for the reduction of Canada, and on duty in the garrison at Annapolis. He was of Sheffield, Mass., Apr. 5, 1748, and was then appointed administrator on the estate of his father, Francis Noble. About 1749, he became a tenant of John Van Rensselaer, of lands lying within the limits of the present town of Hilldale, N. Y. In the disputes which subsequently arose between the provinces of Massachusetts and New York, as to the western boundary of the former, Robert Noble claimed these lands as his own. In the many conflicts which ensued, he seems to have been the leader of the Massachusetts men. From him Nobletown, now Hilldale, received its name. How long he continued to reside there, is not known. In 1763 and 1765, he is called in deeds, as of Egremont, Mass. St. James (Episcopal) church in Great Barrington, was formed Sept. 20, 1762, and in a list of those then gathered, the name of Robert Noble stands first, and he was at that date chosen warden. His place of residence nowhere appears on the records of this church. The record of his death is found on the memorandum-book of Gamaliel Whiting of Great Barrington, under the date of 1770, Jan. 18, "Heard y^e death of Capt. Robert Noble."

Gradually he worked his way into a lucrative practice in Sugar Tree Ridge, O. At the breaking out of the Civil war in 1861, he enlisted as a private, in a regiment of infantry gathered for border defence. On the disbanding of his regiment, he was appointed first surgeon of the 60th Reg. Ohio Vols. He was with his regiment while marching under command of Gen. Fremont, to relieve Generals Schenck and Milroy, who were surrounded by the Confederate forces at McDowell, West Va., was appointed a member of the board of medical examiners for the Mountain department, and was elected president of the board. Gen. Fremont having been superseded by Gen. Pope, he was transferred to the staff of Gen. Platt, as acting medical director, and afterward served in the same capacity on the staff of Gen. White; was in the night attack by Col. Cluseret on a part of the forces of Gen. Jackson at Strasburg, Va., as well as in the skirmish at Cottontown, and the battles at Cross Keys and Port Republic, Va. Having been captured in the engagement at Harper's Ferry, in 1862, while acting as medical director on the staff of Gen. Miles, he was sent as a paroled prisoner to Camp Douglas, Chicago, where he was very ill with camp fever. On his recovery, he was appointed surgeon of the board of enrollment of the sixth congressional district of Ohio. After the close of the war he resumed the practice of his profession in Hillsboro', O. Since 1866, he has been medical examiner for pensions. In 1868, he was appointed a director of the Citizens national bank, in 1869, president of the Hillsboro' building and loan association, in 1876, president of the Gaslight Co. in Hillsboro', and in 1877, was elected lieutenant-colonel of the 18th Reg. of Ohio national guards. He presided, July 4, 1876, at the Highland Co. celebration at Hillsboro' of the centennial birth-day of the nation. In all his undertakings he has been fortunate and prosperous, except in finding a partner to share his joys and sorrows.

It is the plan of the compiler to enter all additions and corrections in an interleaved copy of this genealogy, with an intention of issuing a supplement, when the material shall warrant it. He therefore earnestly requests any one who may notice the slightest error in name, date, place of residence, and occupation, or may now or hereafter be able to supply full names where only the initials are given, or add any dates and places of births, marriages, and deaths, also occupations or places of residence and full names of the parents of those who have intermarried with the Noble family, to communicate the same to him without delay. He will also be thankful for any additional names of those who have taken part in our country's wars, with the companies and regiments with which they were connected, and dates of enlistment and discharge, or dates and places of death—as well as for the names of those of the family who have attained to the age of ninety years and upwards, with dates and places of birth and death—and the names of additional college graduates, with place and year of graduation.

A few persons have favored him with photographs of themselves. He wishes to make a large collection, and will be greatly obliged if any one will send him photographs or pictures of any kind of any member of the family.
